SALES TOTAL NEARLY 6,000,000 SHARES

Wildest Trading Since March Break — Ticker Falls Hour Behind Market.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The stock market, after struggling valiantly to absorb the tremendous volume of liquidation which poured into it from all sections of the world today, finally collapsed again in the last hour of trading when most of the leading issues broke to new low levels on the current decline. Extreme declines in the active issues ranged from five to 30 points.

Total sales ran close to 6,000,000 shares, as contrasted with the record-breaking session of 8,246,700 on March 26, last.

United States Steel common broke to a new low around 207 and then resounded to 210. Off three points net. Final quotations and net changes in some of the other active issues were: General Electric 346, off 5½; American Telephone 281, off 4; American & Foreign Power 140, off 4; Westinghouse Electric 208, off 7; United Aircraft 97¼, off 5¾; General Motors 64, up ⅝; Radio 82¼, off ¾; Anaconda 109¾, off 1¼; Montgomery-Ward 105, off 1½; Sinclair 32⅜, off 1⅛; Studebaker 59½, off 1⅞; and Hudson 75⅛, up ⅛.

Some of the Sharp Breaks.

Some of the sharp breaks were Wright Aeronautical (old), 30; J. I. Case, 25; Auburn Auto, 17; Columbian Carbon, 12; National Lead, 10¾; Wheeling & Lake Erie preferred, 10, and Allied Chemical, 8.

Call money renewed at 6½ per cent and dropped to 6, with little demand for new funds during the day. Time money held steady at 9 per cent, and there were no changes in commercial paper and bankers' acceptance rates.

Scale buying by investment trusts and organized banking support for some of the leaders failed to stem the tide of selling from large and small speculators, many of whom were forced to take huge losses.

Sterling Is Higher.

Commodity prices displayed a somewhat firmer undertone. Wheat advanced ½ to 1 cent a bushel in reflection of an improved export demand and corn advanced about a cent a bushel. Cotton showed little change.

Foreign exchanges held firm, with demand Sterling reaching a new high level for the year at $4.85 11-16.

Trade Volume Heavy.

Trading was on the heaviest scale witnesses since the record day of March 26 last when more than 8,246,000 shares changed hands with the market in swift reaction under selling unleashed by a sever pinch in the money market. The record volume was recorded coincident with the development of an acute shortage of funds in the money market, with the rate for call loans having risen to 20 per cent just before the closing. Today the situation in the speculative money market was the reverse with funds offered freely at 6 per cent officially, and at concessions from that level in the outside market. Board room traders found the tape of little use as a guide to the course of the market.

Except for the publication of a series of favorable sales and earnings statements, and the action of the American Bankers Association in favoring an investigation of the brokers' loan situation, there was little in the day's news to influence the price movement.

Closing stock prices, with other tables and market news will be found on Pages 51, 52 and 53.

British Premier and Daughter After Landing at New York Pier

CALLS MacDONALD "PRIME MINISTER OF UNITED STATES"

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The announcer at the ceremonies at city hall, in reading the scroll presented to Ramsay MacDonald by the city of New York, today referred to Great Britain's Prime Minister as the "Prime Minister of the United States."

There was a ripple of laughter, and the announcer, Hector Fuller, turned to MacDonald and said: "I beg your pardon; I was merely expressing a hope." Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for Mayor, and presidential candidate last fall, who was on the platform, then remarked: "I second that." "That's high treason, isn't it?" MacDonald asked Mayor Walker, with a smile.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Justice Siddons of the District of Columbia Supreme Court today refused a petition to release Harry F. Sinclaim from jail Oct. 15, holding the oil man's sentence did not become effective until the date of the United States Supreme Court mandate and therefore release would be effective Nov. 22 at the earliest.

REPORTS INDICATE COSTE HAS FLOWN 5000 MILES

PARIS, Oct. 4.—The Soviet authorities today informed the French air ministry that an airplane, which may have been that of Dieudonne Coste, missing French flyer, was seen last Sunday at a point where the Trans-Siberian Railway enters Manchuria.

It was calculated that if this plane was the Question Mark, it was certain that Coste had beaten the long distance record, flying more than 5000 miles, and probably had landed in China.

Previous dispatches had reported a plane flying low over a village near Chita, which is about 250 miles from the Russo-Manchurian border.

If the French flyers succeeded in flying almost to Chita from Paris without landing, they have set a new world's record for distance in non-stop flights. Irkutsk is roughly 5000 miles from the Paris aviation field.

The record for non-stop distance flights, held by the Italians Arturo Ferrarin and Carlo del Prete, is 4475 miles. They made this mark in July, 1928, flying from Rome to a beach 10 miles north of Natal, Brazil.

BRITAIN LISTENS TO WELCOME

LONDON, Oct. 4.—England this afternoon listened in on America's welcome to Prime Minister MacDonald.

The speeches exchanged at the ceremonies in New York were clearly audible, especially in the case of MacDonald's. The sound of cheers and handclapping frequently interrupted the speeches.

MACDONALD SAYS U. S. AND BRITAIN APPEAL TO ALL NATIONS FOR WORLD PEACE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.

ANTICIPATING a barrage of questions from the large delegation of newspaper men which greeted him on board the Berengaria, Premier Ramsey MacDonald gave out the following prepared statement:

"At the moment of arrival I greet my hosts His Majesty has honored me by telegraphing his good wishes for the success of a mission which I feel instinctively is to have benefits far beyond the boundaries of our two countries. The United States and ourselves are really making an appeal by example to all nations to gather round a council board of peace. So that whilst cherishing their historical past and engaging in all the healthy rivalries of genius and skill and work, they will remember the wider unities of a humane civilization.

"You almost make me afraid by the boundless hospitality you seem to be preparing for me. I hope I shall be equal to your kindness. The problems of armaments are full of hidden difficulties. And a patient working at details in an atmosphere of mutual confidence is required to overcome them, and I crave a judgment from you as generously sympathetic as your welcome is to be generously lavish.

"When I return and it is all over, I pray that I shall leave behind me some memories which will bake it easy for you to think well of Great Britain and be a reason for close-cooperation between your country and mine in the great causes of democracy and liberty which inspire the peoples on both sides of the Atlantic."

SHEARER'S INCOME TAX INVESTIGATED BY U. S.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Agents of the Internal Revenue Bureau are investigating income tax returns of William B. Shearer, naval propagandist. They want all the facts about testimony he gave the Senate subcommittee investigating his actions at the 1927 Geneva naval limitations conference as an employe of shipbuilders.

Replying to a question on the stand, Shearer said he had not paid income taxes and contended the $51,230 received by him from the shipbuilders over a period of a little more than two years was to meet his expenses and could not be considered as salary.

REACHES CAPITAL TO MEET HOOVER

"If England and U. S. Stand Side by Side for Peace Who Can Stand Against Us?" Premier Asks Reporters.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Prime Minister MacDonald arrived today to confer with President Hoover.

His heart and mind bent on promoting an Anglo-American understanding, the British statesman was welcomed cordially as he and Secretary of State Stimson alighted from the special train which brought them from New York.

The Union Station was thronged and cheers resounded through the concourse as MacDonald and his daughter, Ishbel, were escorted toward the presidential reception room.

The crowds were in good humor, and those who sought to approach more closely to the visiting party were held back by Marines.

The Prime Minister wore a frock coat and silk hat and in his buttonhole was a sprig of heather. Ishbel wore a large bouquet of orchids.

Assistant Secretary Castle of the State Department, and Lady Isabella Howard and Mrs. Stimson greeted him and his daughter.

British Flags Are Waved.

Several small British flags were waved by onlookers as the party walked toward waiting automobiles for the ride to the British Embassy.

While the Prime Minister and his daughter were leaving the station a familiar tune of the Scottish bagpipes greeted them.

Smiling, the Prime Minister and his daughter paused even longer before entering the automobiles for photographers to take repeated shots. He joked with Stimson about the insistence of the camera men.

Go to British Embassy.

MacDonald, Stimson and Capt. Allen Buchanan, Naval aid to President Hoover, occupied the first car in the ride to the Embassy. In the next sat Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador; Under Secretary Cotton, of the State Department, and Col. Campbell Hodges, Military aid to President Hoover.

Lady Howard, Mrs. Stimson and Ishbel MacDonald were in the third car.

The remaining 12 automobiles were filled rapidly. The procession then moved slowly toward the Capitol on its way to the Embassy, by way of Pennsylvania avenue. Police on motorcycles, with their sirens screaming, preceded.

Two troops of cavalry and a battalion of artillery formed the escort.

A company of 50 sailors presented arms while Mr. MacDonald entered the Embassy Building.

The Prime Minister and his daughter went immediately to the chambers set aside for them, the former to prepare for his formal call upon President Hoover at 6 o'clock.

Thousands in New York Cheer Britain's Prime Minister.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Cheered through the streets by thousands who lined lower Broadway, J. Ramsay MacDonald, Prime Minister of Great Britain, passed through this Eastern gateway of America today on an errand of peace to the nation's capital.

BODIES OF 4 SLAIN GUARDS THROWN FROM WINDOW BY BESIEGED MEN

One of Hostages Is Shot and Tossed Out Each Time Warden Refuses Demand for Safe Conduct

SURVIVOR TELLS OF THEIR MURDER

"Have You Said Your Prayers?" Executioner Asked One Before Firing Bullet Through His Head.

By the Associated Press.

CANON CITY, Colo., Oct. 4.—Slain in retaliation for the refusal of Warden Crawford to grant convicts at the penitentiary a safe getaway the bodies of four guards were tossed from the windows of cell house No. 3 during the prison mutiny here last night.

The first guard shot was J. J. Ellis. He was thrown from the building while still alive and was borne from the inclosure by convicts on orders from the ringleaders. He died in a hospital.

After that, one by one, three other guards were slain and their bodies thrown from the building as the convicts made good their threat to kill the hostages, if their demands were not granted. Three other guards thus killed were Abe Wiggins, Marvin Duncan and a fourth man, unidentified.

Wiggins' death was described by John Shea, guard, who carried his body from the front of the building at the command of Danny Daniel leader of the mutiny.

"Wiggins, have you said your prayers?" asked Daniels.

"Yes, where do you want me to stand?"

Shea said Daniels then turned to him and said: "Shea, you have been a pretty good sport. Take Wiggins to the gate."

Daniels, Shea said, then turned to Duncan and said: "Prepare yourself to be the next to die."

Daniels told Shea to tell the officers outside that the convicts would free the hostage guards if two automobiles were placed at the gate for a getaway. The convicts would come out, surrounded by their prisoners and drive away, releasing the guards when well out of danger.

This offer was refused by the Warden, as plans were then nearly ready to start dynamiting the wall and making a charge at the cell block.

Fourth Serious Prison Outbreak in Few Months.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Mutiny of convicts at the Colorado State prison at Canon City brought to four the number of major prison outbreaks during the last few months. In that period the wave of insurrection has swept across the country.

In the first of these serious outbreaks, three convicts were killed at Clinton Prison, Dannemora, N. Y. Thirteen hundred prisoners there attempted to rush the guards July 22 last, burned several of the prison buildings and finally were subdued by guards and troops from Plattsburg Camp.

Six days later 1700 inmates at the Auburn, N. Y., prison mutinied. Two prisoners were killed, 11 others wounded and four escaped. There, too, the prisoners set fire to half a dozen buildings, resulting in losses estimated at $250,000. State troopers aided guards in quelling the riot.

Aug. 1, last, mutinous convicts at the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., rebelled over the quality of their food and the system of discipline. One prisoner was killed and three were injured.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Chicago's 92nd bomb of the year, and the third in less than three days, early today blew out the front of a cigar store in Englewood, on the South Side. Several families living above the store were thrown from their beds and stunned. A passerby was cut by glass.

Police thought the bombing was an incident in a gamblers' war.

Chronological Story of 16 Hours' Mutiny in Colorado Prison, Ending in Ringleaders' Suicides

Outbreak Came at Noon in Dining Hall When Former St. Louis Convict, With Smuggled Revolver, Shot Guard.

By the Associated Press.

CANON CITY, Colo., Oct. 4.—Here is the history of the Colorado Penitentiary riot in brief:

A mutiny among the prisoners broke out Thursday noon in the main dining hall.

James Pardue, 26-year-old convict with a long criminal record, armed with a revolver smuggled inside the walls, shot and killed Elmer Erwin, on guard in the crow's nest overlooking the dining hall.

Pardue and Danny Daniels then seized Erwin's rifle and keys. They liberated other prisoners and killed two more guards, Roy Brown and Walter Rinker.

Telephone wires leading into the prison were cut, but not before an alarm had been sent to Canon City police.

Within 15 minutes the rioters were in complete control of the prison. They disarmed the remaining guards and locked them in Cellhouse No. 3.

Cordon Blocks Escape.

Police and firemen arriving at the prison gates were driven off by armed convicts. The walls were soon surrounded by hundreds of armed men, who prevented any of the convicts from escaping.

Police reinforcements were rushed from Denver, Colorado Springs and Pueblo, and National Guard units at Canon City and Pueblo were mobilized. A National Guard airplane was dispatched from Denver with tear bombs.

Shortly after 3 o'clock about 175 convicts retreated into Cellhouse No. 3. Guards entered the prison yard, herding the other convicts into the recreation yard, where they spent the night without shelter.

Daniels then sent a trusty to Warden Crawford with a note demanding that he and his four companions who led the riot be furnished with three automobiles at sundown, threatening to murder all the guards held as hostages if the cars were not forthcoming. Crawford declined to parley.

Shortly after sundown Daniels sent another ultimatum. Half an hour later the bullet-riddled body of John Elles, prison hangman, was tossed out of the cell house window into the prison yard. He died an hour later in a hospital. The body of Abe Wiggins, a guard, followed shortly afterward. At 9 p. m. the third body of a guard was pushed from a cellhouse window. Power lines were cut by the prisoners, throwing the administration buildings into darkness.

A "final" ultimatum delivered by prisoners, stated that if motor cars were not furnished for escape by 10 o'clock, all imprisoned guards would be slain at once.

The west entrance to cell house No. 3 then was dynamited and machine gun fire opened on the breach. Cell house No. 4 caught fire. John Shea, guard, was sent from cell house No. 3 with the body of another guard.

WALTER J. HOLUB, Alias James Pardue.

Father Patrick O'Neil, Catholic priest, advanced to wall of cell block No 3 under terrific machine gun and rifle fire and placed a 50-pound charge of dynamite which failed to explode.

A party of convicts appeared for a parley, sending John Pease, guard, with another demand for an unhampered escape. A refusal was shouted by megaphone. Father O'Neil placed a second 25-pound charge of dynamite, making his trip under a blanket of machine gun fire.

The dynamite charge exploded and National Guardsmen charged through the prison gate toward the cell house, but were halted in the "bull pen" by heavy fire of the convicts. Two Denver policemen were wounded Warden Crawford was wounded by fire of prisoners and John Allen, chief clerk of the prison, also was wounded.

An armored car arrived from Denver and advanced on the cell block. D. F. Osborne a guard, was brought out of the cell house, badly wounded, by a group of prisoners bent on a parley.

Leaders Kill Themselves.

E. J. Hollister, another guard, also was carried from the cellhouse, dangerously wounded by shots of a convict "firing squad."

The armored car, after circling the cellhouse, became mired in a hole caused by the dynamite explosion.

Early today a guard released by the prisoners reported the ringleaders of the rebellion had shot themselves. Guards promptly surrounded the cellhouse. The mutiny ended when the besieged convicts, more than 150 of them, marched from the cellhouse with hands high over their heads.

TWO CONDUIT EXPLOSIONS NEAR WASHINGTON AND NINTH

The neighborhood of Ninth street and Washington avenue was disturbed twice last night by explosions in an underground conduit which sent an iron manhole cover flying into the air in front of 619 North Ninth street with a loud report and automatically turned off street lights in the vicinity.

After the first explosion, at 6:15 o'clock, a crew from the Union Electric Light & Power Co. traced the explosion to a short circuit in the light cables and made repairs. A city lighting crew acted after the second exploson, at 2:30 a. m., and attributed the cause to a shortage of oil in switches controlling the lights.

COLORADO RINGLEADERS END LIVES AFTER SIEGE

Suicides End 16 Hours' Fighting in Which Machine Guns and Dynamite Are Used.

FOUR BUILDINGS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Outbreak Starts When Prisoner Shoots Canon City Guard, Takes Keys and Releases His Fellows.

By the Associated Press.

CANON CITY, Colo., Oct. 4—Seven guards and five convicts were killed in a prison mutiny which ended at the Colorado State Penitentiary here this morning when the four ring leaders of the uprising committed suicide. Several persons were wounded.

Barricaded with 175 other convicts in cell house number 3, surrounded by National Guardsmen, police and prison guards, and hopelessly outnumbered the ring leaders first killed a wounded comrade and then fired bullets into their own brains. The other convicts then surrendered and were marched out of the cell house just at sunrise.

Four of the guards were disarmed and murdered inside the cellhouse in an effort to enforce the convicts' demand for safe conduct to the gates and automobiles in which to escape. Warden Francis E. Crawford, who declined all offers to parley with the prisoners, was himself wounded during one of the attacks on the cell block.

Officials are not prepared to say what were the underlying causes of the outbreak.

Three guards were killed at the outbreak of rioting yesterday and the other four during the night.

Those killed in the early rioting were Roy Brown, Walter Rinker and Elmer G. Irwin.

John J. Elles, Robert A. Wiggins, Charles Sheperd and John W. McClelland were slaughtered in the cell house.

Attackers Use Dynamite.

National Guard troops and police details from four Colorado cities fired more than 7000 rounds of ammunition into the convicts' stronghold during the night. The fighting was marked by two attempts to dynamite the cellhouse walls, one blast breaking all the windows, but failing to effect a breach in the masonry.

The hero of the dynamiting attempts was a Catholic priest, Father Patrick O'Neill, who carried the bombs to the foot of the cell house wall, under cover of machine gun fire from the prison walls.

Leaders Kill Selves.

The convict dead were: Danny Daniels, who led the rioting, and acted as executioner of the guards; A. H. Davis, George (Red) Riley and James Pardue of St. Louis. The body of Albert Morgaridge, a convict, was found dead in the prison yard.

Pardue was wounded in the abdomen during the early rioting. Removed to cell house No. 3 by the other convicts, he was found this morning with a bullet through his head, fired by one of

DANCER IN TEARS TELLS OF VISIT TO PANTAGES' OFFICE

Says She Tried to Fight Off Theater Man, Even Kicking Him—Bows Head in Recital Details.

DENIES HE CALLED HER ACT "OBSCENE"

She Asserts That He Commended Dancing and Had Offered Her Place in One of His Revues.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 4.—Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer, was put on the witness stand by the State today as it launched into its principal effort to convict Alexander Pantages, theatrical magnate, of the charge of criminal attack placed against him by the girl.

Miss Pringle watched District Attorney Buron Fitts constantly, keeping her eyes away from the crowded courtroom and the 54-year-old theater executive in whose private office she alleges she was attacked last Aug. 9 as she discussed a dancing act with him.

As the girl took the stand, approximately 500 persons surged about the courtroom barriers vainly trying to gain admission.

Miss Pringle wore the same dark blue dress of silk crepe that she had on yesterday. White cuffs and a white collar, held in place with a dark blue tie, heightened the schoolgirl appearance of her costume. She was entirely devoid of makeup.

The film colony was represented in court by a number of notables. Ernst Lubitsch, director, came to court with Pantages' son, Lloyd.

Birth Certificate Read.

Before Miss Pringle was called to the witness stand, District Attorney Buron Fitts read into the record of the trial the girl's birth certificate, showing she was born on March 5, 1912, at Marysville, Cal., and then recalled her mother, Mrs. Lou Irene Pringle, to the witness chair.

Mrs. Pringle denied that she had been instructed by the prosecutor not to bring a damage suit against Pantages and said no one had told her it would be "bad policy" to sue the theater man.

"Do you know Alexander Pantages?" Fitts asked Miss Pringle, after preliminary questions had established her age and residence. "Yes," the girl replied.

"Is he your husband?" "No, he is not," Miss Pringle answered.

"Have you ever been married, or are you married now?" Fitts wanted to know. "No," the girl replied.

Speaking quickly and in a firm, clear voice, the girl testified she first met Nick Duneav, her dancing partner, at the Hollywood Studio Club last March, where she was spending a night with a girl friend. She watched a play he had written and her experience in dancing led them to plan an act, she said.

After completion of their plans, she said she visited Pantages four times last May in an attempt to place the act on his vaudeville circuit. At this point, Fitts brought out a denial from the witness to the defense's allegation in the opening statements yesterday that Pantages had told her he would not send her act to Fresno, Cal.

Denies Receiving Letter.

Miss Pringle said Pantages merely explained that it was too late in the season to present the act. A second denial followed to the defense statement that Pantages had written her a letter rejecting her act as "too obscene."

The witness said Pantages wrote her, asking her if she would join a revue at Fresno, but [illegible] said she replied in June 18, [illegible] letter, that she was not interested.

Late in July, she said, [illegible] saw Pantages again and after expressing delight at her presence, he asked her to return a few days later.

The afternoon of Aug. 9, Miss Pringle said, she went to Pantages' office.

"'Let's go to my private office—I want to talk to you,'" she quoted him as saying. "We walked down some stairs into a little room and he unlocked the door and we went in," she continued.

Pantages spoke of the heat, the girl said, and she removed a velvet jacket she was wearing.

"Then he slipped off his coat, saying 'You don't mind, do you?'" Miss Pringle testified. She said Pantages commended her act and then took one of her hands and admired it. She said she withdrew it, declaring it had nothing to do with business.

A recess was called at this point.

The witness blanched as Fitts led her into details of the attack and answered reluctantly. She bowed her head in her hands and began crying. Pantages fidgeted in his chair and leaned far forward to peer at the girl.

Her sobbing became so audible Fitts was obliged to inquire if she could continue. The girl composed herself and answered questions more freely. She said she pleaded with Pantages to release her but he clapped his hand over her mouth.

Then she began kicking him, she said, "and I tried in every way to escape, but I couldn't."

The university student was called by District Attorney Buron Fitts, chief prosecutor, five minutes before the close of yesterday's session of Pantages' trial, but questioning was postponed.

The girl was called after her mother, Mrs. Lou Irene Pringle, a school teacher, had substantiated many of the prosecutor's contentions. The woman testified her daughter was a little more than 17 years and five months old on Aug. 9, the day of the alleged attack in the theater man's office, and described the girl's condition that night at police headquarters. Mrs. Pringle also identified torn clothing as that her daughter had worn the day she went to interview Pantages in an effort to obtain a booking for her dancing act.

Colorado Prison Riot Ends When Mutiny Leaders Kill Themselves

the other convicts to end his suffering.

Three of the other ring leaders were found shot to death in the same cell. The body of Daniels was in the doorway, sprawled half in and half out of the cell.

The bodies of Charles Sheperd and John W. McClelland, two of the slain guards, were found in the cellhouse, bound hand and foot. Both had been shot through the head.

Close estimates fix the time of the suicides of the riot leaders at 4 a. m., but it was not until an hour and a half later, at daybreak, when O. E. Earl, one of the surviving guards, made his way into the prison yard, that the attacking forces learned of the fact and entered the cellhouse, whereupon the mutineers surrendered.

Earl said he was afraid to leave the cellhouse until daylight, for fear of being mistaken for a convict and shot by the watchers on the walls. With him in the cellhouse were John Pease and Lawrence Roche, whom the convicts spared.

Roche's sister, Josephine, secretary to Warden Crawford, had remained at the prison all night, dreading each minute to see her brother's body tossed out of a window of the cellhouse, as the bodies of Elles and Wiggins were tossed out. Giving her brother up for dead, she left the prison shortly before daylight. When she learned that he was alive, she collapsed. She was the only person in the main prison office when the mutiny began. She gave the alarm in Canon City and throughout the State.

The mutiny was described today by Roche and Earl.

"I was in a cell house where I could see my brother guards lined up against the wall and shot to death, one by one, the whole night through," Earl said. "In addition, I was partly in the line of the terrible firing on the building by the armed guards outside. It was so bad that even when I lay pressed close to the floor, the ricocheting bullets would spatter about me.

"Why none of us was hurt or killed by the indescribable blast of hell from the wall, I can only call a miracle. I saw John J. Elles, first lined up like a traitor, instead of the brave man he was, shot down like a dog. I knew my time was coming. At first panic gripped me. Later I calmed down and the sure coming of death seemed, as I remember now, only as so much prison duty.

"Every once in a while Daniels, who did all the killing, would come near my cell, and peer in at me. At such times my heart stopped beating. Later, when old Abe Wiggins was shot and then after him, E. J. Hollister and Charlie Shepherd and J. W. McClelland and D. F. Osborne, I only wished it were me so that the awful suspense would be over.

Guards Called to Doom.

"I wished several times during the outside firing that it would come to me that way, instead of standing up before that terrible big gun Daniels was using. From shortly after dark unti labout ,3 o'clock this morning, we would hear Daniels call a guard, hear the footsteps on the cement corridors of the cellhouse, hear a shot and a groan, and then—silence.

"I could tell by intuition who most of the victims were, but some I was forced to witness, like that of Elles and Wiggins. Along about 4 o5clock this morning, I heard a lot of shots, some groans, then complete silence."

Ruined by fire, which destroyed the dining room and chapel and two of the cellhouses and scarred by machine gun bullets and dynamite, the prison yard this morning was in utter ruin.

The penitentiary will need to be completely rebuilt. The prisoners are quartered temporarily in tents erected inside the prison walls.

Warden Crawford today estimated the damage to the penitentiary at between $300,000 and $400,000. All the cell blocks except No. 3, in which the mutinous convicts were barricaded, were destroyed by fire, and No. 3, is badly damaged.

When the prisoners were assembled for roll call this morning, four were reported unaccounted for. Prison officials expressed doubt that they had escaped. They are supposed to be in hiding in the ruins of the prison yard.

The convicts had made provision for a long [illegible]. In one of the cells they had [illegible] 25 huge loaves of bread. [illegible] long butcher knives were found nearby.

How Convicts Surrendered.

One by one, their arms above their heads, the convicts who surrendered were marched out to face a semi-circle of guns held by a hastily organized group of National Guardsmen, prison guards and citizens.

Most of the prisoners looked sheepish and not a few broke into nervous half grins as the guards searched them for weapons. Negro and white, they walked silently across the narrow enclosure separating cellhouses Nos. 3 and 1, to line up against the wall.

Apprehensive of trouble, individual guards poked their revolvers against the ribs of the prisoners. For perhaps 15 minutes the group of convicts swelled in number. Armed guards then entered the cellhouse.

If a tornado had swept through the place it could not have presented a more desolate picture. Here the guards dragged out of the cells the bodies of the slain convicts. Danny Daniels, notorious ringleader, lay dead in a corner of the building.

Two feet away lay a guard, and at his head lay another guard. Around the corner of the first tier of cells the death lines stretched, the guards in their dull blue uniforms and gold braided caps, the convicts in their gray trousers and blue shirts.

Supplies of Bread in Cells.

The darkened cells were in confusion. Mattresses lay scattered on the floors, and more than one cell had a supply of bread, snatched from the dining room to insure food for a long siege when the riot began. One cell was brightened by a crucifix on the wall, another by a half dozen crude oil paintings, a third by straw hats with brilliant cords about their crowns.

Machine gun bullets had chipped holes in the yellow walls of the cell tieres, broken glass lined the corridors, further evidence of the dynamite explosions.

How Mutiny Started.

From the stories told by guards sent from the strongholds, it appeared that Danny Daniels, desperate robber, led the mutiny from the time of its inception. He is the man who killed Abe Wiggins, a guard.

The mutiny broke out yesterday noon when Pardue, convicted robber, shot J. G. Irwin, a guard, seized his gun and keys and, assisted by Daniels, unlocked the doors of the cell houses.

A white-haired prison instructor one of the first hostages of the rioting convicts, was the first one released. George E. Colgate, 70, former State Senator from Canon City, started classes in the State penitentiary six years ago. He was a friend of every convict and aided them in many ways.

When the mutiny started, Colgate had just entered to start his afternoon classes. He was one of the first men seized but his friends among the convicts prevailed upon the leaders to release him.

A national guard airplane loaded with tear bombs was dispatched from Lowery Field. Automobiles filled with police were sent from Pueblo, Colorado Springs and Denver. The Denver police brought along two machine guns.

Warden Crawford was in Colorado Springs at the time the mutiny started. He left immediately for Canon City. During his absence the prison was in charge of Deputy Warden William Green.

The main entrance to the prison front is on the main street of Canon City and is only a few blocks from the center of town. Business was virtually suspended while clerks and merchants flocked to the prison to watch the burning buildings and to swell the citizen guard on the outside.

Lighted by a battery of powerful searchlights, which threw every stone into sharp relief, and by the smouldering embers of the burning buildings, the walls appeared deserted.

Long and loud blasts from the prison whistle had warned the townspeople that a riot had broken out at the penitentiary.

On instructions from Adjutant-General Newlon at Denver, the Howitzer company of the National Guard stationed at Canon City was called out with instructions to stand guard outside the walls.

Following is a partial list of the injured: Myron H. Goodwin, guard, shot through kidney; E. J. Hollister, guard, shot in jaw; E. F. Osborn, guard, shot in jaw; Warden Eugene Crawford, head grazed and struck over heart by stray bullets, not serious; Sergt. E. C. Young of Denver police, shot through right hip; John H. Hickman, convict, shot through right arm; Detective Robert Wraith, Colorado Springs, shot in leg; Albert B. Oukatcher, Pueblo, National Guardsman, shot in neck; John Allan, chief clerk at prison, shot in right hand; George Burger, Pueblo, nicked on scalp by bullet.

Three Convicts Awaiting Execution For Murder.

By the Associated Press.

CANON CITY, Col., Oct. 4.—Among the convicts housed at the State penitentiary were three men sentenced to be hanged for murder within the next few weeks One was Emilie Herrera, convicted of slaying his wife, another, Eddie Ives, who killed a policeman, wounded a second and fatally wounded a Negro woman in a liquor raid in Denver last year and the third, Harold Weiss, also convicted of slaying his wife. Ives, who has had three insanity hearings, once on the suggestion of Warden Francis Crawford, is scheduled to hang the week of Oct. 14.

Warden Says 8 Weapons Had Been Smuggled Into Prison.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CANON CITY, Col., Oct. 4.—F. E. Crawford, Warden of the State penitentiary, suffering from slight wounds suffered during the all night prison battle here, said today he was not prepared to make an official statement as to the cause of the outbreak until he made further investigations.

"I am convinced, however," Crawford said, "that the plot has been in the making for several weeks. We have already discovered that at least eight weapons and considerable ammunition had been smuggled into the prison from the outside. Some of these weapons have been found and we may be able to trace the sources through which they reached prisoners.

"We feel, of course that we adopted the only policy open to us under the circumstances. Out of hand, a half dozen desperate criminals cowed and terrorized the rest and delivered to the prison authorities successive ultimatums threatening the murder of valued guards. To have capitulated to the demands would have been to have sacrificed all the guards held prisoner by the convicts because these guards unquestionably would have been killed in the break for liberty. They were to have been used as a human shield for the escaping criminals. We could not compromise.

"We adopted the only course open to us and we know it will contribute to law and order, whereas the other would only have made for further mutiny and insurrection."

Crawford was appointed Warden of the penitentiary two years ago, following the resignation of Thomas Tynan, who retired in the midst of a political squabble over conditions at the prison. Crawford had been employed as chief clerk in the prison for many years.

Dr. R. E. Holmes, prison physician, declared that the ringleaders of the riot apparently took advantage of a period of slight relaxation from precautionary measures against an outbreak following the recent rioting at Dannemora and Auburn prisons.

Several investigations were started today. It has been known that the prison had been overcrowded and work was to start this month on new cellhouses.

It was found that James Pardue had concealed two guns in the walls of his cell prior to the outbreak. How he obtained them is not known. About a week ago a trusty was apprehended as he carried a weapon into the prison concealed in newspapers.

PRIEST SETS OFF DYNAMITE UNDER FIRE OF CONVICTS

By the Associated Press.

CANON CITY, Col., Oct. 4.—The Rev. Patrick O'Neil, a 40-year-old Catholic priest, twice braved the gunfire of rioting prisoners to place charges of dynamite under the cell house where the mutineers were barricaded.

During the prolonged fight inside the walls, Father O'Neil exclaimed, "I can stand this no longer," and volunteered to place dynamite against the walls of the cell house in an effort to blast an opening. William Rainger offered to assist him.

Covered by a barrage from machine guns the priest made two trips with dynamite across the inclosure to the walls of the mutineers' fortress. He ran swiftly in the flickering light of burning buildings and despite the fire directed at him by the convicts made the trips safely. After a long delay in setting off the dynamite the heavy explosion shook the walls of the entire prison, but the walls of the cell house were virtually undamaged.

Father O'Neil is a native of Kentucky He came to Canon City only three weeks ago. For several years he had been professor of English and psychology in a Catholic school at Shawnee, Ok.

GUARD GOES INSANE AFTER SEEING CONVICTS KILL TWO COMRADES

CANON CITY, Colo., Oct. 4.

MARVIN DUNCAN, a prison guard, was carried to a hospital this morning, insane after yesterday's riot. He was found locked in a cell, and it was necessary to take off the door to get him. He was at first thought to be dead, but examination revealed he ws not even wounded. He saw Elles, the prison hangman, shot down and his body tossed out of the cellhouse window. He stood by while Danny Daniels asked Wiggins, another guard, if he had said his prayers.

"Yes," Wggins replied without emotion. "Where do you want we to stand?"

He heard Daniels say, "Right where you are," and saw him fire a bullet through Wiggins' head.

He heard Daniels tell John Shea, another guard, to take Wiggins' body out to the warden and tell him that Marvin Duncan would be the next guard to die.

That was at 9:30 p. m. From then until he lost his mind, he expected each moment to be his last. Prison physicians said his condition resembled shell shock.

SLAIN ST. LOUIS CONVICT ESCAPED IN PRISON SEWER

James Pardue, the convict who started the riot in the State Penitentiary at Canon City, Colo., yesterday and later was killed, is a former St. Louisan whose criminal activities began here at the age of 15 and resulted in two remormatory sentences, two prison terms, two escapes and, finally, death, at the age of 26.

Pardue was an alias, his real name being Walter J. Holub. He was the youngest of five children of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Holub, 2504 Hebert street. The father is a laborer employed by the city; the mother is a midwife. Funeral arrangements have not been made.

For a time Holub was not permitted to write or receive letters, being in a dungeon for disobeying the Colorado Warden. Later he wrote complaining of his treatment in prison.

Holub, who sometimes spelled his name Hollub, was known to fellow prisoners as "The Runt," being 5 feet 4 inches in height. He weighed 125 pounds.

He made an attempt to escape from the Missouri Penitentiary July 14, 1924, by crawling into a 24-inch sewer which leads out under the prison walls. The route taken necessitated his crawling about 150 feet through the small sewer to a larger sewer about four feet in diameter which empties into the Missouri River a quarter of a mile away. But before Holub could reach the main sewer he had to go through the elbow and eight-foot drop.

In the opinion Holub must have been overcome by gas before reaching the outlet, the Warden had convicts dig to reach a trap where his body was thought to be blocked.

But the body was not there Very much alive, Holub, under the alias of Pardue, turned up in Denver, Colo., committing a series of robberies, including a holdup in which $182 was taken from the Ison Drug Co., Dec. 27, 1924, for which he was committed to the Canon City prison. Finger prints of Pardue were sent to St. Louis police and identified as Holub's.

Once Held for Shoplifting.

As early as May, 1919, Holub was arrested by St. Louis police for shoplifting. He was sentenced to Boonville Reformatory for three years, but paroled after 61 days. He entered the Navy and came out with elaborate tattoo marks and a reefer coat.

After he and a companion had taken $80 in a holdup of a Kroger store at 3227 Chippewa street, Aug. 1, 1922, they were chased and captured by Patrolman Schmidt. One of three bullets fired by the robbers struck a plug of tobacco in the patrolman's trouser pocket. The prisoners confessed 11 robberies.

For these crimes, Holub was sentenced on Aug. 30, to five years in Missouri Penitentiary, but received a commutation to Boonville Reformatory, from which he escaped the following November by walking away when guards were not looking. Returning to St. Louis, he organized a gang of holdup en.

Missing Button as Clew.

He lost a button from his Navy reefer and also his pistol, on the following Dec. 12, when he attempted to hold up Gus H. Pankhurst, manager of a Kroger store at 3750 St. Louis avenue. Pankhurst disarmed the robber and tore a button from his coat. Detectives, informed of the clew, arrested Holub at Sixteenth and O'Fallon streets because a button was gone from his reefer jacket The button lost in the store matched the buttons which remained on the garment.

For this attempted holdup, and for a previous robbery in which he obtained $7.05, Holub received sentences totaling seven years, on Jan. 22, 1923. This time he actually went to the Missouri Penitentiary, only to escape through the sewer in 1924, as already told, and move to Colorado.

Convict Daniels Had Appeal Pending on Robbery Charge.

BARTLESVILLE, Ok., Oct. 4.—A. A. "Danny" Daniels, leader in the Colorado Penitentiary mutiny, who ended his own life, was under a $7500 appeal bond in District Court here, pending the outcome of his appeal from a conviction on a robbery charge, officers said here today.

Daniels, they said, was arrested in Coffeyville, Kan., and returned to Bartlesville Sept. 30, 1926, on a charge of robbing a wholesale grocery company here. He was sentenced to seven years in the State penitentiary at McAlester.

He was released on bond by J. R. Charlton, District Judge, and while awaiting hearing on his appeal engaged in a fight with officers at Noawata, Ok., when they attempted to arrest hm on an automobile theft charge. He escaped at that time, officers said today, and later was arrested and convicted for a robbery in Colorado.

One Rioter, a Former Pugilist, Led Jail Break in 1924.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 4.—William H. Dallhunt, alias "Slippery" Dell Hanlon, one of the rioters at the Colorado State Penitentiary at Canon City, is a former St. Paul pugilist with a long police record who got the name "Slippery" as a result of his maneuvers in eluding arrest.

After leaving the ring nearly 10 years ago, Hanlon operated a gymnasium in St. Paul for a time. He was first arrested in 1920 when he was charged with stealing an automobile but was acquitted. In 1921 while being taken to jail to await trial on a grand larceny charge, he escaped and was recaptured only after a gun fight on the streets.

He again eluded arrest in 1922 when he fought his way out of a trap set by Postal Inspectors and narcotic agents in the St. Paul postoffice. A few weeks later he was arrested in Denver on a charge of highway robbery.

Sentenced to Denver County jail on the highway robbery charge, he led a break from jail in April, 1924, when with 14 other prisoners he fought off four guards and escaped. Captured again he received a life sentence in the penitentiary at Canon City.

ALDERMAN WIMER ATTACKS TRANSIT BOARD IN SPEECH

CRITICISES ITS WORK FOR FRANCHISE

Tells of Engineer's Offer to Neun to Draft Transportation Plan Without Cost to City.

Alderman Samuel Wimer of the Twenty-seventh Ward spoke in the Board of Aldermen today in support of his bill to abolish the Transportation Survey Commission by repealing the ordinance which created it. Wimer was the author of a bill last winted to create a rapid transit commission, but the Ways and Means Committee abandoned his bill and reported a committee substitute which was subsequently passed, Wimer voting against it.

Wimer's speech followed the second reading of the repeal bill, which was referred to the board's Ways and Means Committee.

Wimer began by asking President Neun if he had received a letter from an engineer tendering his services to the city free in connection with the development of a rapid transit plan. Neun replied that he had received such a letter but it was a personal letter, and he had not seen fit to submit it to the board. Wimer then instructed the clerk to read a copy of the letter, which he had received, from Harry Bortin, a consulting engineer of Pine street.

Describing himself as an engineer of 25 years' experience, trained in transportation matters, Bortin offered to work out a comprehensive rapid transit plan and a plan to obtain increased municipal revenue "through an equitable and scientific re-appraisal of the present assessments against real estate."

Record of Commission.

Wimer then took up the discussion of his repeal ordinance, declaring he had not acted in a vindicative spirit in introducing it. "My reason was," he said, "that I did not believe the Transportation Survey Commission was carrying out the mandate of the ordinance.

"It has been meeting now for 14 months without submitting one iota of information to the Board of Aldermen on the bill and ordinance it was created to provide. It produced four bills in the State Legislature, only one of which had any direct connection with rapid transit, and did not submit any of the bills to the board for its approval.

"One of the bills was about excess condemnation, one was about the river front, and one, the most obnoxious and most important, was the terminable permit bill which was not submitted to this body. There was divided opinion about this bill and some people believed it would abolish the power of the Board of Aldermen over public utilities and give that power to the State Legislature and the State Public Service Commission.

"I made the statement during the recent political campaign that there were 31 men responsible for the government of St. Louis and no one else had any legal authority to govern it. Those men are the Mayor, the Comptroller, the President of this Board and the 28 Aldermen.

Struggle for a Franchise.

"The Transportation Survey Commission violated the intention of the ordinance which created it all the way through. I don't want to assume the attitude of a Solomon, but I predicted at the time the ordinance was passed that all the commission would be interested in would be the obtaining of a franchise rather than rapid transit. Their biggest activity has been trying to get a franchise for the Public Service Co.

"The Board of Aldermen is the body that should handle such matters. We granted a franchise to the Illinois Traction System recently which I think was a fair one to the company and in the interest of St. Louis. Any company desiring a franchise should come to the Board of Aldermen and ask for it. The legally constituted body, standing as blind justice, we will deal fairly with the operating company and the people, giving justice to both.

"This Transportation Survey Commission has been running hog wild. Kelker (the commission's engineer) says he is only a hired man and takes orders. I wonder who gives him the orders? That's what I would like to know.

"We all know the city government has been having financial difficulties. That is due to the fact that the bond issue created more activities than the revenue could support. Yet we are paying the engineer of this commission $3000 a year—the same as we get Mr. President—plus $100 each day that he works for the city himself, plus $75 for his first assistant, plus $35 a day for his second assistant, plus $25 a day for his third assistant, plus all expenses. The total to date has been more than $17,000 and nothing has been accomplished.

For the City's Interest.

"Let's handle matters here in a business-like way. I have no ax to grind. I am not prejudiced against the Public Service Co. but I want legislation passed in the interest of all of the city.

"When Comptroller Nolte wanted to sell $6,000,000 in public improvement bonds the other day, we didn't find that the group that wants a franchise for the Public Service Co. was helping the city out of its financial difficulties. No! The Comptroller was forced to give a premium to sell the bonds and I want to compliment him on getting out of a bad situation.

"Now, I heard Stanley Clarke (president of the Public Service Co.) make a speech several months ago in which he said that St. Louis was not ripe for rapid transit. A few weeks later, Kelker, like the dog of the graphaphone, repeats the same statements.

"It's not the business of the city of St. Louis to bolster up the finances of this company. We are interested in obtaining transportation but we are not interested in building up anybody's financial situation. If the statement were true that St. Louis is not ripe for rapid transit, why spend all this money? We ought to abolish the commission and forget about it."

Wimer concluded by repeating that the Board of Aldermen "is the only legislative body that has any right to O K any franchise," and declared that he was not trying to embarras either President Neun or Alderman Kuhs, who are members of the Transportation Commission.

Neu Supports Wimer.

Alderman John Neu Jr. of the Thirteenth Ward rose to indorse Wimer's views. "I cannot see why the board is always delegating its powers to some commission or committee," said Neu. In many instances we find that the people who advise us about our problems are either directly or indirectly interested in the things they recommend.

"This board is capable of conducting its own affairs. Almost a million people live in this city, and they elected us on the theory that we were competent and intelligent enough to carry on the board's business, but we are always hearing about some expert or other who is transacting the business affairs of the city.

"They bring in reporst intended to hoodwink this Board of Aldermen. We had better put a stop to it. The board is made up of business men, lawyers and the like, who have the ability to digest various proposals and reach the proper conclusions without the help of these outside committees.

Wants Board to Make Decision.

"Of course we appreciate advice, but we should have the last word. The people gave us this authority and we should keep it. When you read these articles in the papers, particularly in the Post-Dispatch, you cant' help but believe that there is something back of this whole thing.

"You read that the minutes of these meetings show that so-and-so suggested so-and-so. No one can solve our problems for us any better than we can solve them ourselves. We should insist that these matters be submitted to us to be solved in the interests of the city."

Alderman Herman Waldman, Twenty-Eighth Ward, said:

"Unfortunately all these remarks are chronicled in the press and I feel sure the members that have spoken did not realize that they will embarrass all of us. We are privileged to attend the meetings of the Survey Commission. I didn't know until recently that they were open meetings, but I think we ought to attend and keep in touch with what they are doing. Then we can talk about it more intelligently."

PLEADS GUILTY AFTER JURY REPORTS A DISAGREEMENT

R. A. N. Neville Gets Jail Sentence for Stock Fraud on His Employes.

When a jury in his trial for using the mails to defraud failed to agree and was about to listen to a re-argument of the case, Robert A. N. Neville, owner of the defunct A. N. Neville Manufacturing Co., 1167 Hodiamont avenue, changed his plea of not guilty to guilty and was sentenced to Federal Judge Davis to a jail term corresponding to the time he has spent in jail since his arrest, June 19.

Although the jury stood 10 to 2 for acquittal, it was unable to agree and requested Judge Davis for additional instructions. The Court conferred with counsel on both sides and decided to allow the case to be re-argued and to give the jury new instructions. As the jury filed in the box, Neville withdrew his plea of not guilty and entered a plea of guilty.

Neville was charged with selling stock to the employes of his concern, which made jam and preserves, telling him that it would be incorporated and that they would receive dividends. When the business failed to be incorporated and no dividends were forthcoming, they complained and his arrest followed.

He set up the defense that he had no fraudulent intent and that his business was thriving until Nov. 16, 1928, when he was mysteriously shot and wounded as he was putting his car in the garage at the rear of the jam factory. Neville said that from that time the business declined and finally collapsed.

WINS SUIT TO RECOVER $75,000 IN PHILIPPINES

Fulton Iron Works Vo. Advises Case Has Been Decided in Their Favor.

Officers of the Fulton Iron Works Co. were advised today by their attorneys that their suit to recover from the China Banking Corporation of Manila, P. I., $75,000 embezzled by their Philippine representative four years ago, had been decided "in their favor." The message did not indicate whether the judgment was for the full amount asked.

The Fulton company in March, 1925, discovered that Sidney Schwartzkopf, Manila attorney, whom they had retained to collect old debts, had embezzled about $75,000 by drawing personal checks on money deposited with the China Banking Corporation by himself as representative of the St Louis company.

Schwartzkopf was convicted and served 18 months of a three-year sentence when he was pardoned, in October, 1926, by Gen. Leonard Wood, then Governor of the islands.

181 INDICTMENTS RETURNED IN NORTHERN INDIANA CLEAN-UP

By the Associated Press.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 4.—A report containing 181 indictments was returned today by the Gederal grand jury, which has for five weeks beein investigating allegations of corruption in the Calumet District of Indiana.

Nearly all of the indictments were against alleged liquor law violators.

Of the indictments, 29 were against persons in the Hammond District of the Court. This district comprises the cities of Hammond, Gary, Whiting and East Chicago.

Among those indicted were Raleigh P. Hale, Mayor of East Chicago, and James Reagan, Chief of Police of that city. Both Hale and Reagan were rrested several weeks ago during raids made by Federal agents in that city.

JEANNE EAGELS, STAGE AND MOVIE STAR, FALLS DEAD

Actress Had Just Arrived at Private Hospital in New York When She Collapsed.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Jeanne Eagels, stage and screen actress, fell dead last night in the Park Avenue Hospital here. She was 35 years old.

She had for some time been under the care of Dr. Edward Cowles, proprietor of the hospital, for a nervous affliction.

Chemical analysis of the organs of Miss Eagles indicated today that she died of an overdose of a sleeping potion. A quantity of alcohol was also found by the chemical analysis.

After an autopsy, Dr. Thomas A. Gonzales, assistant chief medical examiner, said death was caused by alcoholic psychosis.

"It's the same old story, nothing unusual," Dr. Gonzales said. "Miss Eagels died of alcoholism, not from acute alcoholism but from alcoholic psychosis. She had been acting strangely for three or four days but had not taken a drink in two days."

Eyes Recently Operated On.

Miss Eagels underwent an operation for ulcers of the eyes three weeks ago at St. Luke's Hospital. She left the hospital 10 days later with her condition greatly improved.

Early last evening the actress, whose last appearance on the screen was in the motion picture, "Jealousy," left her apartment for the hospital.

Assigned to a room and a nurse, Miss Eagels was preparing to retire a few hours later, when she fell across the bed, dead.

Dr. Cowles was at her side almost immediately but found that death had been instantaneous.

Public attention was first called to Miss Eagels' illness and temperament in December, 1926, when she retired as the star of "Chicago," then in rehearsal here with the mere statement that she "couldn't get along with the director."

Punished by Equity Association.

In the spring of 1928, she caused the closing of "Her Cardboard Lover" in St. Louis by taking to her bed in Milwaukee after an attempt at a performance that was described by spectators as "remarkable." It was for her dereliction in this play that she was barred from the stage for a year and a half by the Actors' Equity Association and ordered to repay two weeks salary to the producers—a suspension that was lifted only last Sept. 1.

In the meantime Miss Eagels suffered many minor illnesses which put her under the care of physicians, the most recent the operation for ulcers. She returned to her home Sept. 15 and announced that she soon would be ready for work in a new picture.

Divorced Ted McCoy.

During her suspension she obtained a divorce in Chicago from Ted Coy, New York broker and former Yale football star. They had separated several times since their marriage in August, 1925.

As far as could be learned the actress is survived only by her mother, Mrs. Julia Eagels, said to be living in California.

Miss Eagels was born in Kansas City June 26, 1894, and made her first appearance on the stage at 7 as Puck in "A Midsummer Night's Dream." She was the leading woman in "Rain," in which she had the role of Sadie Thompson.

She made her New York debut March 6, 1911, at the New York Theater as Miss Renault in "Jumping Jupiter." She also played in "Mind the Paint Girl," "The Outcast," "The Great Pursuit," "The Professor's Love Story," "Daddies," "The Wonderful Thing" and "The Night Wat h."

The public was admitted to the undertaker's establishment where Miss Eagles' body, clad in a peach-colored dress, lay in an expensive casket of silver and bronze. There will be a simple service at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning. At 2:45, the body will be taken by train for Kansas City, Miss Eagles' home. A mass will be conducted there next Tuesday.

The arrangements were made here by Miss Eagels' sister, Helen the only relative at present in this city. Her mother, Mrs. Julia Sullivan Eagles, and other members of the family are in California.

MACDONALD UNABLE TO SEE WORLD SERIES

British Premier Will Be in Philadelphia on an Open Date.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—Prime Minister MacDonald has passed up the opportunity to see the world series baseball games in Philadelphia, it was announced at Mayor Mackey's office today. The British statesman, his daughter, Ishbel, and other members of the party were invited to attend the games as the Mayor's guests. Today the following reply was received:

"Prime Minister sends thanks for message. Much appreciated. Fears unlikely can be Philadelphia after tenth."

Mr. MacDonald will be in Philadelphia a few hours next Thursday, the off day in the series when the Athletics and Cubs are scheduled to travel to Philadelphia from Chicago.

MacDonald Acclaimed on Arrival in U. S.

But during that brief period he had ample opportunity to judge the sentiment of the people whose President he had come to see. The north end of the Battery was black with crowds and all along Broadway they filled the sidewalks. City Hall Plaza was crammed with other thousands who cheered as the Prime Minister entered the City Hall to receive the freedom of the city from Mayor James J. Walker. From that ceremony MacDonald and his party were escorted direct to the Pennsylvania station, where the special train was waiting.

The distinguished visitor felt the first warmth of his reception at the Quarantine station, shortly after he arrived there on the liner Berengaria, which was escorted by the American cruisers, Memphis and Trenton. The Berengaria arrived at quarantine at 7 a. m. (6 a. m. St. Louis time). A welcoming committee, which had gone down the bay on the city tug Macom, boarded the liner and formally welcomed him to city and nation.

These preliminaries over, the Labor Premier, his daughter, Miss Ishbel, and members of his party were taken on board the Macom, which proceeded to the tip of Manhattan Island at the Battery. Vessels of all descriptions in the harbor gave the party a mighty whistle salute, while at Governor's Island the guns at Fort Jay thundered a salute of 19 guns.

Accident Narrowly Averted.

An accident was narrowly averted at Quarantine when a hawser holding the Macom against the Berengaria parted just as MacDonald was preparing to step aboard the gangplank.

The Macom slid back several feet, almost pulling the gangplank off its deck. MacDonald was waved back and a new hawser quickly adjusted. He and his party then clambered aboard the bobbing city tug.

A police band, in an accompanying tug, played "Britannia Rules the Waves" as the party left the Berengaria.

In the little cabin of the Macom, jammed almost to suffocation by a hundred or more reporters, the visitor submitted to an interview.

After several minor questions, the British Prime Minister, his voice deep with feeling, turned to the purpose of his visit to this country.

"I know that I shall find here a great treasure of good will toward England," he said, and then, after a few remarks concerning the proposed conversations with President Hoover, said:

"If we (England and America) stand side by side for peace who can stand against us?"

He was dressed in formal morning attire, a sprig of heather in his buttonhole, held fast by a bit of plaid ribbon.

"Do you personally know William B. Shearer?"

MacDonald looked a bit puzzled for a moment and then, smiling, said:

Women Reporters Visit Daughter.

While her father was being interviewed in the main cabin, Miss Ishbel was in another cabin with a group of women reporters. She was smiling and light-hearted, but rather hesitant to answer questions regarding her impressions of America.

Finally she said: "Oh, my goodness, I'm missing the skyline," and, asking to be excused, went out on the deck as the Macom steamed slowly through the harbor.

Twelve army planes soared overhead as the marine parade moved up the harbor.

A great wave of cheering rolled along the Battery wall as the crowds there sighted the Macom and continued until the Macom was securely tied up and the party was coming ashore to get into automobiles for the ride to City Hall.

Among the first to grasp the Premier's hand as he stepped ashore was Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, who, with Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador at Washington, had waited at the pier for the Premier's party.

They exchanged a few words, smiling delightedly at each other, and then the party entered automobiles and started up through lower Broadway to City Hall.

The sun, which had been hiding under a cloud, came out just as the Premier stepped ashore, giving a rainbow effect to the arching streams of water which the fireboats were shooting into the air in their salute to Britain's leader.

Thousands Line the Route.

Thousands, many of whom had been there since dawn, lined the route to City Hall and down on the procession streamed the storm of ticker tape as a continuous applause rolled through the streets and echoed back from the towering buildings.

In City Hall Park a greater crowd even was waiting, packed in until it seemed there was hardly room for another person.

They broke into wild applause as the Premier's automobile passed through the lane held open by police and stopped at City Hall steps.

"Hello, Mac," several shouted, taking up the British laborer's usual greeting to the Premier, their voices clear above the din.

The Premier, his cheeks glowing and his eyes sparkling, seemed in high good humor as he bowed and smiled, waving his hat in a continuous greeting to the welcoming crowds.

There were several bands in City Hall Park, one of them a children's Scottish band, attired in kilts, that shrilled out a Highland greeting to the man from Lossiemouth.

On the steps of City Hall, forming a lane through which MacDonald ascended, were 150 recent graduates of the Police College, tall, brawny chaps in regulation police uniform but wearing white leggings and white gloves. They saluted as the Premier passed between their ranks.

Lining the sidewalk in front of the hall, in the front rank was a delegation of 20 Scotchmen in Highland costumes, their kilts and sporrans forming a colorful contrast to the blue and white of the police uniforms.

Hesitating but a moment on the steps to wave a greeting at the crowd in the Plaza, MacDonald and his party were escorted to the aldermanic chamber, where Mayor James J. Walker and Edward J. Flynn, New York's Secretary of State, greeted him in the name of the city and State.

The time being short, the Mayor began immediately his welcoming address and presented the Premier with an embossed scroll from the city commemorating his visit. The Premier made a short response.

The Mayor then escorted MacDonald and his party to their automobiles and they were driven to the Pennsylvania Station to board a special train to Washington.

After a night at the British Embassy, MacDonald and his daughter will go to the White House tomorrow afternoon to be guests of the President and Mrs. Hoover for three days. Sunday will be spent at the chief executive's retreat in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia if weather conditions permit.

President Hoover and the head of the British Labor Cabinet will find ample opportunity for a discussion of many questions in which the two countries have an interest as well as for carrying forward the conversations of naval limitation which Ambassador Dawes initiated at London several months ago as the spokesman for Mr. Hoover.

Relations With Russia.

Relations with Soviet Russia are one of the subjects which it has been suggested may enter into the private conferences the President and the Premier will have at the White House. Further cooperation of the British Empire with the United States in the enforcement of prohibition in this country may well be another.

During his six days in Washington MacDonald will visit the Congress, the Supreme Court, and the State Department; journey to Mount Vernon and the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery and receive the honorary degree of doctor of laws from George Washington University.

RUSSIANS UNREPORTED ON ALASKA-U. S. FLIGHT

Coast Guard Cutters Ordered to Search for "Land of the Soviets"

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 4.—Coast Guard cutters at Sitka and Ketchikan, Alaska, and at Seattle today were ordered to search for the missing Russian plane Land of the Soviets which left Sitka yesterday for Seattle and failed to arrive here.

The four flyers departed at 6:42 a. m. Pacific time (8:42 St. Louis time) yesterday from Sitka on a flight of 900 miles to Seattle.

Just before the flyers took off they said that because of the poor visibility they might put in at Port Angeles, Wash., 100 miles northwest of here. When they did not arrive there yesterday afternoon coast guard cutters began patrolling the Straits of Juan de Fuca.

There was no great fear felt here for the safety of the crew of four, however, as they were to take the outside passage, which is west of the islands skirting the shore, including Vancouver Island, a large body of land. Those familiar with the west shores of the islands said the Russians might easily come down with safety in their seaplane at any one of several safe harbors and yet be out of communication with the outside world for many hours, or even days.

Radio stations of the provincial government in British Columbia tried all day yesterday without result to communicate with the plane. It was not sighted by ships at sea, but the visibility was so poor that this was not considered significant.

BOUQUET OF 50 RARE ORCHIDS FOR VEILED PROPHET'S QUEEN

Maids of Honor to Get Yellow Roses From the Missouri Botanical Garden

A bouquet of 50 rare orchids for the Veiled Prophet's Queen and four bouquets of 50 yellow roses each for her Maids of Honor are being prepared at the Missouri Botanical Gardens for presentation at the Veiled Prophet ball at the Coliseum next Wednesday evening.

More than 1000 orchid plants have been set aside since last spring to provide the material for the Queen's bouquet.

Because orchids usually bloom in January, the plants have been starved of water to cause earlier blooming and the choicest blooms will be selected the day of the ball. Each of the rose bouquets will be of a slightly different shade of yellow, with each rose plucked from a separate plant

ALTON & SOUTHERN MEETS FREE BRIDGE REQUIREMENTS

Sends $15,000 to City for Track Reconstruction; Trains to Operate About Dec. 1.

The Alton & Southern Railroad, which is to use the Municipal Bridge in conjunction with the Manufacturers' Railway, fulfilled the last of the city's conditions today, when it sent a $15,000 check to the city, to pay for reconstruction of tracks on the eastern part of the bridge.

The Manufacturers' has made a like payment for track work on the western end of the bridge. This track work, with the new southern approach, will make it possible for the two lines to carry on a transfer and switching service over the bridge. The roads will be reimbursed, through remission of charges for the use of the bridge, up to the amount of $15,000 each.

President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service said the work remaining to be done, before trains can operate over the railroad deck of the bridge, would take about six weeks. In the latter part of November, or early in December, it will be possible to begin service. The Board of Public Service met today, for issuance of the necessary permits.

WHAT IS A ONE CENT SALE?

IT is a sale where you buy an item at the regular price, then another item of the same kind for 1 cent. An illustration: The standard price of Klenzo Dental Creme is 50c, you buy a tube at this price and by paying 1 cent more, or 51 cents, you get two tubes, and save 49 cents. Every article in this sale is a high-class standard piece of merchandise, just the same as is sold every day at regular price. No limit—buy all you want, but on Friday and Saturday only.

A Profit-Sharing Method of Advertising

THIS sale was developed by the United Drug Co. as an advertising plan. Rather than spend large sums of money in other ways to convince you of the merit of these goods, they are spending it on this sale in permitting us to sell you a full-size package of high-standard merchandise for 1 cent. It costs money to get new customers, but the sacrifice in profit is justified, as we know the goods will please you.

REPEATS STORIES OF DEFENDANTS IN GASTONIA KILLING

Sheriff at Trial Tells of Statements Made by Two of Seven Accused of Murdering Police Chief.

By the Associated Press.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 4.—Statements made by George Carter and Louis McLaughlin, two of the seven men on trial in Superior Court on charges of murder growing out of the death of O. F. Aderholt, chief of police of Gastonia, in a textile mill strike shooting, were repeated to the jury today by I. M. Allen, sheriff of Cleveland County.

The testimony was admitted in evidence by Judge M. V. Barnhill after strenuous objections by the defense.

Taking of testimony in the case started this morning.

Besides the murder charge the men are charged with assaulting three other policemen.

Dr. H. R. McConnell, who treated Chief Aderholt after he was shot and until he died on June 8, 14 hours later, described the shotgun wounds and gave as the cause of death the presence of shot in a lung. After hearing a number of minor witnesses as to the location of the strikers' tent colony where the shooting occurred Sheriff Allen was called.

Says One Admitted Shooting.

He testified that Carter told him he did not do any of the shooting. McLaughlin, he said, told him he had fired the second shot from the union hall. Carter, the Sheriff said, asserted that when the shooting began he threw down his gun and ran. Later he got the gun but did not use it.

Telling of McLaughlin's statement, the Sheriff said, "I asked him if he knew the men they were shooting at were officers and he said he did. He said they were Aderholt, Roach and Hord."

Hord was a plain-clothes man who went to the tent colony with the Chief and three other officers. The Sheriff said that McLaughlin told him he just "fired into the bunch" of officers, not shooting at any particular one.

"Did you ask McLaughlin about this again?" the Sheriff was asked. "Yes, he repeated his story several times the next day," was the reply.

The Sheriff said that Carter told him that when the shots were fired the officers had their hands on his gun preparing to take it away from him. He then threw the gun down and ran.

Defense Questions Sheriff.

"You say Carter told you he did not fire a shot?" Defense Attorney Frank Flowers asked. "Yes," the Sheriff replied.

The attorney asked him if he had not said in an affidavit that Carter refused to answer when asked if he fired at Roach. The Sheriff said he might have made the statement.

LADY HEATH TO FLY AGAIN

Recovering From Serious Injuries, She Asks "Why Not?"

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 4.—Lady Mary Heath, noted British woman flyer, who has been recovering from a fractured skull and other serious injuries suffered in an airplane crash here a month ago, has not lost her nerve and hopes to take to the air again soon, she said today. It was Lady Heath's first public statement since the accident and marked her almost complete recovery.

The flyer has been participating in the national air races here and was practicing a dead-stick landing at the time she was hurt. Her plane crashed through the roof of a factory. A delicate operation on lady Heath's brain saved her vision. She discussed the accident freely today, light-heartedly. Someone asked her if she would fly again. "Oh, yes," Lady Heath answered. "Why not?"

Ohio Editor Killed by Auto.

By the Associated Press.

BARBERTON, O., Oct. 4.—John R. Davis, 79 years old, publisher of the Barberton News, was struck and killed by an automobile as he alighted from a street car in front of his home last night. The driver of the car that struck him did not stop. Davis was the second Mayor of this city, serving one term, beginning in 1893.

PRESIDENT ORDERS INQUIRY INTO THE SALE OF U. S. SHIPS

Requests Attorney-General to Investigate Comptroller General McCarl's Reports.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—President Hoover has requested the Attorney-General to investigate the reports of Comptroller General McCarl on the shipping board's sale of vessels at "exceedingly low prices" and to "irresponsible companies."

Investigation was advocated today by Senator Fletcher of Florida, ranking Democrat of the Commerce Committee.

Defending the board's sales program, however, Chairman Jones of the Senate Commerce Committee said if an investigation is necessary it should be ordered by the President.

Senator Fletcher has been opposed throughout to the sale of the Government fleet at reduced prices. He said he had under consideration a proposal authorizing the inquiry.

Senator Jones, in discussing the McCarl report, declared "we have known all along that the ships were being sold far below their cost, but we also have known that the Shipping Board got the best price it could get for them."

TWO BILLS TO REGULATE AUTO TRAFFIC INTRODUCED

A bill providing for one-hour parking on Grand boulevard between Winnebago and Potomac streets and on Gravois avenue between Potomac and Grace streets was introduced in the Board of Aldermen today by Alderman Neu of the Thirteenth Ward.

A proposed ordinance, introduced by Alderman Studt of the Twenty-first Ward, would provide for southbound traffic only on Fair avenue between Labadie and Ashland and for northbound traffic only on Sarah street in the same limits.

RUNS FOR U. S. SENATE ON ANTI-HIGH-HEEL PLATFORM

James H. Kirby of Illinois Also Demands That Dry Officers "Shoot to Kill."

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 4.—Promising to offer a bill in Congress doing away with high heels on women's shoes, and declaring himself in favor of a "declaration of war against rum runners," James H. Kirby of Petersburg yesterday issued a pamphlet outlining his platform as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate.

Kirby would authorize prohibition enforcement officers to "shoot to kill to enforce the law," he said, adding, "it will be necessary to kill somebody—and plenty of 'em."

His farm relief plan is for the people to substitute milk for intoxicating liquor in their diet.

EVANGELIST TELLS OF LOANS FROM WOMEN

Preacher Suing Aimee McPherson's Mother Breaks Down at Trial.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 4.—More testimony from the Rev. H. H. Clark, complaining witness in the $50,000 breach of promise suit against Mrs. Minnie E. Kennedy, mother of Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, was expected in the trial here today. A recess was taken yesterday afternoon because of what was termed a near breakdown on the part of Clark and also because the minister's attorney asked time to find necessary law books

The minister, who alleges Mrs Kennedy wooed him in a "whirlwind courtship" and then refused to keep her promise to marry him, thereby rendering him unfit to continue evangelistic work, underwent a severe cross-examination prior to the recess. John S. Robinson, Mrs Kennedy's attorney, questioned Clark about his reported courtship of other women after he had filed the breach of promise case. During a short recess Clark was found sobbing in a hallway but returned to the stand until the afternoon recess.

Cross examination then brought out that Clark had borrowed $200 from a Mrs. Selma Lomen of Seattle and that he had intimated to Ruth Day of Everett, Wash., a church organist, that he would appreciate a loan.

Several letters admittedly written by Clark before he met Mrs Kennedy were introduced by the defense. Most of these were appeals to various persons for small loans, Clark promising to share with the lenders his profits from lecturing and stock selling projects.

Mrs. Kennedy contends that Clark's allegations constitute an attempt at blackmail. The minister denied this from the stand.

MAIL ROBBER IN HOSPITAL AFTER PRISON HUNGER STRIKE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Roy Gardner, former Pacific Coast mail robber and for many years a prisoner in the Atlanta prison, is in St. Elizabeth's Hospital here today for mental observation.

Whether he will be kept in the institution's heavily walled and closely guarded quarters for the criminally insane depends on the Government psychiatrists' findings.

After being released from handcuffs and leg irons in the large hall to mingle with other inmates, he broke the 19-day hunger strike which led directly to his removal from Atlanta.

He has completed eight of his 7½ years' prison terms. Years ago he escaped from McNeil's Island Washington, and was later captured by an unarmed mail clerk, Herman Inderlied, at Phoenix, Ariz.

His hunger strike was a protest against the prison fare in the Atlanta Penitentiary.

THREE RUSSIAN PLANE RAIDS ON MANCHOULI

250 Chinese Reported Killed in Renewed Outbreak of Border Clashes.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Oct. 4.—Official dispatches from Manchuria indicate that the border clashes between Chinese and Russian soldiers during the last three days were among the worst so far recorded. Each side accused the other of starting the attack. One report said 250 Chinese soldiers had been killed.

Russian planes were said to have made three separate attacks on Manchuli, around which the fighting centered, on the evening of Oct. 2. They had dropped six bombs and fired with machine guns on the Chinese garrison.

Forty Chinese dead were among the casualties, no civilians were reported among the killed or the wounded.

The same official advices explained that before the Russian air raid, Chinese and Russian artillery had opened fire.

Rengo News Agency messages from Harbin quoted rumors in Chinese Merchant circles that Russian troops had resumed their attack yesterday afternoon, but that tranquility had subsequently been restored. According to this source, Chinese troops had lost 200 killed. The Russian losses were not known.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1929, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (The New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

SHANGHAI, Oct. 4.—The reopening of the soviet offensive, which had been confirmed in Nanking reports, commenced Wednesday. It is said to be the most secere assault yet known on the Manchouli front. The soviet cavalry attacked under a barrage of artillery, while bombs were dropped from planes.

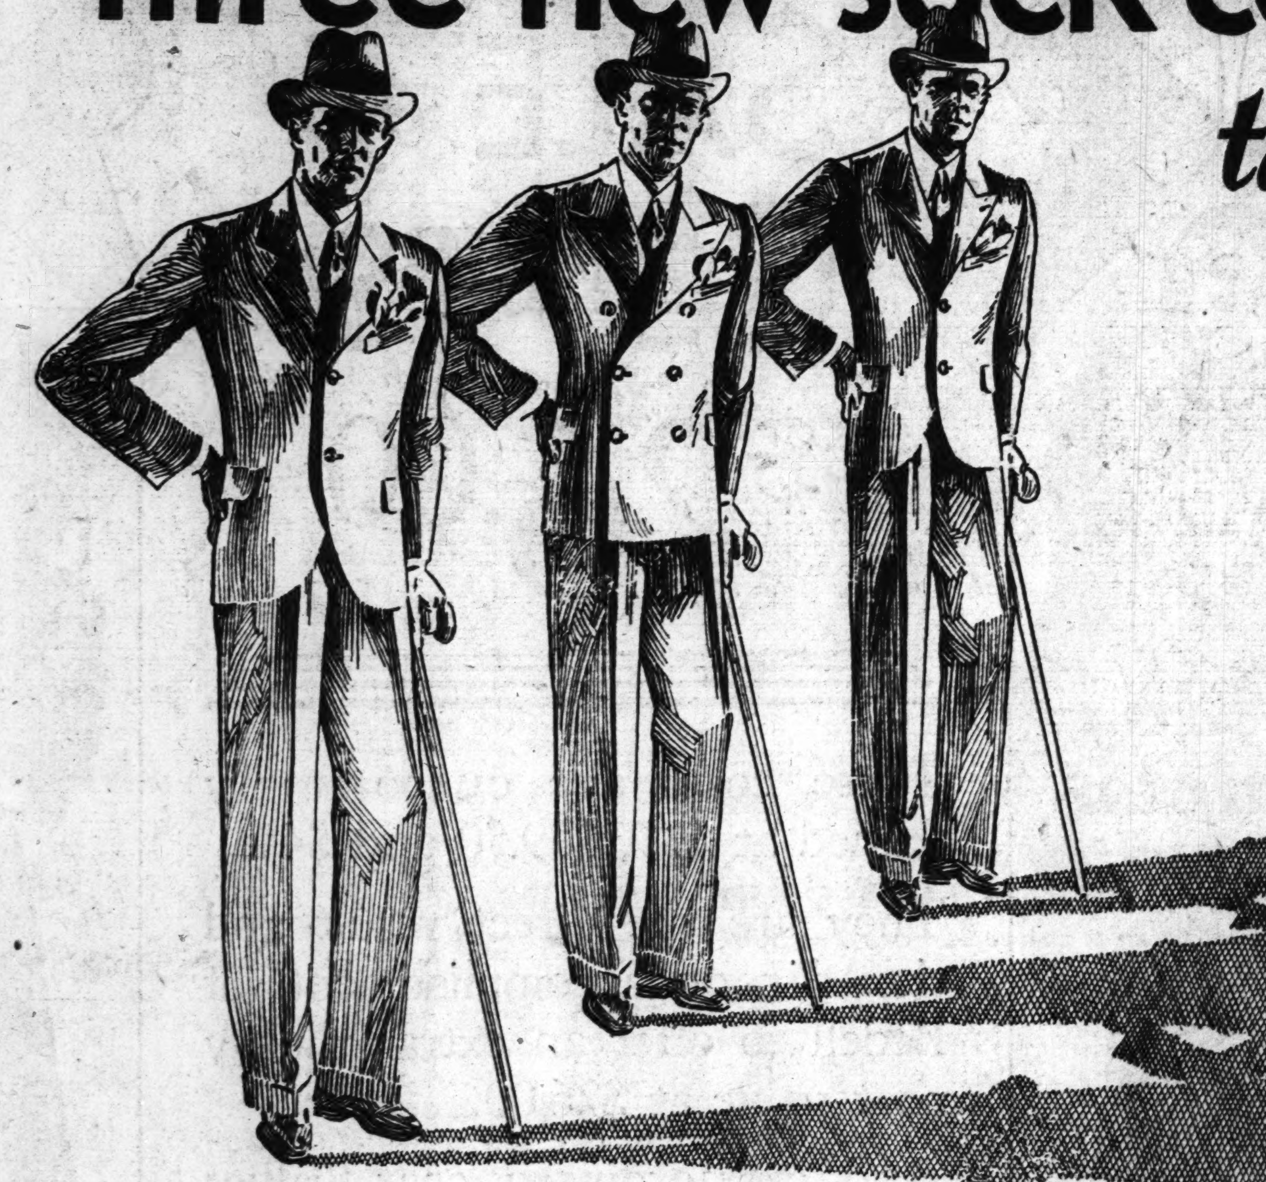
The Chinese think the present offensive a continuation of the soviet policy of occasionally wiping out a Chinese city and of attacking the frontier defenses in order to force the Manchurian Government to make a separate peace.

In this connection the return to China of Dr. Wellington Koo, statesman of the old republican regime, is regarded as significant. He is most antagonistic to the Nanking government, which confiscated his property in Peiping and issued an order for his arrest, which still stands.

Although Dr. Koo and Gen. Chang Hsueh-Liang, the Mukden chieftain, are intimate friends, Dr. Koo was forced to take refuge in France until his present return, which took Nanking wholly unawares.

Although Dr. C. T. Wang negotiated the 1924 Peiping agreement with Soviet Russia, Dr. Koo actually signed it and is therefore regarded as an authority of Sino-Soviet relations. His presence in Mukden, together with the recrudescence of civil war in North China and rumors of the formation of a northern anti-Nanking union combining the northern militarists with politicians who formerly belonged to the Anfu Club, is generally regarded as an augury of a possible separate understanding between the soviets and Mukden, if the Manchurian authorities are unable to stand the financial strain of continued fighting.

On the other hand, the Peiping report to the T-Chung News Agency, which is usually pro-Feng Yu-Hsiang, states that Mukden is planning to recommend that the state council revoke the order of Dr. Koo's arrest, with a petition that will request Nanking to give Dr. Koo the opportunity "to atone for his past political offenses against the Nationalist regime."



FORESHADOWING

three new sack coat fashions

tailored by Bond

Reading from left to right, let us first introduce the Two-Button Lounge Model, which this very moment bids fair to be prime favorite with the largest single group of "style authorities" in these United States—our university undergrads. It is tailored by Bond to the exact specifications laid down by our representatives at Princeton, Yale, Michigan, Illinois, Columbia, and Ohio State. You'll notice that the lapels are real blunt, that the padding in the shoulders is very moderate, and that the coat is fitted in just a bit, at the hips.

The chap in the middle is wearing a broad-shouldered Double-Breasted, that's as British as roast beef; and as smart as Bond Street—London itself! Which is perfectly natural, for that's where this D.B. made its first appearance, about a month ago. An original pattern was rushed to the Bond tailor plants—and last week, perfectly fashioned reproductions reached the 26 Bond stores. We believe you'll particularly like the deep-rolling lapels and widely spaced buttons, which give this Londoner such a jaunty air.

And, on the extreme right, we have another newcomer from the Continent—the Hi-Peak Sack Coat, with rope shoulders. These new features aren't too obvious, for that would not be good taste. Developed by Bond (with the aid of masterly designing by one of the recognized world leaders) they suggest a deep-chested, robust effect that will appeal to a lot of well-dressed men.

We invite you to see this new triumvirate with a pardonable feeling of pride—for we bring them to you just as they are being introduced by the "upper crust" men's shops—with the same rich fabrics, the same distinguished pattern-designs, the same rare coloring—

RACE TRACK FOLLOWER HELD FOR MURDER OF DETECTIVE

Testimony at Inquest Is That He Had Pistol Shortly Before Pinkerton Employe Was Shot.

By the Associated Press.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Oct. 4.—Frank V. Brady, Philadelphia race track follower and a former Pinkerton detective, yesterday was held by a Coroner's jury for the murder of Ambrose A. Morrison, a Pinkerton detective.

Emil Wirsing, a taxicab driver, told the Coroner's jury that a few minutes before the shooting Monday night, he had seen Brady in a saloon, and that he had a pistol in his hand and said, "I am going out to get somebody."

Brady did not testify in his own behalf. He had been barred from a New York race track by Morrison, officials said. Morrison had been assigned to duty at the Havre de Grace track.

AMERICAN IDENTIFIED IN MURDER IN ENGLAND

Philip Yale Drew, Actor, Accused at Reopened Inquest —He Offers Alibi.

By the Associated Press.

READING, England, Oct. 4.—Philip Yale Drew, who plays the role of a detective in "The Monster," now touring provincial theaters, has been identified as the man seen inside a tobacconist's shop "wiping blood off his face" on the night of a murder there.

Five months ago Alfred Oliver, 60 years old, was killed in his shop by an assailant who took $12 from the till. For a time it seemed as if the case would be listed among unsolved murders, then suddenly Scotland Yard reopened the investigations.

The man on whom attention centered at the renewed inquest was Drew, who says he comes from Massachusetts and is a ninth generation descendant of Peregrin White, the first white man born in America. He has lived in London since 1910.

At the inquest, Drew appeared, represented by a lawyer. He produced witnesses who testified that he was in the dressing room of a theater at the time of the crime.

Mrs. Alice James, a caretaker across the street from the tobacconist's shop, testified that she saw a man on the night of the murder just inside the shop door wiping blood off his face. He was muttering and she thought he had been fighting.

"Do you see him in court?" asked the Coroner.

"That's the man," she replied, pointing at Drew.

Drew previously was identified by a butcher, George Loxton, as an "eccentric" man whom he saw hatless and agitated near Oliver's shop about the time of the murder.

Drew seemed unperturbed as the Coroner asked him to stand for identification. He chewed the end of an unlit cigar and smiled.

Mrs. Frank Lindo, wife of the producer of "The Monster," testified that at the time which has been fixed as that of the murder, she heard Drew talking in his dressing room at the theater.

CHINESE GETS LICENSE TO WED MAINE HEIRESS

Student Returned Previous Permit When Family Threatened to Disinherit Him.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Letty Waltine Huston, daughter of a wealthy Maine family, and Lucien H. Chen, son of a well-to-do Chinese planter, who in March, 1928, returned to the city clerk the marriage license they had taken out a few days before, got another license yesterday.

When Miss Huston and Chen, who is studying at Columbia University, first filed their marriage intention, they were met with a storm of disapproval, not from Miss Huston's family, but from Chen's relatives who threatened to cut off his inheritance if he married before receiving his degree. At that time he had been in this country ten years, studying at various colleges. He received his master's degree in philosophy in February, 1928, but his family insisted he wait for the degree he was then working for before marrying.

In the affidavit the pair said they would be married in New York this month.

Miss Huston, who is 25 years old, said at the time they decided to postpone their marriage that the difficulties of other Chinese-American matches did not trouble her.

"Most Chinese I know are engaged when they are young or have wives in China, but Lucien is free to marry me." She then said "I have thought it all out. I have read books on marriage in China that he has given me.

"My mother has known how much I have seen of him and she has not objected. I know how the rest of my family feel about it."

Miss Huston, who left her home in Lisbon Falls, Me., to accept a position as dietician here, said Chen's family was anxious for him to return to his home outside of Singapore.

Chen is 29. He gave his occupation as a student.

SENATE GROUP ENDS FARM BOARD INVESTIGATION

Agriculture Committee to Meet Next Week to Decide on Recommendations on Confirmation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Examination of Federal Farm Board members in preparation for a vote on the confirmation of their appointments was completed today by the Senate Agriculture Committee Chairman McNary announced the committee would meet in executive session next week, probably Wednesday, to decide on its recommendations to the Senate.

William F. Schilling of Minnesota, representative of dairying on the board, was the last member questioned. He testified co-operative marketing would prove the farmers' most effective wedge to prosperity.

During his examination, Schilling asked Congress to show patience with the board.

"This is a child of yours," he said. "Don't leave it on the doorstep. Take it in and give it some milk."

Schilling formerly was president of the Twin Cities Milk Producers' Association. He recommended that Southern farmers go in for some dairying, saying the more cotton they raised at present prices, the poorer they would get. Dairying, he added, would fertilize the land for all crops and also give a source of revenue if cotton prices were not good.

Senator Heflin (Dem.), Alabama, complimented Schilling on his knowledge of farming. Senator Smith (Dem.), South Carolina, then remarked he had seen two board members, Schilling and C. C. Teague, "who have shown they understand something of the principles underlying co operation."

"I'm a little afraid," interposed Senator Wheeler, (Dem.), Montana, "that citrus fruits and dairy products got somewhat of the best of it on this board."

"I'll say so," Smith replied.

Schilling urged each member of Congres to write to his rural constituents and tell him to join a co-operative association.

TO SEEK REGISTRATION OF CAPITAL LOBBYISTS

Senator Caraway Thinks Reports on Money Would Curtail Effectiveness.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Exposure of the "futility" of Washington lobbyists and enactment of a law requiring registration of lobbyists before Congress will be sought through the forthcoming Senate investigation.

By demanding a report on the actual activities of the paid representatives of those seeking legislation and an accounting of how they spend their money, Senator Caraway (Dem.), Arkansas, sponsor of the inquiry, expects their future usefulness to be curtailed.

"Let's find out how these parasites spend their money," he says. "I think to a considerable extent the money winds up right in their own pockets."

He or Senator Norris, (Rep.), Nebraska, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, probably will head the sub-committee which will conduct the inquiry. Both have announced they did not care to take charge, but one or the other is regarded as the likely chairman.

It is fairly certain that Senator Walsh, (Dem.), Montana, who led in the Senate oil leasing investigations, will also be a member of the committee. Others who have been mentioned for places include Senators Gillett, Massachusetts, and Blaine, Wisconsin, both Republicans.

Caraway agreed to the demand of the American Legion that so-called pacifict organizations be asked to report on their activities in Washington. He thinks militaristic associations likewise should receive attenton. In the latter group, he does not nclude the American Legion, which he considers has a legitimate right to ask for legislation.

There is considerable talk, also, of an inquiry into the much-discussed social lobby. Willing to go into that, Senator Caraway forsees great difficulty in getting at the facts.

"Anyway," he says, "the social lobby can't have much influence. The men in Congress who really do the work don't have time for society."

OPPOSES PLAN TO CUT CHARGES OF HOSPITALS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 4.—The Rev. Alphonse M. Schwitalla, S. J., dean of the St. Louis University School of Medicine, declared he is out of sympathy with the efforts being made to decrease the costs of illness by attacking hospital costs, in an address on "The Superintendent of the Catholic Hospital." before a meeting of the Iowa-Nebraska Conference of the Catholic Hospital Association here.

"The amount of money invested in hospitals in the United States and Canada is over $4,000,000,000, demanding an operating expenditure each year of about $600,000,000," Father Schwitalla said. "The expense of erecting and equipping hospitals has become as great as that for the erection and equipment of schools, yet schools demand operating expenses twice as great as that required for hospitals. As the schools increased, so did maintenance costs increase; as hospitals increased, maintenance costs seem to have decreased when compared with the schools. For this reason, I am largely out of sympathy with the effort to reduce the cost of illness by attacking hospital costs.

"The schools have made serious efforts to train executives to carry on their programs. No serious effort has been made to train hospital executives, and for this reason the whole question of hospital science is open at so many points.

"A hospital superintendent must be familiar with the following activities: Medicine, nursing, business, advertising, education, financing and public relations. The superintendent of a Catholic hospital usually is the head of a religious community as well, and must be the guide and advisor of the sisters under her. Regarding her own personal self, she is expected to be a paragon of religious perfection and an example to all."

Father Schwitalla urged that Sisters in hospitals be given a better opportunity of absorbing the rapid changes taking place in hospital science in order that capable executives may always be available. The suggestion has been repeatedly made, he said, that the position of hospital superintendent in the Catholic hospital should be disassociated from that of head of a religious order. Father Schwitalla said he does not favor the suggestion "because it involves the question of divided authority in a single institution."

Discussing hospital costs generally, Father Schwitalla said being sick cannot be grouped as a luxury, although persons confronted with the costs of illness frequently make comparisons with costs of automobiles, recreation and luxuries.

FINDS E. ST. LOUIS SUFFERING FROM CIVIC INHIBITIONS

Dr. F. V. Fisher, Municipal Authority, Says City Should Be "Twin" Not "Back Door" to St. Louis

Dr. Frederick Vining Fisher, who is directing a program of civic development in East St. Louis with the Chamber of Commerce, said yesterday in relating his impressions of the city, that "the greatest thing to be done in East St. Louis is to change the whole mental attitude."

"Taken as a whole," Dr. Fisher said, "the city is suffering from inferiority complex, because it is in the shadow of St. Louis. A purpose of our program is to help the city to throw off its present mental attitude and get an identity of its own—not antagonistic to St. Louis but complimentary to it."

Dr. Fisher related that East St. Louis was different than he expected to find it, and, in fact, as far as the world is concerned, it was an almost unknown community.

"My first impression was that East St. Louis was a small community, a rather sordid factory town with foreign workmen and few outstanding attractions, a smoky, grimy back-door of St. Louis.

An Area of 250,000.

"After having surveyed it, I think the urgent need of East St. Louis is to let the world know what it is. I found, instead, not a small town, but an industrial community of 100,000 persons, set in an area peopled by a quarter-million. It is the nerve center of a group of towns, instead of a small compact village, really a large skeleton of a future great city spread out over the American Bottoms. And not only industrial in character, for there is an ideal residence district on top of the bluffs to the east, formed by an ancient inland see."

Instead of finding a few isolated executives, Dr. Fisher said East St. Louis had hundreds of persons who in character and ability matched those of any city in which he had been engaged. He was surprised to find, he said, that the proportion of American workmen was unusually large.

"The natural setting of East St. Louis, its vast expanse of potential industrial area situated in the heart of industrial America," Dr. Fisher stated, "the fact that it is at the crossroads of waterways, airways, national highways and railroads, that it has an open waterway to the extensive markets of South America, make the development of East St. Louis almost inevitable. But this development is dependent on the leadership, courage and sacrifice of the people of East St. Louis."

On Small Town Basis.

Dr. Fisher declared the city needed public improvements such as streets, a civic center, public buildings and an additional boulevard system. He advocated a large bond issue to finance these requirements, and said that the city had been started with the financial program of a small town and was still on that plan.

"The future of East St. Louis," Dr. Fisher declared, "is not to be the back door of St. Louis, but an independent Illinois city of equal size and importance with a separate identity, the two being complements of each other and making here the twin cities of the Lower Mississippi, just as St. Paul and Minneapolis are to the upper river."

The following were announced yesterday by C. E. Jenks, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, as committees in the civic welfare campaign, being conducted by the chamber.

Compaign Committee—A. C. Johnson, chairman; J. P. Flannery, W. H. Hill, Ralph Hill, C. M. Horner, Mayor Frank Doyle, W L. Wimmer, W. H. Wright, Edmund Goedde, N. C. McLean, Charles Roger, Paul S. Nickell, A. G. Wilson, C. W. Hartmann, G. Edwin Popkess, E. F. Geiger and Floyd Able.

EPISCOPAL PRELATES TO ELECT NEW PRESIDING BISHOP NOV. 13

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 4. —The House of Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church will meet in Washington Nov. 13, to select a successor to Bishop John Gardner Murray of Baltimore as presiding bishop of the church.

Bishop Murray collapsed yesterday while presiding over a meeting of the prelates in St. James Church here.

Mrs. Murray was the only member of the family in Atlantic City. She hurried to the church, but reached there after Dr. M. K. Elmer, a passerby, and Robert McDare, a City Hospital interne, had pronounced her husband dead.

Mrs. Murray asked that Dr. John Fisher of Ventnor be called. His pronouncement was made an hour after the Bishop's death and not until then was the body removed from the main auditorium of the church to an adjoining chapel.

FIFTH DEATH IN STRIKE RIOT AT MARION, N. C.

Four Others Buried While Inquiry Is Temporarily Suspended.

By the Associated Press.

MARION, N. C., Oct. 4.—Investigation of the riot at the Marion Manufacturing Company's plant on Wednesday, when five men were killed, was temporarily halted today while many of the principals in the case attended a public funeral for four of the five strikers shot in the early morning fight.

The fifth victim, James Roberts, 18 years old, died only a short time before the hour set for the funeral of his fellow strikers, Randolph Hall, Sam Vickers, John Jonas and Luther Bryson.

The Rev. A. J. Muste, of the Brookwood Labor College, Katonah, N. Y., conducted the services from a small stand erected near the center of the Marion Manufacturing company's mill village. Tom Typpett, a fellow teacher at the Labor College, assisted.

Thirty-eight arrests have been made among the strikers and their sympathizers charging rebellion and resisting an officer. Many of these defendants are relatives of the slain men. Sheriff O. F. Adkins and 14 deputies and special deputies have been arrested charged with murder and conspiracy to murder. The strikers are free under $500 bonds and the officers under $2000 bonds.

As far as can be learned, the fight Wednesday started with unexpected suddenness when the night shift at the mill which went on strike without notice, formed a picket line around the company gates. Sheriff Adkins said he interfered when a fight started as the day shift came to work, and that when he tried to handcuff John Jonas, who resisted, the shooting started. Jonas died of wounds soon after the fight ended.

The Sheriff said he thought the first shot came from the strikers. The strikers said the first shot came from the Sheriff's party.

Douglas Eller, reporter for the Asheville Citizen, today testified before Judge W. F. Harding, the Governor's investigator, that "the sound of the first shot came from the Sheriff's side." He said he had "seen men shot as they were running away."

SEEKS PERMIT TO OPERATE BUSSES FOR ATHLETES ONLY

By the Associated Press.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 4.—Athletics in Arkansas have produced a new type of business, or at least bids fair to do so.

Harry B. Arnold of Gurdon has filed an application with the Arkansas Railroad Commission for a permit to operate 20-passenger busses over any road in the State for the sole purpose of carrying professional and amateur athletic teams and their supporters from one town to another.

It was the first petition of its kind ever filed with the commission. The commission members individually are asking themselves whether the proposed plan would ble classified as a common carrier or private, and if in the latter bracket, not subject to supervision by the commission.

Arnold has proposed to transport teams and their supporters alone and would not, the petition asserts, accept pasengers between the point of origin and the destination of the trip.

The motor lines would not operate on schedule, the petition provides, and use of any road in the State system is sought.

The application states headquarters of the transportation company will be maintained in Little Rock, with branches at Arkadelphia, Conway and Fayetteville. The designation of the three latter towns suggests the company would seek business from the schools located in them.

BUILDING TRADES TRIBUNAL TO PASS ON JURISDICTION

Serious Opposition; A. F. of L. Serous Opposition; A. F. of L. Meeting Next Week.

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 4.—Departments of the American Federation of Labor engaged today in winding up sectional affairs prior to the main gathering of the Central Labor body next week. Metal trades members in final session reelected their present slate of officers, including James O'Connell, president; John P. Frey, secretary-treasurer, and J. A. Franklin of the boilermakers, first vice president.

Delegates from the Chicago district introduced a resolution asking that the support of the department and the Central Federation be granted to a project to organize the Pullman car manufacturing shops and its 15,000 employes in the South Chicago district. It was adopted, after some discussion, and after the establishment of a limit to the resolution which would not propose organization for Pullman employes over the continent.

Building trades delegates adopted, without serious opposition, the proposal of their executive board calling for the creation of an entirely union tribunal to deal with jurisdictional disputes. The project, as approved and remanded to the Executive Board for conduct, calls for the election of a committee of five members, all of whom are to be members of building crafts unions, to hear disputes and render awards. It is anticipated that the differing unions will submit the issues for the committee's award.

THREAT AGAINST MOODY IN BORGER CLEANUP

Texas Governor Told in Letter to Keep Hands Off—Arrests Continue.

By the Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 4.—Gov. Moody was threatened with death unless he "keeps his nose out of business at Borger," in an anonymous letter postmarked in New York which was received by the Austin Police Department yesterday.

"We've done it before and we'll do it again if he doesn't stay clear of there," the letter stated. Moody was away from the capital, but his secretary, Pat Daugherty, did not take the threat seriously, saying the chief executive often received such letters.

Meanwhile, the work of cleaning up Borger, oil town in Hutchinson County, which was placed under martial law last week, went forward with thoroughness, Major General Jacob Wolters, in command of National Guardsmen there reported.

Arrests continued last night as guardsmen and state rangers pushed their campaign to drive out undesirables and arrested those wanted on charges or as witnesses.

By nightfall the total of arrests was well above 100 and about 50 places had been raided, some of them twice in 24 hours. Many of those arrested were told to leave town at once and others were held as vagrants, or for questioning. The fine for vagrancy is $100, and other penalties were equally severe.

Included among those arrested was Justice of the Peace Walter Broomhall, who was held "for investigation." He was released, however, on the order of the provost marshal. The town's Mayor, Walter Pace, was arrested last week and charged with having caused a witness in a murder case to leave town. He is out on bond.

WARRANTS AGAINST TWO IDENTIFIED IN HOLDUPS

Walter Morrison and James Wegner Accused in Shooting of Merchant and Oil Station Robbery.

A warrant charging assault with intent to kill was issued yesterday against Walter Morrison, a chauffeur, and warrants charging robbery and attempted robbery were issued against Morrison and James Wagner, a carpenter, after a merchant had identified them as the pair who tried to rob him, escaping after one of them had shot him in the hand, and after a filling station attendant had identified them as the two who robbed him of $60.

Morrison and Wagner were arrested by police who traced a license number given them by Isadore Gascovitz, proprietor of the Gast Dry Goods Co., 2501 North Grand boulevard. Gascovitz said he followed the two men who tried to rob him and took the license number of the automobile in which they escaped.

Morrison and Wagner denied the robberies.

Coal Oil Lamp Starts Fire.

Fire started by a coal oil lamp caused $1500 damage to a rooming house occupied by Negroes at 2754 Market street at 7 o'clock last night. Fire starting in a pile of rubbish in the basement at midnight caused $500 damage to the grocery of Albert Bierman, 2731 Goodfellow avenue.

LEGION COMMANDER CHOSEN UNANIMOUSLY

O. L. Bodenhamer, Eldorado, Ark., Nominated by Man Regarded as Chief Rival.

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 4.—Nominated by a man considered his leading rival, O. L. Bodenhamer, Eldorado, Ark., yesterday was unanimously elected national commander of the American Legion.

Albert L. Cox, Raleigh, N. C., who had been mentioned with Bodenhamer as a likely choice, appeared on the platform of the national convention and was introduced by Commander Paul V. McNutt.

"I wish to place in nomination the name of a man as fully qualified as any member of the American Legion," he said. "I move that the rules be suspended and that the national adjutant cast the entire vote for that great legionnaire, O. L. Bodenhamer of Arkansas."

Silence, Then Bedlam.

This move caught the delegates by surprise. There was a pause, and then shouts and cheers mingled with the roar of drums. Through the din the members of the Arkansas delegation carried the new commander on their shoulders to the platform.

"I pledge to you now, in the presence of my comrades and with God as my witness, that I shall hold high and clean the valor of this Legion of ours," Bodenhamer said. He spoke of the Legion as an organization composed of men "who know no west, no north, or south, no policy or creed, no race or breed, so long as it is America."

Major in Regular Army.

Bodenhamer, a past commander of the Arkansas department, who will preside over the 1930 convention in Boston, Mass., was born in Goldthwaite, Tex. During the war he was major in the Nineteenth Infantry of the Regular Army, and after his discharge entered the real estate business in Eldorado.

Other officers were elected as follows:

National vice commanders, Norton M. David, Denver, Colo.; Milton D. Campbell, Cincinnati, O.; Frank Schoble, Philadelphia, Pa.; Willis M. Brewer, Pontiac, Mich., and John (Jerry) Dugan, Wilmington, Del; national chaplain, the Rev. George F. Kettle, Rochester, N. Y.; adjutant, James F. Barton; judge advocate, Scott W. Lucas, Havana, Ill.; treasurer, Bowman Elder, and historian, Eben Putnam.

The last four were reappointed by the executive committee which met after the convention adjourned.

New Pastor at Salem M. E. Church.

The Rev. Dr. V. C. Clark of Stuttgart, Ark., will assume his new duties as pastor of the Salem Methodist Episcopal Church Sunday. He will replace the Rev. Dr. Arthur Halter, who is leaving for Kansas City.

Miss Collett to Play Mrs. Pressler for U. S. Golf Title

CHAMPION IN UPHILL FIGHT ELIMINATES MISSOURIAN

By the Associated Press.

OAKLAND HILLS COUNTRY CLUB, Birmingham, Mich., Oct. 4.—The struggle for the National women's golf championship turned into an all-California final today as Glenna Collett, defending champion from Pebble Beach and Mrs. Leona Pressler of Los Angeles marched through the semifinal round with 3 and 2 victories.

Miss Collett, three times title-holder fought an uphill battle to defeat Mrs. O. S. Hill, western champion from Kansas City, while Mrs. Pressler eliminated Bernice Wall of Oshkosh, Wis.

The finals will be played over the 36-hole route tomorrow.

Champion in Uphill Fight.

The champion was forced to fight another uphill battle today. Two down at the bend because of Mrs. Hill's remarkable 37, four par, Glenna came back with four birdies on the next seven holes to win five of them and halve the others. For the 16 holes she was four strokes under par while Mrs. Hill was two under.

Mrs. Pressler, holder of the Western title in 1927 and 1928, was down but once to Miss Wall—on the second hole, where the Wisconsin girl won with a birdie four. The Californian squared the match on the short third with a par three and did not lose another hole of the outward journey, rounding the bend two up. Twice Miss Wall whittled her rival's lead to one up coming back, but the combat ended when Mrs. Pressler took the fifteenth and sixteenth with a birdie four and a par five, respectively.

Mrs. Pressler Wins on Sixteenth.

On the sixteenth their drives were even, but Miss Wall drove her second over the lake and it hit on the isthmus and went into the water. She took a penalty of one stroke and was 16 feet short with her approach. Mrs. Pressler was 15 feet beyond. Miss Wall was two inches wide and even with the cup with her putt. Mrs. Pressler's approach went three feet beyond, but she sank it for a par 5 to Miss Wall's 6, ending the match with Mrs. Pressler 3 up and 2 to play.

Collett-Hill Match.

They halved the first two holes with par fives although Mrs. Hill had a chance for the second, only to be stopped by a stymie. Mrs. Hill went one up on the third with a par three. A trapped tee shot cost the champion the hole. She took a four.

Glenna saved herself a half on the fourth by a one putt green. Both got birdie fours. Mrs. Hill tossed away an easy chance to go 2 up on the 417-yard fifth. On in two because of a pretty 200-yard spoon shot, she three putted the green from a 25-foot distance, missing her second from three feet. Miss Collett was on in 3 and in for a half at par 5. Glenna sent her second to a right green trap, pitched out within 25 feet of the pin and sank the downhill putt for a par 4 on the sixth, saving herself another half. Mrs. Hill was on in 2 and in for a four, remaining one up.

They halved the seventh with birdie fours. On the eighth, Glenna shot a spectacular third shot from the side of a trap 125 yards to within 15 feet of the pin to gain another half at par five. Mrs. Hill rounded the turn 2 up by scoring

St. Louis Varsity and Freshmen in Scrimmage Practice for Davis-Elkins

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

Quarterback Black, of the Freshman team, is shown with the ball, about to throw a forward pass. Cornell, left tackle of the varsity, has broken through and is charging in to tackle.

Davis-Elkins to Have Weight Advantage Over The Billikens Tomorrow

By Glen McDonald.

Satisfied that his football squad is in the best possible condition for the opening game of the season with Davis-Elkins University at Public Schools Stadium, tomorrow, Coach Hartley Anderson sent his 35 candidates through a light drill yesterday afternoon at the St. Louis U. training field. The work was limited to a dummy scrimmage against the freshmen and signal practice.

Every member of the squad was in uniform and Anderson avoided heavy work taking no chances with his regulars. Tony Kimmell, regular right halfback, who has been nursing a bruised hip, was back at his regular position and is expected to start against Elkins. The only member of the squad who will miss the game is "Fido" Murphy, substitute halfback, out on account of a shoulder injury.

The Billikens will go into the game conceding the visitors a weight advantage of seven pounds a man on the line and 20 in the backfield. Anderson will have a lineup made up mainly of veterans. Six will be playing their third season on the Billiken varsity. Newton and McKinney, the only two sophomores in the Billiken starting lineup, have shown enough ability to displace letter men.

Center Still Doubtful.

Center is the only position that remains in doubt. If the field is dry, the Billiken coach intends to start the veteran, Eddie Davidson. A heavy field will make Cecil Muellerleile, 195-pound sophomore, the choice. Davidson, although he weighs only 170 pounds, compared with the 190 pounds of Capt. Hawley of the visitors, is a great defensive player, speedy enough to cover a lot of territory in breaking up forward passes.

Newton and Schwartz who will take care of the guards will be slightly outweighed by Pigott and Gurneau of Davis-Elkins. The tackles balance perfectly with "Firpo" Joseph the Billikens' heavyweight pairing off with Irvin, the visitors' 215-pounder and Cornell of the home team drawing Miller, an opponent of about his own weight. The Billikens have the advantage at one position, left end. Lyle Drury will cover that post but the average goes down again with Vic Daubner's 162 pounds on the other side of the line.

Visitors Have Heavy Backs.

The Easterners' backfield of Wagner, at quarterback, Warren and Smith at the halves and Rengies at fullback average 181 pounds. This quartet played most of the West Virginia game and are veteran campaigners. Rengies specializing in line plunging and Warren in the forward passing attack. The St. Louis U. average in the backfield is pulled down considerably by Charley McKinney's 142 pounds but what the Billiken quarterback lacks in weight he makes up for in speed and field generalship. Captain Joe Lintzenich is the heaviest Billiken of this group. He weighs 182 pounds and besides doing most of the line plunging he will do the kicking.

The Billiken Athletic Office has announced that there will be a football rally tonight at the St. Louis U. gymnasium, Spring and West Pine, starting at 8:30 p. m. Coaches "Hunk" Anderson, "Chill" Walsh and Christie Flanagan will speak. The admission will be free and students, alumni and friends of the team are invited to attend.

Bill Would Put Mat Game Under City Commission

A bill introduced today at the meeting of the Board of Aldermen promises more trouble and expense for wrestling promoters in St. Louis. The measure, sponsored by Henry Kralemann of the City Boxing Commission, provides that all wrestling be placed under the control of the local boxing board, in the same manner and to the same degree as boxing.

According to the provisions of the proposed measure, promoters would have to take out permits at stipulated fees; the wrestlers, their managers and referees would also require permits. The city would tax all wrestling promotions 5 per cent of the gross revenue, the same as is levied against boxing shows.

About two months ago the State Legislature amended the bill creating a boxing commission to include wrestling.

If the Kralemann bill is adopted, wrestling promoters here will be forced to pay the city and State the same tax as boxing.

ONLY 4 HORSES RUN IN FEATURE EVENT; 2500 SEE RACES

By Melvin D. Fulcher
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

FAIRMOUNT RACE TRACK, Oct. 4.—Extreme won the Autumn Handicap, feature of the opening day race program at Fairmount this afternoon. The field was reduced to four starters, and Fortunate Girl was second and Lawley, third.

The winner went into the lead with the rise of the barrier and under a hand ride by F. Horn, led throughout, winning with something in reserve.

Fortunate Girl, nearest in pursuit throughout, was not good enough, and Lawley, well backed, made up some ground from a rather slow beginning, but could not get into a contending position in the run home. Back Bone was never prominent.

The time for the six furlongs was 1:15 and the winer, Extreme, paid $5.12 for $2.

Rain this morning caused a muddy track and served to keep down the attendance for the first day of the 14-day fall meeting.

The track received a pretty good soaking, enough to change completely the aspect of the races. Several horses that figured well on a fast track also had good chances in the mud.

Spectators were late in arriving and at time for the first race, about 2500 persons were present.

The new public address system received quite a lot of attention during the early part of the afternoon. The announcing and music was very clear and distinct. Announcer Tommy Daley's voice seemed to make him a good man for the job.

Ragabald First Winner.

Ragabald, which raced well at Dade Park not so long ago, accounted for the opening race, over Black Agate and Burning Glass, and paid $12.98 for $2.

The winner took an early lead and withstood challenges from Black Agate and Sir Barley, drawing out in the stretch to win very easily. Black Agate was a forward contender throughout but had no mishaps. Burning Glass outstayed the tiring Sir Barley after the latter had raced in pursuit of the two leaders and gone wide on the stretch turn.

Angel Bright in Old Form.

Angel Bright, the consistent 2-year-old filly, came back in the good form she displayed here last spring and won the second race over Morning Beams and Lady Emblem.

The Rice filly was the favorite, going to the post at 9 to 5, under a steady play by those who remembered her successes in the spring, but she paid better than 2 to 1.

Lady Emblem was the one to set the early pace with the Rice filly second and led until the far turn, where Angel Bright, under mild urging, moved up and went into a length lead. Midway of the stretch she was challenged by Morning Beams but running gamely, she stood off this opposition to win by a half length. Morning Beams outstayed Lady Emblem for the place.

The time was 1:16 3-5, slower than Ragabald's time in the first race.

Third to Russell Gardner.

Russell Gardner, racing for Charles Irby won the third, the first distance race, beating a small band of platers.

E. R. Rice tried to make it a double when he sent Mystery Ballot to the post. This racer shot into an early lead and held the advantage down the back stretch by several lengths under a nursing ride by Mulrooney. At the stretch turn, however, he began to shorten his stride somewhat and when Russell Gardner slipped through on the rail, he succumbed to that horse's rush but held on well to be second over War Dots, which closed fast.

The winner, after opening as the favorite paid $8.38 for $2 to win. Our Joan, a misplaced tip in this race, was well backed, going to the post favorite, but she ran poorly.

The time was 1:57 for the mile and a furlong.

Another Seth Mudder.

Senator Seth lived up to prestige of the set of Seth in the mud by defeating a good band of racers in the fourth, which was at six furlongs.

Harass set the pace until the stretch turn, closely attended by Simon Kenton, but Senator Seth slipped through on the rail and under a drive passed the leaders in the last sixteenth to win going away. Harass outstayed the tiring Simon Kenton.

The time was 1:14 4-5 for six furlongs, which was highly creditable.

The winner's price was $5.64. Senator Seth close favorite after he and Simon Kenton had divided that honor in the early betting.

Governor Invited to Game.

Gov. O. Max Gardner of North Carolina invited Gov. James S. Fisher of Pennsylvania to be his guest at the opening of Duke's new stadium, Oct. 5, with Pitt.

RAIN AND AN OPEN DATE KEEP BROWNS AND CARDS IDLE

BOTH St. Louis baseball clubs again were idle today, the Browns' scheduled game with the Cleveland club having been called off because of rain, while the Cardinals had no contest scheduled.

The game postponed by the Browns today will be played off Sunday as a double-header to close the American League season. Tomorrow's game between the Browns and the Indians will be a "ladies' day," it was announced at Sportsman's Park.

Sunday's first game will start at 1 p. m.

MACK WILL USE THREE PITCHERS IN REMAINING GAMES OF THE YEAR

ATHLETICS TO LEAVE NEW YORK FOR CHICAGO SUNDAY NIGHT

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—To Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, the world's series is "just a set of games between two good ball clubs."

The 67-year-old pilot said today he had not "even given the coming series with the Chicago Cubs much thought yet."

"I'm not in a position to say anything about the series," Mack said. "I don't know the Cubs.

"To me it's just a set of games between two good ball clubs. In fact, I haven't given it much thought yet; I've been so busy with other things. But I'm going to begin thinking about it soon, now."

The Athletics had their first workout yesterday since Sunday in Boston, rain having kept them idle since their return home. The diamond was still too soft for infield work, but every member of the team jogged around the fringe of Shibe Park and unlimbered their throwing arms, while the pitchers took turns at burning them in from the mound.

Grove, Walberg, Earnshaw, Ehmke, Shores and Rommel declared after the practice that they were fit and ready to show their speed and curves to the Chicago bat swingers. Manager Mack said he probably would use three pitchers in each of the games in New York Saturday and Sunday in order to give them a real workout for the series.

The team will leave for Chicago Sunday night.

MISS COLLETT AND MRS. PRESSLER TO PLAY FOR TITLE

an eagle two on the ninth. She propelled her drive 200 yards over the trap-stretched fairway to within four feet of the cup and sank her first putt. The champion's tee shot found a trap and she required a par four.

Match Squared on 12th.

Miss Collett won her first hole on the 424-yard tenth with a birdie four and was only one down. She was on in two and in with two putts. Mrs. Hill was short with her approach, got on with her third and missed a six-foot putt which would have squared the hole. Mrs. Hill sank a 25-foot putt to gain a half on the eleventh hole. Apparently lost because of another short approach, she made up for it by sinking her long downhill putt for a par four. Glenna was on in two and in for a four. Mrs. Hill was wild all the way on the 550-yard twelfth and Glenna squared the match for the first time since the second hole. She got a birdie five to Mrs. Hill's six.

Ends Match on Sixteenth.

Miss Collett went one up on the short thirteenth with a par 3. Mrs. Hill drove into a trap, dubbed her out and took a four. A perfect stymie forced Mrs. Hill to halve the 14th with a six, one over par. Glenna lost a stroke when her drive landed in a trap, but her first putt stymied Mrs. Hill and forced her to take three putts. Miss Collett took the 15th with a four and was two up.

Miss Collett ended the battle on the sixteenth green by snatching a birdie four to Mrs. Hill's par five.

Pressler-Wall Match.

The match between Bernice Wall of Oshkosh, Wis., and Mrs. Leona Pressler of Los Angeles was all square at the end of the first three holes. Both took par fours on No. 1 after taking three to get on. Miss Wall won the second with a birdie four as Mrs. Pressler took a five. Mrs. Pressler took the short hole 3 with a par three as Miss Wall missed a short putt for a half.

Each took a five for the fourth and again on the fifth. Mrs. Pressler went one up at the end of the sixth with a five after Miss Wall missed a five-foot putt to take a 6.

Mrs. Pressler was two up on Miss Wall at the end of the first nine. She missed a chance to win No. 7 when a three-foot putt rolled by the cup after both were on in threes. They halved the seventh in fives. A par four gave Mrs. Pressler the eighth hole while Miss Wall was taking five. Mrs. Pressler needed only one putt.

The short ninth was halved in birdie threes. Miss Wall took two to get on but needed only one putt.

On the tenth Mrs. Pressler drove her second over the green into a trap and muffed two shots trying to get out. She conceded the hole to Miss Wall who had a five against Mrs. Pressler's approximate seven. Mrs. Pressler was 1 up.

Miss Wall drove straight into a bunker on the eleventh, while Mrs. Pressler was straight down. She got on in two while Miss Wall needed four to reach the green. Mrs. Pressler took the hole with a par four while Miss Wall needed six. Mrs. Pressler two up.

On the twelfth each took a five after getting on in three.

Driving into the wind on No. 13, Mrs. Pressler landed in a bunker while Miss Wall's drive was an 20 feet from the flag. Mrs. Pressler pitched over the green and her approach rolled into the bunker again. She conceded the hole and was one up.

On the fifteenth Mrs. Pressler outdrove Miss Wall 25 yards. Miss Wall was 30 yards short with her second. Mrs. Pressler put her second on 12 feet from the cup. Mrs. Pressler missed an eagle by an inch. Miss Wall topped her pitch and her approach putt was four feet over. She conceded Mrs. Pressler a par four to her own six, making her two down again.

However, Ty might disguise himself as a business manager at the same time being manager de facto.

Of course by the time this gets into print Dame Rumor will have offered the job of managing the Yankees to Tyrus Raymond Cobb. She would.

McCarthy Cites Experience of His Players; Mack Points Out Cubs Are Strangers to Him

The Post-Dispatch presents herewith the fourth articles in the series by the managers of the rival clubs in the coming world series, Joe McCarthy of the Chicago Cubs and Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics. After analyzing their respective teams and outlining their prospects, the two pilots will describe the championship games.

By Joe McCarthy,

Manager of the Chicago Cubs.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 4.

IT is about time, I suppose, for the manager of a ball club that is about to engage in a world's series to get about the business of discussing that set of games.

The Cubs, as representatives of the National League, will enter into battle with the Athletics with plenty of confidence and possessed of something that the Athletics haven't. I refer now to actual experience in world's series play.

McCARTHY.

Two of the very important parts of the Cubs' baseball machine, Hornsby and Cuyler have been through world's series play, and were winning players on winning ball clubs. Wilson has had his world's series' experience, though Hack at the time was not the finished ball player he is now. McMillan sat in on a world's series, too, and Art Nehf was a pitching hero of at least one.

Now, I don't regard the Cubs, as constituted at present, as an aggregation that scares very easily, under any circumstances. They have proved their ownership of an adequate amount of fight.

Nevertheless, there is a tendency to regard a world's series as something of infinitely more importance than any set of ball games in the ordinary run of the season. If this be true, then there is certainly no harm in having the steadying influence of such players as Hornsby and Cuyler around, when the fight is at its thickest. That is one item that gives the Cubs an edge over the Athletics.

It is one of the laws of baseball that in any short series, pitching is the measure of success.

Cubs Like Lefthanders.

THE Athletics have four pitchers who have earned the respect of their own league's batsman, and without any attempt to rate them according to our estimation of their talents, they are Grove, Walberg, Earnshaw and Quinn.

If Connie Mack's calculations take in other pitchers than these four, save for relief duty, no one has heard about it.

Grove and Walberg are left-handers. They may be better left-handers than any who pitch in the National League, and I hope to be pardoned for making the statement that they'll have to be. Left-handers haven't fared very well against the Cubs this season.

Earnshaw is the pitcher who has been given more thought than any of the others the Athletics intend to send against us. We look for a lot of Earnshaw in this series and hope that he sees a lot of Cubs.

Quinn is a spitball pitcher. He has to be figured for the reason that Grimes, another spitball pitcher, has been troublesome to the Cubs all season long. However, Quinn is not exactly a Grimes.

At the present I can discuss the Cub pitchers only in a general way.

First of all, let me say that they have more than served the purpose of carrying the Cubs through a league race that was featured, if featured at all, by the terrific hitting of practically all the clubs. And I think that the records will show the Cubs' pitchers have turned in more than their share of the really great games in the National League this season.

I have the expected respect for the prowess of some of the hitters on the Athletics' squad, but I doubt if they are going to prove any tougher to handle than some of the National League hitters have been. The proof that the Cub pitchers were able to get through this attacking strength of the whole league, is found in the figures that represent the standing of the clubs.

We will enter into the world's series, not with four pitchers ready for duty, but with seven of them. If the need arises for all seven, then they'll be used. If it is possible to get by with three, that will suit me. Varying conditions will decide my starting pitcher, and since there are some of the regulars who aren't liable to crack under work, I see no reason why the schedule arrangement of the series will not give the Athletics the opportunity of facing very frequently, whichever one of the Cub hurlers who happens to show signs of annoying them.

Most of the hitting strength of the Athletics is right hand, and most of the pitching that the Athletics will face in the series will be right-hand pitching. Unless the observers have been all wrong, much of the pitching strength of the Athletics is of the left-hand variety, and the Cubs are able to marshal almost a solid wall of right-hand hitters against that.

With Malone, the premier strikeout pitcher of his league, Root, Blake, Bush, Carlson, Nehf and Cvengros available for the series, the Cubs are in position to replace a starting pitcher, if the need arises, with another, who is as much a "regular" as the man who has left the box. That, as I see it, is an advantage that the Athletics cannot claim.

By Connie Mack.

Manager of the Athletics since 1901 and Seven-Time Pennant Winner.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.

AS I already have presented in detail my impressions of the Athletic players who will bear the American League colors in the next world series, the time has come, as the walrus put it, to speak of the other things. Of the Cubs, for instance.

I want to start by saying that I have the greatest respect and admiration for Joe McCarthy, the field leader and play director of the National League champions. I knew Mr. McCarthy when he was the successful pilot of the Louisville team.

MACK.

You must know that Joe's triumph in the National League reflects credit on Philadelphia, for he was born in Germantown and learned his baseball playing with independent teams on Philadelphia lots.

Nobody has to put forward a brief for the Cubs. They are a mighty baseball ensemble. They couldn't be otherwise or they would not have won the National League pennant. They are strong in all departments and are commanded by an able and widewake leader who will get all the power out of them they possess.

There are a lot of players on the Cub team I have never seen in action. For some years the Cubs have been training in California while we were doing our work in Florida, so there have been no chances in recent years for us to hook up in exhibition games.

A Tribute to Hornsby.

I HAVE never seen Pitchers Bush, Blake or Malone, Outfielder Cuyler, Catcher Hartnett; Infielder English or First Baseman Tolson. I think I have seen all the rest at some time. One of the Cub players was with the Athletics a short time. I refer to Charley Grimm, their regular first baseman.

Grimm was with me a short time in 1916 and 1917, very lean seasons for the Athletics. He was a St. Louis sandlotter and I gave him a trial. He went to the minors and then came back to make good with the Pirates and Cubs.

Hornsby I have seen often. We trained in Lake Charles, La., for several springs some years ago and always played a long series of exhibition games with the Cardinals. I admire the skill of Hornsby very much. He is one of the greatest of players.

I saw McMillan when he was with the Red Sox and have glimpsed Hack Wilson when he was with the Giants. Riggs Stephenson played many a game with Cleveland in our league and I know him well. I have also seen Pitchers Carlson and Root and Catchers Taylor and Gonzales in action.

I have every respect for the Cubs. They made a great finish.

They came down the home stretch virtually tied and then they commenced to get out in front and the lead lengthened day by day until they won the pennant with ease.

Meeting a strong team in a world series is different from tackling one of your powerful adversaries in your own league. You know your own clubs but you are somewhat in the dark about the team in another loop.

Says Scouting Is Over-Valued.

THERE is no doubt that both the Athletics and Cubs have assigned scouts to watch the style of play of their opponents and the manners of individual players.

It is my belief, though, that the value of scouting is exaggerated. You have to have some information about your rivals in your possession, but, after all, the real battle is on the playing field. After one or two games you get a good line on your opponents and act accordingly. I prefer to wait and size up opponents against our own pitching.

There is no doubt that our pitchers are a different sort from anything the Cubs have faced during their regular season. By saying this, I don't want anyone to have the impression that I feel that the National League has no mighty flingers. I mean that the Cubs are going up against a type of pitching they have never faced before.

It is also true that our hitters will be facing a different sort of pitching than they met in our regular season. This is something for us to consider. It is up to us to fathom how our batsmen can work best against the Cub pitchers.

Summed up, two powerful young teams are going to vie with each other in the coming world series and I believe it is going to result in baseball at its best.

There is sure to be plenty of color in it. Both Philadelphia and Chicago have been denied a world series for many years and no doubt either city could have sold 100,000 tickets had it the capacity.

Two Prep League Teams to Be in Action Tomorrow

By Robert W. Herr.

Prep League followers will have the opportunity to see two championship elevens in action tomorrow, when Country Day School and Western Military Academy, co-winners of the league football title in 1928, engage in their first practice games of the season. Western will be host to Roosevelt of the City League in a contest to be played at Alton at 10 a. m., while Country Day will take on the Principia squad at Codasco's field at 2 p. m. While neither Roosevelt or Principia have played any games thus far, both schools are reported to have strong combinations and should furnish stiff opposition for the Prep League entries.

Codasco Crippled by Injuries.

At present, Country Day's chances for a season as successful as that of last year are not very bright, with injuries taking a heavy toll of the squad's best men. Busch, star back, and Stolzenbach, lineman, are out for the season, while D. Meyer, guard; H. Meier, center; Schlapp, a veteran end; Morgan, an experienced fullback and letter man; Florin, a likely looking tackle, and Captain Tapper, quarterback, will be unavailable for indeterminate periods.

Three Letter Men at Western.

Though he has but three letter men available, Coach Drude at Western has a likely looking outfit, with a reasonably heavy line and a fast and heavy backfield. Johnson, a tackle, is the only line veteran who will face the Roosevelt eleven, while Captain Healey, fullback, and Silva, who may be in condition for tomorrow's encounter, constitute the experienced backs.

Bruno and Heffinger, reserve linemen of last season will start the Roosevelt game at the ends, while Byram and Johnson will handle the tackle posts. Commins and Costa are to fill the guard positions, and Stough will pass the pigskin from center. The backfield will include Smith, quarterback; Nehaus and Altman or Silva, halfbacks, and Captain Healey, fullback.

Fisher With Buffalo Four Years.

George Fisher, outfielder bought by the Giants from Buffalo, has been with the Bisons four seasons and before that was with Minneapolis. He was one of the leading homerun hitters this year.

Made $10,000 On Walsh.

Los Angeles made $10,000 on the sale of Pitcher Augie Walsh to the Cubs. He was bought from the Phils a year ago for $10,000 and turned over to the Cubs this fall for $20,000.

Class C Hurler Brings Large Price.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 4.—Athletics and professional forces at the University of Missouri today remained in a deadlock over the question of whether the faculty or Big Six conference rules should determine the eligibility of Tiger football players. Under the rule laid down by the faculty, three men, J. M. Gladden, regular right end, of Turley, Ok.; Bernard Schaff, regular halfback, St. Joseph, and Paul Marvin, reserve tackle, of Kingman, Kan., are ineligible. The conference rule would permit them to play.

Repeated meeting of the Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics composed of faculty members, alumni and students have failed to solve the problem. Today subcommittees of the governing athletic body and the Committee of Deans were scheduled to meet, but the Deans had not yet made their selection of representatives at the joint conference.

Faculty Rule Attracted.

Alumni, student and athletic department members of the Athletic Committee hold that the faculty rule is null and void, arguing that the University Board of Curators has empowered the athletic committee as the judicial body in such cases and their duty is to administer the conference rulings. Dr. Albert K. Heckel, dean of men, countered today with the assertion that should the affair come to a showdown he is empowered to suspend from school the players of doubtful eligibility.

The faculty ruling says: "No student who is on probation for any reason shall be allowed to participate in any extra-curricular activities." The faculty classes competition in intercollegiate athletics as extra-curricular activity, but C. L. Brewer, athletic director says the rule doesn't apply to Tiger football players.

All three of the Tiger players under fire are on scholastic probation, but the conference rule holds them eligible if they have passed in 27 hours of work during the last year, which all three have done.

With Dr. Stratton D. Brooks, president of the university, out of town for the week-end to attend a meeting of the Board of Curators in Kansas City, the fight was regarded as at a standstill today.

Coach Henry Opposes Rule.

Coach Gwynn Henry's position in the mixup is that it is an injustice to him to declare some of his regulars ineligible now on a rule which has been disregarded for more than a year. Last fall, with one delay following another, three men, who were on scholastic probation, played all season, including Ray Smith, veteran center of Tulsa, Ok.

Dean Heckel today compared the situation at Missouri with similar ones in the Big Ten Conference, pointing out that in several cases, including Wisconsin, faculty rules were more stringent than conference regulations. He intimated that Missouri University athletic heads were satisfied with the faculty rule when it eliminated second-rate players, but that declaring a star football player ineligible was quite a more difficult matter.

Dr. Heckel said that while it was an excellent plan for alumni and students to have representatives on the Athletic Committee, the faculty should have full control of the situation.

Dr. Heckel announced that Harold Peck, St. Louis sophomore center, had been taken off the list of those on scholastic probation, automatically making him eligible for competition.

The loss of Schaff and Gladden would deprive Coach Henry of four regulars, for early season games at least, with both Kern Reese, 212-pound fullback of Mountain Grove, and Clyde Hudgens, regular guard, of Quapaw, Ok., on the hospital list.

MISSOURI VALLEY TO PLAY CULVER-STOCKTON IN NEW STADIUM

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MARSHALL, Mo., Oct. 4.—The Gregg-Mitchell field stadium at Missouri Valley College in Marshall has been finished as far as construction work is concerned, and numbers are nowhere are now being painted on the reserve seats. The big new stand will be ready for fans of Marshall and contiguous territory, when the strong Culver-Stockton College Wildcats of Canton come here Friday, Oct. 18, to tackle the Vikings. This will be the first conference game for Missouri Valley and is expected to draw a large gathering.

Announcement was made here today that the game between Missouri Valley and Wentworth Military Academy of Lexington, a member of the Missouri State Conference will be played at Lexington tomorrow afternoon, instead of today, as originally arranged.

The change gave Coach Henri Godfrey a chance to work some more on his cripples. At that, however, the Valley mentor will not be able to use Ashford, one of his letter men, because of a bad knee. The Viking will be permitted to nurse his injury until the opening of the season here, Oct. 18, with Culver-Stockton.

Mack Never Overlooks Tips From Fans About Promising Players, Ty Cobb Declares

By Ty Cobb.

Chapter XI.

IT IS only when one has the privilege of coming in more or less intimate contact with Connie Mack that he appreciates what a fine man he is. The Athletics' manager is entirely different from what I expected to find him.

I had an idea that Mack went to his home or hotel after the ball game and his. Not because he was a recluse, but because he appeared to have that retiring disposition which made him avoid the association of his players and those who invariably hang around a ball club.

TY COBB.

What was my surprise to find that Connie is an ardent devotee of golf, can sit in at a bridge table, and enjoys an evening's conversation on subjects far removed from baseball.

I learned, too, that Mack is a forceful and entertaining speaker. He says what he has to say without apparent embarrassment and he doesn't say the wrong thing.

In other words I found Mack to be the man about town enjoying life pretty much as any other business or professional man. He leaves his baseball cares at the park and lives a clean, normal life. Mack is the same kindly and generous man off the ball field that he is when he is directing his ball club.

Praises Young Players.

ONE evening when I was with the Athletics, we were boarding a train after playing an exhibition game in a minor league city. A rookie battery had worked.

"That was a nice game you pitched, my boy," Mack remarked to the kid moundsman as he passed by him in our Pullman. "And you did a good job behind the plate, too," added the veteran manager as the catcher followed along in the wake of the pitcher.

I don't cite that as an unusual case. Other managers compliment their young players and try to encourage them. But there was a day when I could not imagine the retiring manager of the A's "making small talk" with rookies on his team.

Mack makes one feel as if he enjoyed private conversations on baseball. I feel certain that at times he must be bored to death listening to some fan's chatter, but he never seems to show it.

The players on his club don't see their boss at all times when they are in a hotel on the road, but let something happen that is of interest to him and it doesn't take him long to pop up, or else he soon finds out all about it.

Mack never overlooks a friendly tip about a player. I once heard a fan raving about an athlete with a minor league team. The A's manager listened attentively. Later I discovered that Mack knew all about the player and didn't think him worth car fare to the spring training camp—which it afterward developed he wasn't.

Could Cite Many Cases.

I could tell you about dozens of charitable acts by Mack. He never turns a deaf ear to the plea of a former ballplayer who is in trouble and actually is worthy of assistance. He seems to find pleasure in helping his fellow man who has met up with adversity.

Mack has another wonderful asset. It is the ability to recall faces, the incidents surrounding the first meeting with a person, and frequently the name of the person. That is a big help to a man in the public eye.

I know also that Mack has his own players in mind when they are away from the ball park. I am told about one athlete who for very good reasons, which had nothing to do with the game, wanted to get away from Philadelphia.

The player was a valuable member of the Athletics. But when he came to his boss and said he wanted to get away, Connie Mack let him go. This was done at a considerable financial sacrifice, too.

It is off the ball field, and far away from Philadelphia, that Mack's grand triumph this year is making a great number of his friends and admirers most happy.

Tomorrow: Mack, the Builder of Baseball Machines.

M'GURK DEFEATS DRY CREEK IN MADISON RACE

McGurk, the Montana-owned grey hound, which captured a series of inter-city championship matches last year on his visits to the Madison, Chicago and Milwaukee courses, made up for his failures in three recent Madison engagements when he captured the futurity feature of last night's card, covering the distance in the fast time of 0:28 3-5 to win by a length over Dry Creek, the Scheben Kennel speed king, which went to the post an odds-on favorite.

The handicap of an outside position at the start of the race proved too much for Dry Creek, whose only other defeat in his last 10 races was recorded under similar conditions. The Scheben greyhound had to run a bit wide at the first turn to escape possible interference, while McGurk, favored by an inside starting box, took the lead away from Horgento and proceeded to increase his advantage through the backstretch.

Dry Creek made up a bit of ground as they swung into the far turn and though he gained steadily the rest of the way he started his drive too late. Tht Bison, finishing strongly, nosed Hargento out of third place. McGurk's refund was $14.

Bootlegger, the Montana Derby winner, will try for his third conquest of the present Madison meeting in competition with such crack sprinters as Copa De Ora, Solace, Professor and Mickey Concern in tonight's futurity feature, tenth on the program. Solace and Mickey Concern scored impressive futurity triumphs in their last starts, both covering the course in 0:29 flat.

The fifth race, at three-eighths of a mile, promises to furnish a close scrimmage with Hilcourt's Wonder, Lord Burr, Myrl Pesek and Wednesday, all clever routers and fast-finishers, engaging Moving Trigger, Silver Spoon, White Lawn and Golden Sheen. In a recent engagement at this trying distance the diminutive Myrl Pesek turned in a near-record performance of 40 seconds flat.

A third distinctive attraction brings the veterans Hardmore and Spalding Brutus against such juvenile stars as Glengosk Rebel, Glendonnell Abu, Kempton and Spirit J. in a futurity sprint carded as the eighth event.

Ragabald had speed from the start, saved ground all the way and after heading Black Agate, held sway to the end. Black Agate rushed into the lead directly after the start, lost ground racing wide, but kept prominent, held on well. Burning Glass began slowly, but gained steadily and closed a wide gap. Sir Barley raced will to the stretch, lost much ground racing wide and tired. Botch finished fast. Wentz tired.

*Field.

Angel Bright, well ridden, liked the going, and overtaking Lady Emblem, continued well under strong pressure, outlasting Morning Beams. Latter, lucky to find racing room on inside in stretch, gained much ground and got up to almost wear down the winner at the end. Lady Emblem had most early speed, but went wide throughout and tired badly in the drive. Lady Seth was a keen factor most of the way, but also tired when pressed hard in stretch. Boomer Hills worked his way up slowly.

$2.00 mutuels paid: Angel Bright, win $6.12, place $4.38, show $3.62; Morning Beams, place $11.12, show $5.68; Lady Emblem, show $4.80.

THIRD RACE—$800, claiming, the Grimm-Gorley Florists, 3-year-olds and up, mile and one-eighth—Start good, won easily, place driving. Went to post at 3:15; at post 1 minute. *Field.

Russell Gardner was kept prominent from start and worked his way up gradually on inside, wore down Mystery Ballot entering the stretch and drew away. Mystery Ballot raced into a long early lead, but tired after the first seven-eighths and was no match for winner. War Dots, always a forward contender, held on well in the final drive. Sly Polly raced restrained to the stretch and did not respond. Try Again was outrun, as was Blind Hills. Our Joan had early speed but quit badly.

$2 mutuels paid: Russell Gardner, win, $8.38; place, $4.82; show, $3.14. Mystery Ballot, place, $6.40; show, $3.26. War Dots, show, $2.98.

FOURTH RACE—$800, claiming, Barney's Army Store, 3-year-olds and up, six furlongs—Start good, won driving, place same. Went to post at 3:45; at post 1 minute. Winner, b. g., 4, by Seth—Maud Bacon. Trainer, C. R. Anderson. Time, :24 4-5, :49 1-5, 1:14 4-5. Value to winners, $650, $119.50, $63.

Senator Seth, confidently handled, was allowed to settle in his best strides before undertaking to catch leaders, moved up fast on inside entering stretch, wore down and outfinished Harass. Latter had speed from the start, and set a good pace, but came wide entering the stretch, was no match for winner and barely outlasted Simon Kenton. Latter raced on the outside, forced the pace and held on strongly under pressure. Paragraph had no mishaps and could not keep up. Tempton and Eloise were outrun.

$2 mutuels paid: Senator Seth, win $5.64, place $3.82, show $3.04; Harass, place $8.52, show $4.76; Simon Kenton, show $3.70.

Carbondale and Marion to Open Big 7 Schedule

BENTON, Ill., Oct. 4.—The Big Seven High School Conference will formally open its 1929 grid season tomorrow with Marion playing at Carbondale in the only conference game. Three other conference teams will play but in non-conference affairs.

The game at Carbondale is likely to be a close struggle as there is no great difference in the strength of the contenders. Previous to the games of last Saturday, Carbondale was widely chosen as probable honer winners in the conference race now starting, while the Marion team was not given serious consideration. But the stinging defeat received last Saturday by the Carbondale squad and at the hands of the Anna-Jonesboro team of the Egyptian circuit, has considerably dimmed the chances of Coach Gadske's proteges and Marion stock simultaneously rose through its clean-cut 20 to 0 victory over McLeansboro.

Of the other games in which conference teams of this circuit will participate, the Urbana-Benton exhibition here will perhaps be the most important. Urbana has proved to be one of the strongest teams of the central part of the State, while Benton, as last year's champion squad of the Big Seven loop, is reckoned as one of the best in the south end of the commonwealth.

DuQuoin is to play at Murphysboro tomorrow and while the Red Devils have not been considered as a flag winning combination in the Beg Seven marathon, this reconstructed squad showed through its decisive victory over Elkville last Saturday that it has considerable strength and will be favored over DuQuoin.

Olney High will play at Herrin. Vienna at Hurst-Bush, Zeigler at Carterville, Christopher at Anna and Eldorado at McLeansboro, in other week-end games in this section.

CHICAGO U CAPTAIN ONCE TEAM'S MASCOT

CHICAGO.—John Morrick Kelly is almost as much a veteran on the Midway as Coach A. A. Stagg. The Chicago captain this season started his football career by climbing over the fences so often at the University of Chicago that he was given a job chasing balls to be rid of the nuisance of putting him out.

Then he became mascot and was such a favorite of Pat Page that he just naturally inherited that nickname.

Pat began starring with the St. Ignatius team and then entered the university. All in all he has been around the Maroon teams for 14 years and knows Stagg's 'system' fairly well.

WISCONSIN SHOULD NOT BE CLASSED AS FAVORITE COACH SAYS

MADISON, Wis.—Glenn Thistlethwaite thinks the experts are unkind to him in predicting the Wisconsin team will have a big season. He asks:

"Why are the sports experts naming Wisconsin as one of the favorites when we have less veteran letter men returning than any of the strong teams in the conference? Last year we had 36 good men and used all of them in the Notre Dame game and had them ready to use at all other times. This year the opposite condition prevails. We have only one line-up."

Utah Plans to Repeat.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SALT LAKE CITY. — With 13 veteran warriors returning to the tribal folds and a formidable gathering of last year's frosh, Coach Ike Armstrong's Utah University Redskins are likely to run the gamut of 1929 Rock Mountain Conference football unscathed, repeating their conquest of last year. His backfield and line composed entirely of lettermen with one exception, Coach Armstrong's big assignment is to find a man that can kick and pass with the skill of Pete Couch, last year's star. Summerhays is the leading candidate for the job.

Southern Teams Open Campaign With Title Tilts

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Oct. 4.—Six Southern conference football struggles are on tomorrow's program. As a preliminary to the big show, North Carolina State and Washington and Lee inaugurate the festivities at Raleigh this afternoon.

The Alabama-Mississippi clash at Tuscaloosa stands out as the high spot of tomorrow's menu.

Campbell of Alabama, star halfback and master of the spin play, is out with a fractured leg. Suther, an outstanding ball carrier, will be on the shelf with a shoulder injury.

Virginia Military Institute will meet Florida at Tampa; North Carolina will show its stable of brilliant backs against Maryland at College Park; South Carolina will entertain Virginia at Columbia and Auburn visits Clemson.

Georgia Tech, making its 1929 debut, plays the Mississippi Aggies at Atlanta.

The season's first intersectional engagement is scheduled at Durham, N. C., where Duke will dedicate a new stadium and entertain Pittsburg.

The other conference teams will go up against outside competition. Tulane plays Texas A. and M., at New Orleans, and Tennessee meets Chattanooga. Georgia, which took a licking from Oglethorpe last week, meets Furman.

Rube Benton Has Big Year.

Rube Benton, nearly 44 years old, is one of the leading pitchers of the American Association. He pitches for Minneapolis and is in better form than in any season in the last six years.

MAJOR EASTERN TEAMS FAVORED TO WIN GAMES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—They'll be firing football shells all over the Atlantic seaboard tomorrow but the real victory will lie with the schedule makers just as it did last Saturday.

There is scarcely a single game in which the issue appears in doubt. For the most part the battles will be just what they were intended to be—a means by which the larger colleges may smooth off the rough corners in preparation for important games to come.

The former big three open their season. Yale meets Vermont, a 77-0 victim of New York University last week. Harvard plays Bates and Princeton tangles with Amherst. Lafayette starts off as usual with Muhlenberg.

Pennsylvania entertains Swarthmore. Columbia plays Union. Cornell has a Niagara team that held Penn State to a 16-0 count and Dartmouth's steam roller is ready to make mince meat of Hobart.

Army takes on Gettysburg without anxiety and Navy has done no worrying over the William and Mary contest with the Notre Dame game only another week away. New York University has little hope of having to exert itself against West Virginia Wesleyan at the Polo Grounds.

Penn State should get no more than a workout against Lebanon Valley. While Pittsburg is meeting Duke at Durham, N. C., Carnegie Tech will do the entertaining in the Steel City, meeting Thiel. Washington and Jefferson meets another Ohio school in Ashland.

West Virginia will need to show improvement to down Elmer Layden's Duquesne team. Davis and Elkins, which conquered West Virginia, clashes with St. Louis at St. Louis. Georgetown is meeting a comparatively dangerous foe in Western Maryland as is Bucknell in Albright.

ILLINI TO SHOW NEW OFFENSIVE IN KANSAS GAME

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Bob Zuppke, maestro of University of Illinois football, has schemed something new in the way of offense with which to confound Illini gridiron adversaries, and the University of Kansas will get the first look at it Saturday in the initial game of the Illinois schedule.

Zuppke will not abandon the wing back offensive system which served in the drives that brought Big Ten championships in 1927 and 1928, but has evolved what he calls the "fade" formation, which he believes will add to the troubles of his opponents. He has given no explanation of the formation, other than that it is so named because one backfield man either is fading out of the picture, or is easing in, just as the play gets underway. He uses an unbalanced line in loose formation with the backfield maneuver, with the backs lined up behind the short side of the forward wall.

Scouts from the camps of Big Ten teams, the Army and other teams which encounter the Illini this fall, will watch with interest the unfolding of the new plan.

Work on eight other Big Ten fronts today was reduced to smoothing out formations and defensive plans for use in Saturday's games. At Northwestern, however, Coach Hanley stuck to his promise to order scrimmage until the eve of the Wildcat opening card with Butler and Cornell College of Iowa.

Coach Harry Kipke at Michigan planned no more scrimmage, but was not yet settled on his starting backfield lineup for the Michigan State College game. The battle between Simrall and Holland for the signal calling job, and a fight between Jack Wheeler and Alvin Dahlem for one halfback post, kept Kipke from naming a starting quartet until Friday at the earliest.

Wisconsin and Indiana, down for unusually tough early season opposition in Colgate and Notre Dame, continued to work at top speed, with improvement of their attacks being stressed. Purdue, facing the Kansas Aggies under the direction of Bo McMillan, spent another day on development of its aerial offense, while Iowa and Minnesota sought to improve their defenses against the overhead type of attack.

Season to Close Earlier in 1930, Barnard States

BASEBALL won't stretch so wearily into the football season next year, President E. S. Barnard of the American League, told the Post-Dispatch yesterday.

"The two league presidents decide the schedule," he explained, "and the schedule for 1930 will be arranged so that the season will end on the last Sunday in September. The extra week was tacked on this year against the better judgment of some of us. The season could have been shortened by arranging a few double-headers for the Athletics, the only team which can't play Sunday ball at home, and Connie Mack had agreed to the double-headers."

Mr. Barnard indicated that he considered the long drawn out schedule as a possible factor in the lack of interest in the league games the last two weeks.

Billikens Will Do Well to Hold Davis-Elkins to a Low Score, Knute Rockne Writes

By Knute Rockne,
Member, All America Football Board.
(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)
(Copyright, 1929.)

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 4.—The football season gets under way in earnest this week with all teams in this section playing so called "preparation" games. These games as a rule serve several purposes. First of all they give a coach an idea as to how his team responds under strict game conditions. They also give a coach an idea of his strength and weaknesses. In recent years these preparation contests have become much harder. Every now and then a so-called minor college eleven upsets a big university team. But as a rule unless the large university team is playing a double-header these preparation games result largely according to form.

ROCKNE

There are two games in the Middle West that stand out. These are the Indiana-Notre Dame game at Bloomington and the Southern Methodist University-Nebraska game at Lincoln. These two games stand out because they look fairly even. No doubt in both games a lot of football will be played for this time of the year. Although Indiana has lost Bennett, Page expects his eleven to be just as good if not better than last year when it beat Michigan and Northwestern. In the game against Wabash last week, Indiana showed lots of potentiality, using a few simple plays, just enough to win the game and to put the pressure on the blocking abilities of the Indiana line. It will be Notre Dame's first game.

The Notre Dame team, in scrimmage with the freshmen, so far has looked better than a year ago and so I don't look for the Hoosiers to catch the Irish napping in any way. I pick Southern Methodist to beat Nebraska by a close score. Coach Bible always had the Indian sign on Southern Methodist when coaching at Texas A. and M. but he has not been at Nebraska long enough to get the Cornhuskers ready.

Southern Methodist University will fill the air with lateral passes and forward passes of every conceivable kind and no doubt the people of Lincoln will witness a thrilling contest.

Illinois Should Win.

Illinois, which plays Kansas at Champaign, will find the Jayhawkers better than in past years but Zuppke's veteran crew should win just about as it pleases. Zuppke will no doubt keep Yunuscus, star sophomore back, under cover. Here is a young back who will make football history this fall and I look for him to start functioning on all cylinders about Oct. 26, when Illinois plays Michigan.

Michigan State, coached by Jimmy Crowley, one of the "four horsemen," plays Michigan in a game which should be an easy victory for Harry Kipke's boys. Crowley had no spring practice at Michigan State and besides he has several line coaches who have been versed in other systems. I doubt very much that this combination will bring the desired results.

Purdue may find Kansas Aggies a rugged customer, but reserve strength in the backfield should put the game over for the Boilermakers. In Risk, Purvis and Tunevitch, Jimmy Phelan has a fine sophomore backfield very capable of re-enforcing the Purdue attack whenever "Pest" Welch, Harmison and the other seniors show signs of tiring.

Wisconsin should not have a great deal of difficulty with Colgate. A newspaper friend of mine who made all the Big Ten camps said that the one place where they were "glutted" with material was at Wisconsin. Thistlethwaite's biggest job up there will be to pick a first team without causing an investigation by Wisconsin Legislature.

Munn to Get Real Tryout.

Coe College, which plays Spears' Minnesota team in the opener at Minneapolis, has a good college team. This game should enable Spears to decide whether or not, Munn, 210-pound fullback, will do in that position so he can put Nagurski into the line. This seems to be Spears' hardest problem this year. If Munn can handle the job at fullback, Minnesota is all set. But if he cannot, Nagurski will have to go back there and then the Minnesota line situation becomes a problem.

Butler will give Northwestern enough pressure to bring Dick Hanley's team along and Wittenberg will do the same for Ohio State. Monmouth should not cause Iowa any concern, nor will Beloit be strong enough to upset Mr. Stagg's Maroons.

In the Missouri Valley and the Big Six there will be no key games outside of the Drake-Oklahoma Aggie game and the Grinnell-Iowa tussle. Drake should take the Oklahoma Aggies handily as the Aggies will have an entirely new coaching system. Drake hopes to have a great team this year and this game should give indications to the fans as to whether or not this prediction will hold true. Iowa State should win from Grinnnell but the Grinnell team has a habit of playying a little over its head in this annual contest.

Billikens Have Big Job.

St. Louis University chews off a big bite in Davis-Elkins and I doubt very much whether Heartley Anderson's boys can do the trick. Davis-Elkins, with a victory over West Virginia last Saturday, showed a powerful veteran team and St. Louis will do well to hold them to a close score.

Dayton University which held Detroit to a 7-0 score last year will not do as well this year, as Dayton lost a number of her last year's stars. Detroit should win by a comparatively safe margin in the game this Saturday.

Creighton gets under way with St. Mary's which should give some indications as to Chet Wynne's possibilities this year. Marquette should have no trouble with Lawrence if the advance stories from Marquette are to be believed.

The football season is under way with a bang now and the world series will not interfere particularly except in Chicago and Philadelphia.

Wray's COLUMN

It Won't Be Long.

DAN HOWLEY'S contract expires Sunday night — and what then?

There is no answer as yet—the Sphinx still is mute.

This can hardly be construed as favorable to Daniel Howley, who is manager No. 10 for the Browns in the past 20 years. One naturally thinks that management and man would have conferred, looking toward settling of any difficulties.

But apparently no understanding has been reached or sought.

"In due time the matter will be taken up," the palpitating world hears from the front offices of the Browns. Probably announcement will be forthcoming Sunday.

• • •

Bill Makes Himself the Goat

A Pittsburg paper prints a likeness of Killefer and in closing its discussion of the situation comments as follows:

"Now it's Howley's turn to pass out and you can make your own guess as to how long Killefer will be retained as his successor."

Bill has answered this question decisively: "I will not accept the position, if offered to me," he told the Post-Dispatch.

If we recall, they are the same words he replied when, after the "can" had been tied to the Great Hornsby, he was asked if he would be in a receptive mood if offered Hornsby's post. Bill made good on his refusal.

Funny about Bill. In neither case could he possibly do any good by a refusal.

And yet in both cases, it seems, he has been willing to offer himself up as a goat on the altar of—what?

Leaning Backward.

WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY'S alumni are moaning at the "bear stories" about its football team—too few candidates of class are trying for the eleven. They blame it on the institution's rigid adherence to eligibility ethics. They declare that a dozen or more of the country's great players today would be on Washington's squad but for lack of scholarships to take care of the men in question.

"We appreciate that eligibility observance is right," one alumnus remarked, "but we can't help feeling that the school is leaning backward in its attitude, in some respects. In a world where everybody is holding out inducements, Washington calls for a showdown on all football players. No free tuition, no free board and room, no "ghost jobs" and even legitimate ones may not be offered anyone as a lure. Other schools by hook or crook in same way take care of potential football stars who are in need of an education. Not Washington.

"I have been reliably informed that scholarships would have brought to Washington—rather than to the institutions they ultimately attended — the following stars of today: Pest Welch and Calloway, now of Purdue; Raskowski, now with Ohio State; Welch of Pittsburg, Lewis of Northwestern, the Flanagan brothers of Carnegie Tech, and others.

"Scholarships would have taken care of these men I have been told and a limited number of these is considered ethical in every institution. Even in Europe Oxford recognizes athletic merit by giving scholarships to athletes of other nations whose scholastic standing justified it. Why need Washington be so proud?"

• • •

Every School Uses "Bait."

Washington, in a world where many collegiate elevens are secretly or openly recruited, naturally suffers from its policy. But it is no worse off than in the past, and it has managed to get a fair share of honors.

It must be admitted, however, that if scholarships are considered ethical bait with which to tempt athletes, a little modification of the "holier than thou" attitude might result in the sprouting of a few world-beating tackles and backs.

Today a university is known by its football team. And if it expects to have packed class rooms and lecture halls it must first dazzle the youthful prep star with its athletic brilliancy.

Ebbetts Kayoes Testo

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Harry Ebbetts of Freeport, knocked out Nick Nesto of Troy, N. Y., in the ninth round of their battle in Madison Square Garden last night. In the semi-final between Sid Terris and Stanislaus Loayza, Loayza got the decision at the end of the 10 rounds. He got it because after chasing Terris rather futilely throughout the fight he managed to bloody his rival's nose and cut the inside of his mouth.

Four A. A. Players Sold.

Among the players to advance from the American Association are Roy Parmalee, pitcher of Toledo, to the Giants; Cooke and Chapman of St. Paul, to the Yankees, and Pete Joblonowski, pitcher, from Columbus to Cleveland.

HOMA AGGIES AND AKE OPEN VALLEY ID SEASON TONIGHT

sociated Press.

MOINES, Ia., Oct. 4.—One handicapped by the loss of the other by the loss of , Drake and the Okla- Aggies rested last night the call to open the Mis- Valley Conference football under the arc lights of the Stadium tonight.

Turner and Swarts of line remained in Still- with injuries while the Rifli fullback, Iverson, was in a hospital with influenza. Each eleven took light workouts, the Aggies limbering up in Kansas City.

Grinnell brushed up on its running attack for its battle with a state and Big Six rival, Iowa State at Ames Saturday.

Creighton went through a long scrimmage under the arc lights last night with Russ Sweeney, center, who has been out with a jaw infection, in the lineup. Heiland was tried at Burger's guard during scrimmage. Both Sweeney and Captain Rombaugh who has a wrenched knee, may see some action against St. Mary's College Saturday.

ROCHESTER CLUB EVENS "LITTLE" WORLD SERIES

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 4.—The combatants in the little world series rested today with the spoils of battle evenly divided. Not until tomorrow will the struggle for supremacy between Kansas City of the American Association and Rochester of the International League be renewed.

Perhaps there will be light exercises in Muehlebach Field for members of both teams today, but very likely the players will disport themselves in golf or gossip, as they mull over the circumstances of Kansas City's 4 to 3 triumph in the 10-inning opener and Rochester's 11 to 2 rout yesterday.

Two more days the teams are scheduled to play here—Saturday and Sunday—and then both squads entrain for Rochester and the remainder of the games necessary to decide the winner. Five victories are needed to assure the title, as this series is a nine-game affair.

To guess on the pitching selections for Saturday would be rash, as many things might happen to change the choice of either Manager Edward Harrison Zwilling of Kansas City or Billy Southworth of Rochester.

Three Kansas City hurlers were ineffective yesterday—Day, Murray and Thomas. Rochester had used only two pitchers in two games, although Carleton in yesterday's game was on the verge of being removed several times because of his wildness, Southworth said after the game. Sterling defensive work pulled him through safely.

The paid attendance yesterday, cut down by threatening weather, was 8985, with receipts of $14,527.

Total attendance for both games was 17,729, with total receipts of $31,712.80, of which the players get $19,328.11, the remainder going to club owners and the baseball commission.

Chastain Beats Atkinson

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Oct. 4.—Clyde Chastain, Springfield middleweight, last night scored a one-sided victory over Billy Atkinson of Summon, in a 10-round bout. Chastain won every round handily but was unable to knock out the rugged Kansan. Jimme Owens, Springfield, welterweight, whipped Ol Bray of Joplin in a 10-round semi-windup, winning eight of the rounds.

Guards and Ends Undecided For Washington's Opening Football Game, Tomorrow

By Henry L. Freund

The Washington University football eleven which takes the field tomorrow afternoon against Illinois College should know its signals. There's no doubt about that. Yesterday afternoon head coach Al Sharpe again devoted the major portion of the afternoon to signal work, using the freshmen against the varsity later in the work-out in a dummy scrimmage.

For the larger part of two hours the first and second string varsity teams raced up and down the field running through plays. Bert Springer barked out the signals for the first team and Clarence Ax led the seconds. After the first team had worked against the frosh, who used Illinois plays, Dr. Sharpe sent them to Francis Field for the first time this year and further signal work was done there while the seconds worked against the frosh.

There can be no hesitancy in stating that the Bears will have the most colorful team in the history of the school. The varsity players yesterday donned their new uniforms for the first time this year and made a flashy appearance. The suits are a flaming red, the entire uniforms, including the socks, trousers, jerseys and helmets being of this color. The suits have a dark green "W" on the front and on the back are large white numerals. The numbers are larger than those used in the past.

Two Positions Doubtful.

Jablonsky and Hornsby, who were shaken up in the short scrimmage on Wednesday, were both out for practice and reported no ill effects. Bert Constance, who also was roughly handled, missed the practice. Rawdon and Putney were two other absentees.

Two positions for tomorrow's game have not been definitely filled. The fight for right guard and right end have been closely contested all season but it appears that Bob Watson will have the call over Emmett Sean. The fight for the end position appears to be more of a toss-up and seems to rest between Kingsley Wienige and Humber Burford. Both boys are new to football. In practice yesterday first Wienige, then Burford, worked with the first string outfit.

The work on the new wooden grandstand has been entirely finished and the erection of the knockdown wooden bleachers in front of the stands has also been completed. The temporary bleachers are for the use of the students. The lighting system for the night games has been virtually finished as the reflectors need be placed only on one more pole.

Tentative arrangements have been made with a local radio station to broadcast the Bears' more important home games and it appears likely that the three big November games will be announced over the radio.

The game tomorrow is scheduled to begin at 2:30 p. m. There will be no reserved seats for the game, only general admission tickets. The price for the Illinois game will be $1.50 a ticket.

McKendree Plays Bradley Eleven In "Little 19"

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LEBANON, Ill., Oct. 4.—Coach Glen Filley's McKendree College Bear Cats will meet the powerful Bradley Indians in the opening conference game for both teams tomorrow at Peoria in what will probably be the most important game of the Little Nineteen. In the final conference game last year, the Indians met the Bear Cats to play off for the championship, with Bradley winning.

Coach Robertson of the Bradley eleven has a new team centered around three sophomores and a senior, and is further weakened by the loss of Campbell, all-conference center. The Bear Cats, however, practically have a veteran team with only two new men.

The tilt will mark the jubilee year of Coach Robertson, who has won five championships since going to Bradley.

Coach Filley is worried over the condition of two of his best men—"Spuds" Spudich, right halfback, and Ray Ragland, regular end. The latter probably will not start because of a bad ankle, while the former is suffering from an injured shin. It is also feared that Tucker, a guard, may be declared ineligible.

WILLIAMS, DAW AND TERRY WIN AMATEUR BOUTS

Woodrow Williams of the St. Louis A. C., George Daw, of the Pine Lawn A. C., and Edgar Terry, of the St. Louis A. C., were victors in the special bouts on the first amateur boxing program of the season at the South Broadway A. C. last night.

Williams won from Johnny Quirk, of the South Broadway A. C., Daw defeated Bob Forham, St. Louis A. C., and Terry won the decision over Carl Schaefer, South Broadway A. C. The best of the three was the Williams-Quirk battle, in which Williams piled up a lead on points in the first two rounds. In the second round Quirk went down for a nine-count only to come back and take the aggressive in the final round.

The Miles-Kidd special bout was called off, however, it was reported, Kidd sprained an ankle in training.

PRINCIPIA JUNIOR COLLEGE ELEVEN MEETS CLEVELAND, TOMORROW

The Principia Junior College football squad which opposes Cleveland High tomorrow contains only four regulars from last season. Coach George Kilburn, however, has nine players from the Principia Academy team as well as four new men who show promise.

A total of 44 candidates reported for the first practice on Sept. 18. The squad has been divided, a second team being formed under the direction of Coach Robert Fisher. Last year there were only 25 men in the entire Junior College squad.

The regulars returning are Joe Sicards and Harold Wilson, tackles, William Hewell, halfback, who hails from Hawaii, and Orman Chase, quarterback. The players who came up from the Academy "A" team are George Bailhorn and James Anderson, guards, Bert Spivy, center; Joe Gannon, fullback; Jackson Allen and Fred Mann, halfbacks, and Alvin Hicks and Russell Woodard, ends.

STATE FUNERAL FOR STRESEMANN SET FOR SUNDAY

CONDOLENCES FROM ALL OVER WORLD

Chancellor Curtius Temporarily Replaces Dead Leader in the German Cabinet.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 4.—An impressive state tribute has been arranged for the funeral of Dr. Gustav Stresemann, Reich Foreign Minister, who died of a heart attack early yesterday morning.

The statesman, who more than any other molded post-war Germany, will be buried in the small Luisenstaedtwösche Cemetery in the northern part of Berlin in accordance with wishes expressed in his will.

Funeral in Reichstag.

Saturday evening his body will be taken from his home and placed on a bier in the draped and darkened plenary session hall of the Reichstag, scene for years of Dr. Stresseman's political victories. Chancellor Mueller will deliver the funeral oration Sunday, after which the body will be removed to the front of the Reichstag Building where the public will view it. The public's part in the funeral ceremony will end at the cemetery gates, however, only a few personal friends, Government officials and co-workers remaining to witness the interment.

A number of Dr. Stresemann's favorite songs, including a hymn or two, will be sung at the grave. Whether the funeral procession will include a military parade will be left to President Von Hindenburg. Most other details of the funeral were arranged in accordance with wishes of Mrs. Stresemann and her two sons.

Messages of condolence poured into his home and at the government offices from all over the world.

The German press was almost unanimous in expressing the feeling that Germany had lost a patriot whose one aim in life was the welfare of his country, and whom it would be difficult to replace.

Only the Deutsche Zeitung, Nationalist organ, which always opposed him, said that one of the greatest dangers to Germany's future had been removed and that his death had come at the right moment because his policies were already visibly declining.

Temporary Successor Chosen.

The political situation precipitated by his death remains obscure. The opinion in some quarters is that a cabinet crisis cannot long be averted. Much depended upon President Von Hindenburg's attitude toward the task of composing the vastly divergent German political viewpoints.

President Von Hindenburg today appointed Dr. Julius Curtius, Minister of Economics, to be Foreign Minister ad interim. Dr. Curtius was Chancellor for a short time in 1927. He was a member of the German delegation to the recent Hague conference on reparations which worked out the details for application of the Young plan.

The coalition headed by Chancellor Mueller undoubtedly was held together largely by Stresemann personally and there seems little possibility his death has not thrown it out of balance.

Meanwhile speculation continues as to the effect of Dr. Stresemann's death on Germany's foreign policy, such as ratification of the Young reparations plan, continued co-operation with the League of Nations, and reconciliation with former enmies.

Briand Deeply Affected.

Prime Minister Briand of France was perhaps more deeply affected by Stresemann's death than anyone outside his immediate family. It is no exaggeration to say that Briand had a real affection for the German Foreign Minister and considered that they two together bore the burden of restoring Europe to a peace basis. Returning from the Hague conference, the French Premier said to newspaper men:

"I hope German medical science will be powerful enough to save Stresemann's life because I don't see who could take his place. Europe needs him. He combines a sense of realities with a high sense of duty to his own country. He merits every man's respect. May he live much longer."

A tribute in the same vein was paid to Stresemann by Charles G. Dawes, United States Ambassador to Great Britain, who said:

"In the last 10 years Europe has evolved many statesmen of the highest caliber, but no one of purer motives, more indomitable courage and greater nobility than this man. He held to his difficult and patriotic duty with an enduring calmness which even continued suffering and physical disabilities could not lessen."

MacDonald's Message to Chancellor on Death of Stresemann.

By the Associated Press.

S. S. BERENGARIA, Oct. 4.—Ramsay MacDonald, Prime Minister of Great Britain, last night sent to Hermann Mueller, Chancellor of Germany, this message of condolences on the death of Gustav Stresemann:

"Please accept my most sincere sympathy for the great loss which not only Germany, but all of Europe, has suffered in the death of your distinguished Foreign Minister whom it was in my great privilege to know as a friend."

Turkey and Albania Break.

TIRANA, Albania, Oct. 4.—The Albanian Minister at Angora today is notifying the Turkish Government of his return home and of breaking off of relations between Turkey and Albania. Failure of Turkey to recognize the monarchist regime in Albania was assigned as a reason for the action.

Single Rate Case Under State Regulation Cost Gas Consumers $561,968

Since July, 1918, When Litigation Started, Laclede Company Valuation Has Been Increased $17,000,000—No Valuation of Union Electric Property Since 1915.

"Experience has, I think, demonstrated that public regulation through state commissions is, in most states, unsatisfactory to the point of being a failure . . . . Even when there is well intentioned regulation, it is cumbersome and inefficient . . . . You cannot successfully conduct a business enterprise through a succession of judicial orders and decrees."—From the signed statement of Samuel Untermyer, noted lawyer, who represents New York City in transit cases, advising St. Louis to grant no more franchises to public utilities, published in the Post-Dispatch Sept. 1.

First place in cost for all the public utility regulation cases that have dragged tediously for years through the Missouri Public Service Commission goes to the valuation and rate case of the Laclede Gas Light Co. of St. Louis.

From Jan. 1, 1919, to the end of 1927, the company's cost in this proceeding, which it was permitted to recover from its customers through rates, was $561,968, according to a compilation made by the company at the request of the Commission. Expenditures in other utility cases, similarly recovered from the public, bring the total to approximately $1,000,000 for the period of halting and hesitant, but expensive, State regulation.

The rate and valuation case of Laclede Gas has been alive before the Public Service Commission or in the courts since July, 1918, and in that time valuation for rate making has been increased from $30,000,000 to $47,000,000. In the latter figure was included an item of $5,818,000 for "going value." Rates also have gone constantly higher.

The big jump in valuation was made in 1926, after Charles A. Munroe and his associates had bought the property. By means of this valuation Munroe and his associates were able to sell out to the Utilities Power and Light Co. at a profit to themselves estimated at $7,000,000.

The new owners promptly moved for higher rates based on the increased valuation, although in applying for the greater valuation under the Munroe regime the company had said it was not to be used as a basis for boosting rates. Increased rates were granted last January, but the city has appealed the case to the Circuit Court of Cole County, where it is now pending.

The Union Electric Light & Power Co. has had little to do with the Public Service Commission so far as rates are concerned during the period in question. In fact, the growth of this company's business and its extraordinary prosperity have made it unnecessary for it to ask for rate increases and have enabled it to make some voluntary reductions.

The most recent rate reduction was made a year ago last May, but as there has not been an appraisal and valuation of this company's property by the commission since 1915, there is no substantial basis for determining the reasonableness of its present rates other than accepting the company's own figures.

The reduction made last year applied only to power and commercial consumers and the city asked for an audit of the company's property by the Commission, claiming a broader and greater rate reduction should have been made. This audit was ordered and has been in process about a year and so far has cost about $25,000.

Last year this company acquired several subsidiaries, greatly increasing its total business. Its operating revenue for the 12 months ending June 30, 1929, was $28,824,235, exceeding by more than $2,824,000 the valuation of $26,000,000 placed on the entire property of the company in 1915 by the Commission.

The income for that 12-month period over and above operating expenses was $12,767,215, which was equivalent to 7 per cent on $182,385,000—an amount exceeding by nearly $6,000,000 the total assets carried on the company's consolidated balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1928.

It is the general rule, although it may not always be true, that the valuation allowed by the Public Service Commission, high though it may be, is considerable less than the total of assets shown on a utility's books. This is true in the case of the St. Louis Public Service Co., where the total valuation is $66,000,000 and the book assets are $78,344,000. It is also true in the case of the Laclede Gas Light Co., which lists book assets of $60,000,000, although its valuation of property used in the public service and upon which it is entitled to earn from rates charged the public is fixed at $47,000,000 by the Public Service Commission.

The most recent rate increase case of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., in St. Louis, was filed with the Commission in November, 1924, and decided in June, 1925. The company was granted an increase in business telephone rates amounting to about $900,000 a year. The valuation of the St. Louis property was fixed at $24,700,000. The city contended for a valuation of $20,000,000 and the company for $30,000,000. The city's appeal of this case to the State Supreme Court was dismissed in July, 1927, for non-compliance with the Court's rules for preparing briefs. By inference, the Court upheld the rate order.

The Commission decided this case on an audit its accountants made of the company's books. The city demanded a full appraisal and valuation as the only accurate means of fixing a fair rate base, but the Commission refused it, the chairman declaring such proceeding would cost $150,000 and that the Commission had neither the men nor the funds available.

This cost, of course, would have been recovered by the State from the company and ultimately would have been paid by the telephone users, but even under these circumstances the Commission is not authorized to expend funds in excess of the amount appropriated for its use.

LIQUOR PURCHASER NOT GUILTY, COURT OF APPEALS RULES

REVERSES $200 FINE OF NEW YORK BROKER

A. E. Norris Had Been Penalized for Deal With Bootlegger—Prosecution Criticised.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—The United States Court of Appeals in an opinion yesterday held that the purchaser of liquor cannot be punished under the prohibition law.

It reversed Federal District Judge William H. Kirkpatrick, who had held that while the act of purchasing liquor itself was not punishable, the purchaser, where the element of transportation is involved, could be penalized as an abettor of illegal transportation.

The Court of Appeals' decision was in the case of Alfred E. Norris, New York broker and clubman. Norris had appealed from a $200 fine imposed by Judge Kirkpatrick after it had been shown that Norris had purchased liquor from Joel D. Kerper, alleged "society bootlegger." Kerper was convictd Sept. 28, 1928, and sentenced to one year and three months in prison with a fine of $20,000.

Nolle Contendere Plea.

Norris, at his trial, pleaded "nolle contendere," that is he admitted the facts of the indictment's citation, but did not agree that there had been a crime.

In upholding his appeal the Circuit Court of Appeals said that, while he may have induced Kerper to transport the liquor to him in New York, he was not guilty of aiding and abetting either its sale or delivery; "and," the opinion added, "the degree of co-operation necessary to constitute one a conspirator must be such as to amount to more than the mere aiding and abetting in the commission of the offense."

Judge Victor B. Woolley and W. H. S. Thomson joined in the ruling, with Judge Joseph Buffington dissenting. Judge Buffington did not set forth the reasons for his dissenting opinion.

Court's Conclusions.

In summing up its conclusions the majority opinion said: "We are satisfied that the purchaser is not an abettor of the offense within the meaning of the statute.

"The abettor, within the meaning of the statute, must stand in the same relation to the crime as the criminal, approach it from the same direction, touch it at the same point. This is not the case with the purchaser of liquor.

"The purchaser of liquor, by his offer to buy, induced the seller of liquor to make the sale. But he

FRANCE UNEASY OVER M'DONALD'S VISIT TO AMERICA

Washington Officials Therefore Emphasize That Conferences With Hoover Will Be Strictly Informal.

NO THOUGHT OF FORMING ALLIANCE

Negotiations for Naval Treaty Will Be Conducted Through the Regular Diplomatic Channels.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The administration is again letting it be known, as Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain begins his good-will visit to Washington, that the purpose of his forthcoming talks with President Hoover is neither the immediate drafting of a treaty nor the conclusion of an Anglo-American entente.

This assurance, a repetition of statements already made on both sdes of the water, is designed to allay apprehensions which have been expressed in France, and, to a less extent in Italy. France's view of the meeting between the two heads of State has been colored by her recollection of such historic meetings on the continent as those which produced the entente between France and England, and that between France and Russia.

She has plainly been disturbed by the thought that out of the Washington parleys between the Premier and the President, there might arise an understanding prejudicial to her own interests.

Hence the emphasis which American officials are placng on the American interpretation of the visit—that it is wholly informal; that no treaty will be entered into; that the negotiations looking to a naval understanding between this country and Great Britain will continue to be carried forward through the regular diplomatic channels of the two countries; and that, finally, any agreement which may be arrived at will come before the five power naval conference which is being planned for next January.

The idea, in short, that the American Government wants to impress on the French consciousness—and perhaps also on the consciousness of anti-British elements in the United States—is that Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Hoover have no intention of trying to cement an alliance, naval or otherwise, between the English-speaking peoples.

There is no desire, of course, to minimize the importance of the

FALL ILL AGAIN; TRIAL LIKELY TO BE DELAYED

Former Interior Secretary Collapsed Twice After Arraignment, Physician Says.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Illness again is likely to cause a postponement in the trial of former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall on charges of accepting a bribe for leasing the Elk Hills (Cal.) naval oil reserve to Edward L. Doheny

Fall is suffering from one of the bronchial attacks to which he is subject and the attendant weakness, in view of his 68 years and the frail condition of his health for several years, is causing apprehension on the part of his family.

The attack is ascribed by Dr. H. T. Safford, El Paso, Tex., Fall's personal physician, to exposure to inclement weather Wednesday while going to and from the District of Columbia Supreme Court for arraignment and to move for dismissal of the indictment.

The physician declines yet to give an opinion whether his patient would have sufficient strength to appear in court Monday, the date set for the trial. He said Fall had collapsed twice after returning to his hotel from the court. Lowered blood pressure with incraesed temperature was noted. Fall was slightly improved today with temperature only slightly above normal and the bronchial attack diminishing.

The request of Fall's attorneys that the bribery indictment be dismissed as constituting double jeopardy remains to be decided.

SWANSON URGES U. S. JOIN WORLD COURT ON ROOT PLAN

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Adherence of the United States to the World Court under the terms of the Root protocol as a buttress to the Kellogg peace treaty was advocated last night by Senator Swanson of Virginia, ranking Democrat on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

In an address broadcast in the Washington Star radio forum over the Columbia network, the Senator said the Root formula protected American interests.

"I believe the United States should join the World Court," Senator Swanson said, "as it is the only organized court for the settlement of international differences. The decisions and work of the court have been of such high character as to command the respect of all, and it has become a most potential factor for world peace."

SENATE RETAINS THE PRESENT FORM OF TARIFF BOARD

CHANGES INTENDED TO SPEED UP BODY

Chief Executive May Name New Members Irrespective of Terms of Those Now Serving.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—After brief discussion, the Senate today adopted an amendment to the tariff bill providing for a bi-partisan tariff commission of six members as it is at present.

The amendment, sponsored by Finance Committee Republicans will enable the President to appoint new members to the commission irrespective of the terms of those now serving. The latter would continue in office until the Senate confirmed successors.

Move to Recommend Bill.

A move to return the tariff bill to the Finance Committee with instructions to confine revisions to increases on agricultural duties will be made by Senator Thomas (Dem.), Oklahoma, as soon as the Senate takes up the rate schedules. Thomas said his motion would leave the way open for submission of individual amendments on the floor to the industria rate schedules, changes in which are provided in the bil in hundreds of instances. The rate schedules are expected to be reached next week.

Before the rate schedules, with their numerous points of controversy, can be taken up, a number of individual proposals must be acted on. These include the plan of Senator Glass (Dem.), Virginia, to impose a 5 per cent tax on securities sold within 60 days after purchase. This is aimed at stock market speculation.

The hope of swift action on the remainder of the proposals affecting the administrative sections of the bill and the individual amendments was bolstered by the quieting of the political contention after the Democratic-Republican Independent victory in the flexible

As to Sharks.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

NOBODY who lives close to sharks, on this hemisphere, at least (there is a particular variety called "man-eater" in Africa), ever thought sharks had a particular phobia against mankind. In that sense, Beebe and other scientists proved nothing new. Some of the "scientists" had much less than Beebe's standing. Some of them, in fact, are open to suspicion of having picked up a commonplace of the tropics and subtropics as a handy ax with which to crash the inland front pages. The barracuda, and not the shark, is considered the "killer," but, none the less, swimming places where barracuda are unknown are surrounded by stockades to keep out the sharks.

The fact that one or two or twenty persons swam with sharks without being bitten does not prove that no human being ever was or will be bitten by a shark, any more than instances of deaths laid to "attacks" by sharks prove that all sharks spend their watery hours in working up an appetite for human tidbits. Exactly the same kind of controversy, with the same sort of faith by each side in one set of facts to the exclusion of the other, has muddled popular knowledge of common domestic snakes. The writer survived a pleasant hour swimming in the harbor of Isla Mujeres, near Yucatan, where the natives never swim because of barracuda, but that does not prove anything except that the writer was just a plain darn fool.

Sharks are probably no more warlike, cornered or not, than the alligator gar. But they are not especially bright, and they sometimes get hungry. They can be caught on a hook baited with a tin can, and the writer caught one with a piece of white rag. They are likely to take a blundering gulp at anything, and their jaws are large and unattractive. The question comes down to this: Would you rather be "attacked" or simply eaten?

Hot on the Trail, but Not Too Hot.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE police, we learn, have "renewed their activity against token-dispensing slot machines alleged to be gambling devices," by arresting a confectioner on Mississippi avenue and a saloon keeper on Lemp avenue. Apparently they haven't found the machines around the oh-so-remote corner of Grand and Olive and others way out in the sticks at Kingshighway and Delmar.

A Sunken Garden for the Park.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A STADIUM in the southeast corner of Forest Park is the problem before the Park Commissioner, Mr. Pape. We admit that the old River des Peres bed was and is now an unsightly thing. The concrete stadium would not add beauty to the park. Seems we have about all of this kind of stuff that we need. We want and need more of nature in the park, trees, shrubs (but not at the intersections of the roads to obstruct the view of autoists), flowers, etc.

Why not have a sunken garden? Think of a view of terraces of tulips, followed with the summer flowers too numerous to mention.

The men who have charge of the municipal gardens and hothouses, who plan the flower shows in the Jewel Box every fall, could do wonders with the southeast corner of Forest Park.

Tribute to Officer McGrath.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I WONDER, as I read the account of the struggle between Officer Dennis McGrath and a Negro charged with being a "masher," whether this conscientious patrolman has made other citizens admire him for his brave deed as I do.

I know that every husband, father and brother is glad to know that such fearless officers are on the police force ready to protect women and girls from such annoyances. The women, themselves, send him their vote of thanks.

I only hope that this patrolman who put up such a bold fight will receive a just reward for such faithful performance of his duty so that brother members of the force will follow in his footsteps when they are placed in such a dangerous situation.

No Increase in Savings Yield.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE banks have decided to increase the loan rate, claiming a money stringency. Borrowers today must pay ½ to 1 per cent more for money than they formerly did. This plan went into effect Sept. 1 past but failed to provide any additional interest on the savings account which the depositor has maintained. He must be satisfied with his 3 per cent yield, providing he was lucky enough to avoid drawing against such funds so as not to lose his interest. Banks are no longer a convenience unless you are possessed of means, then they will cater to your wants for fear you will place your funds in other channels.

What we need in this city is Mr. Ford to give our bankers more pointers on business, as they are becoming both stale and rusty in courtesy as well as business.

INVESTIGATING LOBBIES.

As a consequence of the naval scandal and efforts to exploit a revision of the farm relief tariff, the Senate has launched under authority of the Caraway resolution an investigation of all Washington lobbies.

The investigation will be conducted by the Senate Judiciary Committee, of which Senator Norris of Nebraska is chairman. It therefore assumes an importance which it might not have under other direction. Senator Norris is a veteran in Congress, perhaps the most implacable enemy of influences inimicable to the public welfare. He will know where to begin, and how to proceed. With the Senate Naval Affairs subcommittee already investigating the naval scandal, the Judiciary Committee will likely turn its immediate attention to the tariff lobby. The influence of this lobby upon the tariff bill now before Congress is patent enough. Mr. Hoover's stated wish that the revision should be limited, and only for the benefit of agriculture, has been ruthlessly disregarded. Some of the Republicans from the agricultural states who are fighting the bill assert that less than one-third of its provisions have any relation to agriculture. The rest are merely price-fixing devices under which the cost of living will ascend and no benefit will accrue to anyone except a few special interests. The lobby which put this bill through the lower House of Congress, and is now pressing it upon the Senate, is headed by Joseph R. Grundy of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association. It is an aggregation of picked men, the most effective lobby that has operated in the capital since the Power Trust sent its shock troops down to Washington to beat the Walsh resolution.

The Post-Dispatch has heretofore said that a distinction should be made between lobbyists in Washington and the considerable number of persons who are no more than legislative scouts. Senator Caraway has several times inveighed against the scouts. He thinks they have no influence upon legislation, and that the money they collect for their services is obtained under false pretenses. He wants to expose these people and their practices. That is not, in our opinion, very important. It is quite natural that interests affected by legislation should have persons on the spot to keep them informed of developments. It is at once difficult to see how it could be controlled or how the interests which use it could mistake it for anything more than it is.

The realities of lobbying are what will interest Senator Norris' committee. There was a real lobby on the scene when Senator Walsh proposed to investigate the Power Trust. It represented the power and strategy of perhaps the greatest of all the predatory interests in the United States. It employed former members of Congress and the Cabinet, through whom its resistance to a genuine investigation of the methods and practices of the power interests invaded the very Senate floor. There was another real lobby on the scene when the 15-cruiser bill came up, and still another when Mr. Hoover announced a revision of the tariff. An army of special pleaders and legislative strategists, many of them riding the elephant for which they bought hay in the last presidential campaign, went into camp on the banks of the Potomac. It is there now. The tariff bill, which Senator Borah says is a betrayal of Republican pledges in the campaign, and which almost every Republican Senator from the agricultural states denounces as a perversion of what Mr. Hoover requested, bears testimony to its effectiveness. There will be an even greater lobby than either of these in Washington when the Couzens bill to establish a communications commission for the control of all wire and wireless comes up for passage.

The Senate Judiciary Committee is not going to mistake the Lilliputian legislative scouts Mr. Caraway is after for these industrial Brobdingnags. Senator Norris knows big game when he sees it—and Washington abounds with it.

INTRODUCING NIVLEGS.

Among the world's religionists are Buddhists, Mohammedans, Confucianists, Sunworshippers, Shintoists, Theosophists, Zoroastrians, Christians, etc., etc.

We now introduce Nivlegs, an addition to the world's religions, just organized in Missouri. This sect is composed of duckhunters who have discovered that the Missouri blue law prohibiting hunting on Sunday does not apply to sects who worship on some other day than Sunday. The Nivlegs have organized at St. Joseph, where the wowsers are after Sunday duck hunters.

At their next meeting the Nivlegs, who believe among other things that Cotton Mather is as dead as Pompey, will choose a day of worship. It will not be Sunday.

MORE MOONSHINE.

Stanley Clarke, president of the franchise-seeking St. Louis Public Service Co., who is a member of the Transportation Survey Commission, volunteered the opinion at the last meeting of the commission, in answer to a question put by President Neun of the Board of Aldermen, that permission of the State Public Service Commission would be necessary to operate the street railways on a city permit after their franchises expired. Mr. Neun, or some of the other commissioners who are beginning to see through the franchise conspiracy, should have asked him how the State commission could prevent the operation of street cars in St. Louis when the company had the city's permission and wanted to operate, even if the commission would entertain such an absurd idea. Would it ask the courts to enjoin the city and company in the exercise of their undoubted right, and upon what ground? Perhaps a commission which would adopt Mr. Clarke's extraordinary view would do the equally novel thing of asking the Governor to turn out the militia to stop the St. Louis street cars—the Governor who vetoed the Public Service Co.'s "terminable permits" bill. It is well that Mr. Clarke introduced his opinion with the qualification "as I understand it in Missouri." He certainly does not understand Missouri.

GOOD-BY, NOT AU REVOIR, SAYS MR. DAY.

Henry Mason Day, business associate of Harry Sinclair, has completed his jail sentence. It was past midnight when he stepped across the threshold, once again a free man. To the photographers awaiting him he remarked: "Make the most of it boys, for this is the last chance like this you'll have."

If we understand it, this means that Mr. Day is resolved to "go straight." No more jury-shadowing for him. The man who said you can't convict a million dollars was inaccurate. Take it from Henry, also from Harry, that it can and has been done. The experience apparently has been salutary for Mr. Day. The import of it, we trust, will be noted by others who may have entertained the notion that their money had put them beyond the reach of the law.

GERMANY'S FOREIGN MINISTER.

The untimely death of Dr. Gustav Stresemann at the age of 51 is an incalculable loss to Germany and to the world. For six years, since his appointment as Chancellor in August, 1923, he has been the voice of reconciliation. He preached good will when it was politically hazardous to whisper it, and he practiced good will when it was personally dangerous to propose it. The events of consequence in that period have all been shaped by his genius. The acceptance of the Dawes plan, the security pact with France, Locarno, Germany's entrance into the League of Nations—these are the landmarks of reconstruction which might not have been erected save for the moral force of this man's character and the vision of his statesmanship.

Such is Dr. Stresemann's part on the world stage as Germany's Foreign Minister. Within Germany itself he has commanded a popular confidence comparable to that of Von Hindenburg's and a parliamentary skill and prestige which only men of destiny possess.

He has borne his burdens gayly, his honors lightly. There was nothing of the "grand, gloomy and peculiar" about him. "Life, we've been good friends together" was the impression he created. His charm inspired affection as his ability inspired respect, and both qualities were, perhaps, equally indispensable in the great task to which he set himself. That task was the restoration of Germany to her proper place in the family of nations. That task has been accomplished.

His leisure, we are told, was spent largely in the company of Napoleon and Goethe, and their influence was observed in his apt and frequent quotations from their writings. More convincing evidence of that influence, it seems to us, may be found in his methods and results. The Napoleonic daring assuredly characterized his statesmanship, and what Emerson said of the German "monarch of European letters" may, perhaps be said of Germany's Foreign Minister: "The old eternal genius that built the world confided itself more to this man than to any other." For his was the leadership that silenced the Hymn of Hate, leveled the barriers of the war's accursed legacy and re-established in large measure the relations of good neighbors among the people of Europe.

GOV. SAMPSON, MORAL LEADER.

An article in the Albany Evangelist extols Gov. Sampson of Kentucky for his moral leadership. "Governor Sampson," says the Evangelist, "is starting a very worthy movement indeed. He believes too many people are 'indifferently honest' and thinks there should be more 'affirmative honesty'—especially in business transactions. He wants a nation-wide survey to stimulate fair dealing. 'Integrity is not vanishing,' he says, 'and all of us ought to be emphatic in saying so.'"

Gov. Sampson has just been acquitted by a jury of the charge of illegally receiving text-books as gifts from companies bidding for Kentucky contracts. The indictments against the Governor and other public officials said text-books so received had been sold for various sums ranging from $150 to $850. However, in the Governor's case, the grand jury found the Governor did not sell the text-books he received. He only gave them to his secretary. She sold them.

What kind of honesty was that—affirmative, indifferent, plain, fancy or mixed?

Why not have a nation-wide survey to determine the relation of Governors to gifts from text-book companies?

FEDERAL JURISDICTION.

The Louisville Times quotes the Post-Dispatch as saying that Federal officers have no right to enforce law and order in local communities.

The Times is a dry newspaper, and it is not easy to explain to dry newspapers what the Post-Dispatch feels about the Federal Government and prohibition. We have never said that Federal officers have no right to enforce law and order in local communities, and the Times is mistaken in attributing that statement to us. We have said that to invade the police powers of the states with Federal policemen over the protests of the people is a dangerous practice, and we assume that it is here the Times is in disagreement with us. It points out that no such objection was made when Federal police went into local communities to enforce the old revenue laws, but that is beside the point. The old revenue laws were tax laws which had the moral consent of the states. Most Federal laws have the consent of the states. When they do not, as in the cases of the prohibition and fugitive slave laws, the old sedition acts, etc., they precipitate a political crisis. The Whisky Rebellion, which resulted from the excise laws, was unique. It was a rebellion of tax dodgers. It was in no wise comparable to the refusal of New York, Maryland, Montana, Nevada, New Jersey and Rhode Island to acquiesce in the prohibition law, or the refusal of states in the North to acquiesce in the slave laws.

If the Times read the articles written by Mrs. Willebrandt after she had been for several years Federal prosecutor of the prohibition laws, it will find her in complete agreement with the Post-Dispatch that any law to be effective must have the consent of the governed. The prohibition law has not the consent of the governed in many parts of the United States, and it cannot be enforced there. It is not a question of jurisdiction. It is a question of what is practicable in a democracy. The Post-Dispatch has been at pains to make its position perfectly clear, and it is sorry to have that position misstated in the Times or any other newspaper.

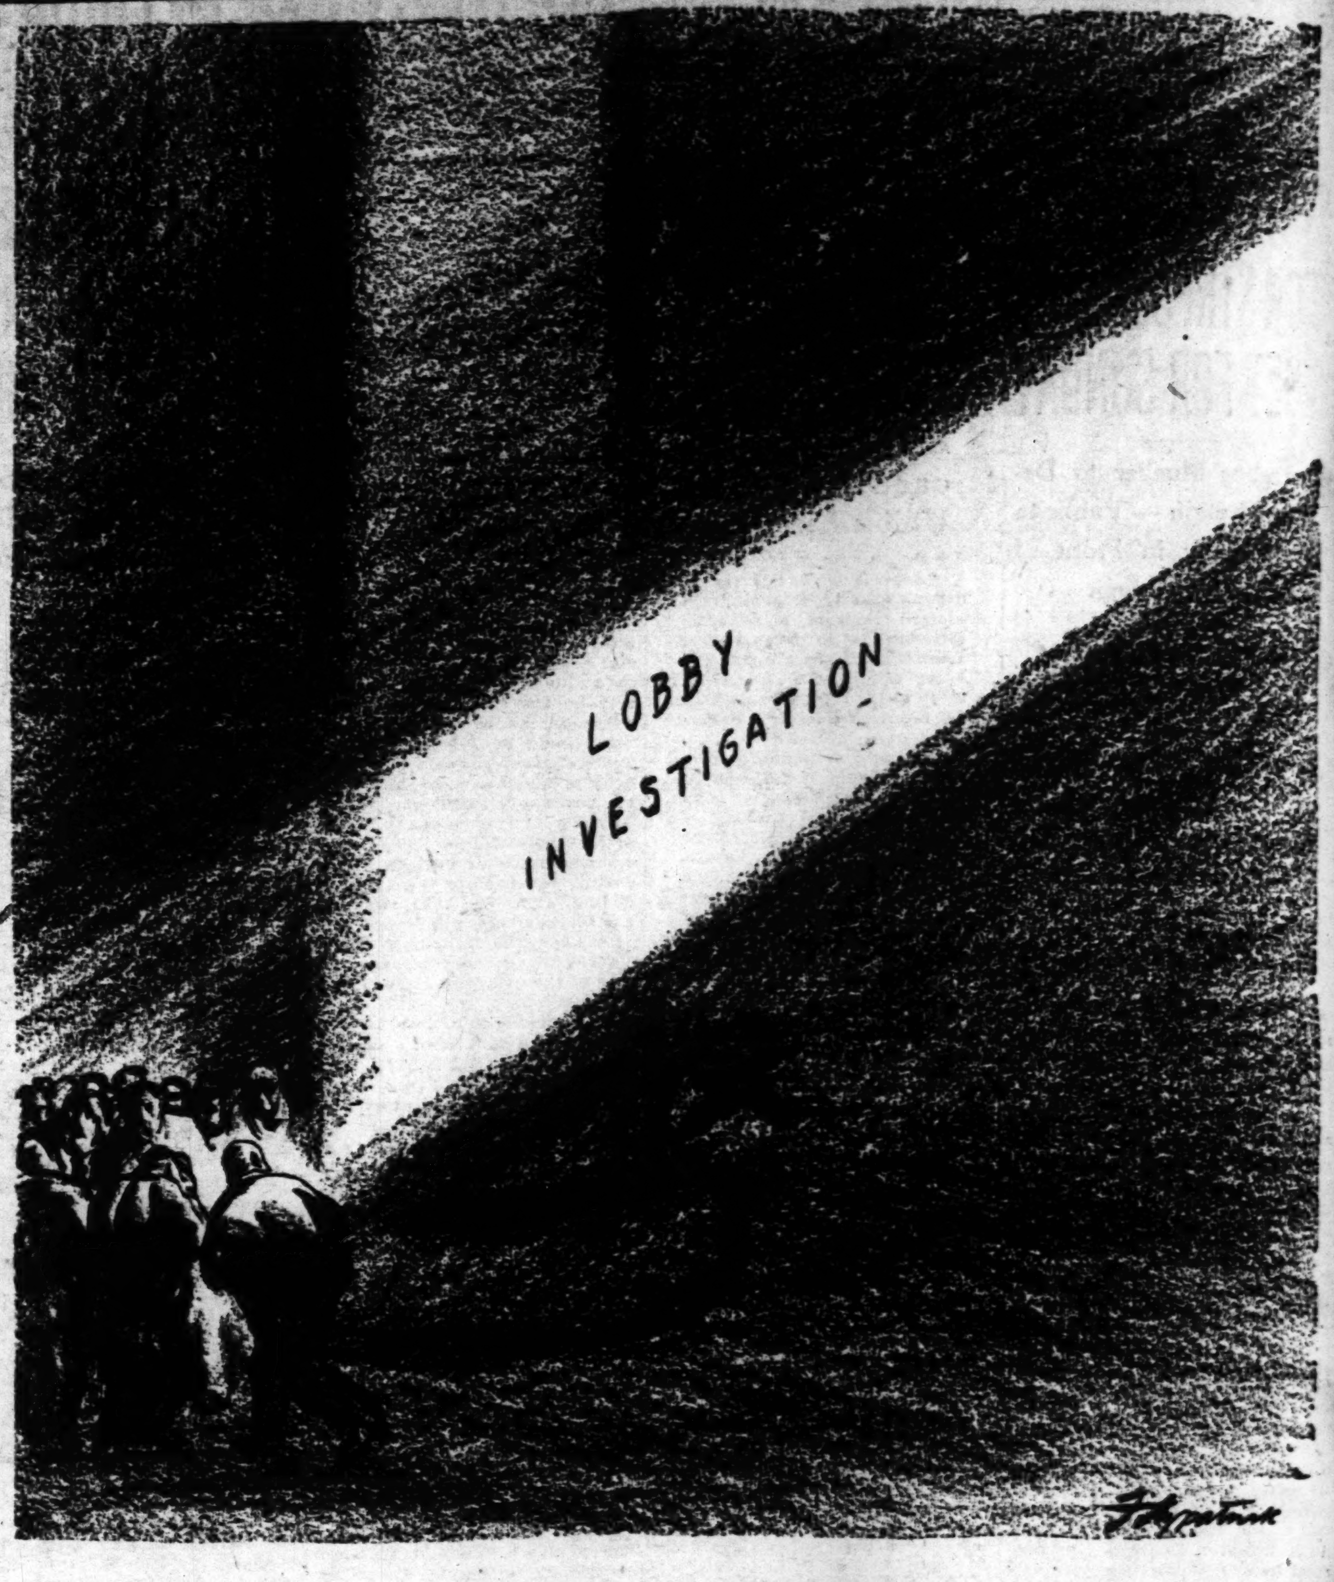
THE CIRCUIT ATTORNEY'S REPORT.

Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller's last quarterly report shows that of 180 cases disposed of in the criminal divisions of the Circuit Court during July, August and September, 146 persons pleaded guilty, 11 were convicted by juries and 23 were discharged. This indicates a high rate of effectiveness. It would be interesting to compare Circuit Attorney Miller's record with his predecessor's, but Mr. Sidener did not see fit to take the public into his confidence as to the operations of his office.

Publication of reports of the Circuit Attorney's work is in itself symptomatic of the remarkable improvement that has occurred since Judge Miller took hold.



MAYBE WE'LL DISCOVER WHO WROTE THE TARIFF SCHEDULES.

The Private Toll Bridge Graft

"Financing and promotion" costs of toll bridge promoters sometimes amount to as much as 25 per cent of the entire cost of construction; instances are cited of enormous profits gained from toll bridge operation; unless Congress abandons its stupid policy, private toll bridges will be a greater nuisance than the old tollgate.

John J. Cochran, Congressman from Missouri, in "American Highways."

THE professional promoters who have profited by their activities in bringing about the construction of toll bridges, with few exceptions, are not public-spirited citizens. They are in the game for what they can make out of it, and in many instances their operations do not extend beyond that of securing the franchise from Congress and peddling the grant after selling the idea to some construction company. They either receive cash or common stock in the project in return for the consent Congress grants for the construction of the bridge. The consent of Congress to construct a bridge does not cost one penny, and there is absolutely no reason why anyone should pay for the assignment of a franchise. In most instances the original promoter, who probably lives hundreds of miles away from the location of the bridge, not even in the same State, steps out of the picture when he disposes of the franchise.

Under a clause in the bills passed in the Sixty-ninth and the Seventieth Congress a report must be filed with the Secretary of War showing the cost of construction, financing, and so forth. Ten such reports have been filed. In seven out of the 10 cases the grantee assigned the franchise. Only in two cases has the cost been approved—the bridge at Neals Landing, Ga., and at Eagle Pass, Tex. At Neals Landing, Ga., the grantee constructed the bridge, which cost $105,911.88, and the financing and promotion charges were only $842.73. A complete analysis has not been made in connection with the other reports, but it is interesting to note the cost of financing and promotion of some of the other projects. A new bridge was constructed at Norfolk, Va.: cost of construction, $799,298.12; cost of financing and promotion, $218,550.69, or over 25 per cent for financing and promotion, while at Mason, W. Va., a bridge cost $711,102.84 to construct, and the promotion and financing cost was $65,527.89. At Steubenville, O., the new bridge cost $894,890.12 and the financing and promotion charges were $76,322.57. The bridge at Cape Girardeau, Mo., total cost, $1,587,614.40, including real property, not analyzed as to construction cost, showed $144,828.58 for financing and promotion. The bridge at Louisiana, Mo., showed a total cost of $901,876.21, while the financing and promotion cost was $92,500.

It will also be interesting to see what action the War Department takes in reaching the approved cost when the promotion and financing cost exceeds 10 per cent. There is quite a difference between the bridge at Neals Landing, Ga., which shows a financing and promotion cost of less than 1 per cent, and the bridge at Norfolk, showing a financing and promotion cost of over 25 per cent. Official information of this character will be valuable to present to the House when the bridge legislation is under consideration. In the end it will now also be possible to secure official information as to whether a project was over-financed. Probably the fact that the bridge showing a promotion and financing cost of less than 1 per cent was constructed by the grantee had something to do with this item, while in the case of the bridge constructed at Norfolk, with financing and promotion charges above 25 per cent, the grantee assigned the franchise.

Two outstanding examples which show conclusively that enormous sums are realized out of toll bridges are the bridge over the Missouri River at St. Charles, Mo., and the bridge over the Susquehanna River at Havre de Grace, Md.

The St. Charles bridge was purchased by local communities and the St. Charles Free Bridge Committee is in charge, with Judge Sam D. Hodgdon, of Clayton, Mo., as chairman. The bridge was taken over in August, 1926. The report issued Jan. 1, 1929; showed $623,308.66 has been applied to the principal. They have paid over half of the purchasing price and expect before the end of 1930 to pay the remainder. The bridge will then be donated to the State of Missouri, which means that these public-spirited citizens will be giving their State practically $1,250,000. When the bridge is presented to the State it will become a free bridge.

The bridge at Havre de Grace was purchased by the State of Maryland for $500,000. It was a one-way bridge and an upper deck was erected providing for traffic in both directions at the same time. This bridge, where the toll, like the St. Charles bridge, was less than 50 cents for an ordinary automobile, collected sufficient tolls in three years to clear the investment, including the cost of the upper deck.

Another case that might be mentioned is the Holland vehicular tunnel, the property of New York and New Jersey, costing $48,400,000, opened to the public in November, 1927, connecting New York City with New Jersey. Fifty cents is charged to drive your automobile under the Hudson River. The receipts now amount to over $400,000 per month, or round $5,000,000 a year. Thus it will be seen the tunnel will be paid for in 10 years and will then be free to the public.

The statement is made that in some States constitutional limitations prevent the public borrowing of money for the construction of bridges and that in such States the Highway Commissions are urged to borrow money from private bankers to construct toll bridges and secure the loans by pledges of the tolls without pledging the credit of the States.

The statement alleges that those who entertain these views would resort to any device to bring about the construction of all bridges by public authorities and even operate them as toll bridges rather than to permit their construction and operation by private capital. It would appear to be a crime for a bridge to be constructed by public authorities and operated as a toll bridge. One would infer that the borrowing of money from private bankers on the security of the tolls would be a most reprehensible device which States are being urged to resort to in order to circumvent legal and constitutional limitations which hamper them in building bridges. This so-called device, which properly may be referred to as revenue bonds, is recognized by some of the leading banking houses of the country as a sound basis for financing bridge structures. The several bridges across the Hudson and other rivers being built by the Port of New York Authority are being financed by this method. Seven States of the Union have recently passed legislation providing for the acquisition or construction of bridges under this plan of financing. It, therefore, is a device which is being used to a very great extent and it takes no special urging on anyone's part for it to be adopted in responsible and well-informed circles.

It took 150 years to eliminate the tollgate, and if Congress does not discontinue the present stupid policy of authorizing privately owned toll bridges, it will take as many more to eliminate the toll bridges.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.

"Henry Fountain Ashurst, United States Senator from Arizona."

Those of his classmates who knew what a United States Senator was, laughed. The others laughed, anyway.

But they soon learned that the boy was serious. A little while later he had applied for a job as page in the Arizona Territorial Legislature. He failed, but they heard how he shook his fist at the member who refused to vote for him and announced that he would be back later "to elect some pages himself."

At the age of 15 he had to leave school to help support his widowed mother.

It took a good many years for Ashurst to make good those two goals he had set for himself. And those years of his career fairly breathe with the spirit and romance of the Southwest.

First he was a cowpuncher. Then a lumberjack. But all the time he was studying law on the side.

• • •

AT the age of 22 he was a candidate for the Territorial Legislature, and won. A year later he was made Speaker of the House—the youngest man ever to be so honored by that body. Then he served as District Attorney, and in 1912 by a unanimous vote of the first Legislative Assembly of the State of Arizona he came to Washington as a United States Senator.

He has been here ever since.

Ashhurst, the Senator, is at once the delight and terror of his colleagues. He is the recognized master in that body as the man who can mix Chesterfieldian grace with biting sarcasm. His epigrammatic lunges at his parliamentary adversaries have made him famous.

"To have strength, words, like sunbeams, must be condensed," is his creed, and, although he "always tips his sword with a rose," his verbal blade cuts deeply and seldom misses its mark.

• • •

HIS voice is powerful. He cascades his thoughts and with vigor thrusts them home. Occasionally he resorts to flattery, but more often he uses straightforward argument. It is rarely that he resorts to swashbuckling.

Of Making Many Books

JOHN G NEIHARDT

A Book of Great Value

"THE MEANING OF CULTURE." By John Cowper Powys. (Norton.)

HERE is a noble addition to that relatively small company of books that may be called golden, and it would be good indeed to know if a more illuminating discussion of "that mysterious human creation known as culture" has ever been published. Such a book would be worth a long, long search.

Of the numerous words that were once opulent in meaning but have become paupers upon the glib lips of the many, "culture" is not the least in need of a definition. But, like all words that are potentially rich, no dictionary can define it. Only one who has richly lived the meaning of the word could set forth its vital significance as Powys has done in this warmly glowing, this deeply humane book.

Were it possible to "review" a work of this sort, then there would be no justification for such a book, for it would then have been possible to state the subject matter factually as something to be studied and learned. What is offered here is an experience to be lived by the individual, an experience that cannot but vary in breadth and depth and intensity according to the reader's capacity for such experience. In making this statement the present writer is wistfully aware that he cannot have gotten all from the book that is potential in it. But what matters here may be characterized as a direction of aspiration rather than a goal to be attained; and the direction is concerned with an increasing humaneness, an extension of sympathy, an expanding sense of all time and all men.

The word "culture" has come to have a more or less vague connotation of intellectual snobbishness and better-than-thou pretense; and this for the very good reason that so many misguided donkeys have professed it, while the trend of the world has been toward individual getting and away from individual becoming. It is to be feared that many sincere and humane people who may glance over these remarks will assume that no book on the subject could be for them. Their very sincerity, which qualifies them for an illuminating experience, may thus deprive them of it. Such a person, upon glancing down the first page of the introduction should be reassured immediately, for there is genuine humility in the author's eagerness at the outset to enumerate, in so far as he is able, the facts of his training and environment, his possible prejudices and other limitations that might affect his outlook, to the end that readers may the better judge the value of his discourse to themselves.

There must be everywhere many people who are sadly perplexed by the drift of the modern world and who feel in the wild confusion of our day that life has become at best a doubtful good. Here is a wise and friendly book for them—not a book of highfalutin sentiment, but a book with light in it for everyday paths.

Here is a passage that occurs along toward the end of the book that may serve to suggest the nature and possible value of the message Powys has for those who are lonely in the crowd:

"These are days when the very word culture has become a term of contempt. And all attempts to stem the tide have a certain shamefaced air of self-conscious affectation. The great standardized torrent of megalopolitan pleasures, megalopolitan sports, megalopolitan values sweeps round us and over us uttering a raucous monotone of irresistible triumph.

"What then, in the name of all the high traditions of our race, is culture to do? One thing it can do and one thing alone; and it is the purpose of this work to point steadily to this one thing. It can save the individual.

"There is no reason why, in this age of scientific invention and mass production, the individual consciousness should not find its own interior happiness, in those thoughts and feelings that have inspired and sustained humanity for ages. Although science can change the outward customs of the world we live in, it cannot despoil the winds of heaven of their power, or take the poetry out of the seasons, or strip the morning and the evening of their solemnity, or make the sun and the moon to be of small account, or turn the ocean into a little thing. Birth and death, the mystery of love and the mystery of the passing of love, the wonder of the oblivion of sleep and of the refreshment of sleep, the marvel of the heroic affections of men and women looking beyond loss and separation and the bitterness of the grave—these are the things upon which that deliberate simplification of the imagination, that unwearied training of feelings, which we have come to name culture, must continue to concentrate their obstinate attention."

With a view to stimulating interest in the writings of Edgar Allen Poe, announcement is made by the Edgar Allen Poe Society of New York that, beginning with the year 1930, a prize of $100 will be awarded annually by the Society for the best critical essay on the works of Poe. The award will be announced by the contest committee not later than Oct. 15 of each year. Next Monday it will be 80 years since Poe died.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.

STUDENTS of superstition find an absorbing topic in the beautiful Century Theater, which recently passed to wreckers as the most ill-fated of all New York theatrical ventures. Vast fortunes have been employed to shake off its ancient hoodoo.

The Century was a triumph of artistic endeavor—the finest theater, when opened, in the world. Its first-night audience was perhaps the most representative ever gathered under one roof. Celebrities came from all over the globe to see what was christened "The New Theater."

The initial production was Shakspeare's "Antony and Cleopatra," with Sothern and Marlowe in title roles. It was not, for some reason, discovered until a few momen's after the curtain lifted the acoustics were faulty. A voice could scarcely be heard back in the twelfth row.

Hurried attempts were made to remedy this, and although there were slight improvements, architects shook their heads. The playhouse was doomed. It was not the first or likely the last theater unable to free itself from the shackles of a silly superstition.

Even the unimaginative began to notice the Century somehow had acquired an eerie and spooky appearance. So for years it wallowed in devastating gloom. The finest stage productions offered there flopped, yet many were moved southward and achieved astonishing runs.

Night club after night club lodged in its basement and upper floors, but were forced to quit. The intrepid Tex Guinan at the height of popularity could not stem the tide of misfortune. The location was ideal and the open spaces of the park at its doorstep enhanced its beauty. Yet——

The Century will now be graced by an imposing building to be occupied by the French Government as a sort of industrial and artistic show place. Along with this announcement are signs of feverish building activities in the lower section. Central Park West is on the boom.

BOYS who used to go out to "paint the town" now go out "to heat up a joint."

IT sounds like a wheese of some sort, but the most sensational dish in London this season was a fricassee of nightingales' tongues. It is to be featured in a cafe in the fifties at $6.50 a portion.

WEST is the noisiest and roughest street in town, with its army of truckmen, teamsters and husky dock wallopers. Here will be found hairy-chested seamen who have been around the horn on windjammers, felt the crash of belaying pins and gone down to sea in ships. Giant Percheron horses still tug at ponderous loads, with their hooves striking fire on cobblestone. There are tramp steamers loaded for Marseilles and Cathay and prim ocean liners riding high for midnight getaways. The atmosphere is adventuresome, the voice strident and the mysterious tingle of the seven seas is pronounced. Pungent smells from fishing smacks, oil tankers and pier piles of hemp assail the nostrils. It is another world.

THE last word in dinner frocks adorned an actress just back from Paris, in a cafe this week. It is almost to the ground on one side and barely reaches the knee on the other. On the long side is a tight-fitting sleeve and the short side is sleeveless. And if that isn't a clear description, I am not hired as a fashion writer, and quit shoving.

MOST of us—despite sneerers—secretly nurse the Boy Scout idea that if we work hard, live clean and save our money we will some day live in a granite mansion where we can touch a topaz bell to summon the eunuch for a cigarette light. And then—as it happened today—we overhear a rich young wastrel whose life has been devoted to rakish idleness, order his secretary to bet $7000 on a 6 to 1 shot and win. And we wonder!

ALL the way from Cuba: "Our new $3 banquet cigar is five times the size of a panatella and made of strongest Havana filler. May we send you one?"

STATUE OF CHRIST UNVEILED

Replica of Thorwaldsen's Work at Lutheran Hospital.

A replica of Thorwaldsen's statue of Christ, the gift of Theodore Lange, 2631 Miami street, was unveiled at Lutheran Hospital, Ohio avenue and Potomac street. The statue stands seven feet high and was carved from a solid block of Carrara marble at Pietrasanta, Italy. The plinth of Botticino marble bears the inscription, "Come Unto Me, All Ye That Labor and Are Heavy Laden, and I Will Give You Rest."

Lange dedicated the statue to the memory of his family and founders of the hospital. The Rev. W. F. Wilk of the Messiah Lutheran Church, and Theodore Schroeder, president of the hospital board of directors, spoke at the ceremonies.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

THE Queen's supper, an annual event following the Veiled Prophet Ball, is to be held this year at Hotel Jefferson, and is to be ceromonious and elaborate, as is the actual coronation ceremony at the Coliseum. The entire mezzanine floor and main dining room have been reserved for the occasion, and will be occupied exclusively by the members of the Prophet's retinue, the committee in charge of arrangements for the visit of the veiled monarch, and their guests. The Queen's table will be laid in the gold ballroom, and the ceremony will begin with a formal entrance of the royal party, followed by a reception, during which the guests will be presented formally to the new queen. Tentative arrangements are being made for another innovation—the presence of the Prophet himself, who has signified his desire to remain for the reception instead of retiring to his den immediately after the ball. In the event that a last minute change is necessary, some St. Louisan will be designated to act as his representative in escorting the new consort through the supper and reception.

Following the supper, which will be served from small tables after the introductions, there will be general dancing in the gold room, the main dining room and the north corner of the mezzanine. The rooms will be profusely decorated with chrysanthemums in the Prophet's colors, red, purple and gold.

The Queen's bouquet of rare orchids, which she will carry at the ball, will be replaced during the reception and supper with a sheaf of roses in the shades of yellow, to blend with the cloth of gold coronation robe, which, contrary to custom, she will wear at the supper.

The Locust street entrance to the Jefferson will be closed to the public and used exclusively by the Veiled Prophet party. Cars will be parked by the hotel's garage attendants.

An interesting feature of the Veiled Prophet's festivities will be a number of debut parties for the Queen's supper. One of the largest of these affairs will comprise a party of 10 debutantes and their escorts as follows: Miss Elizabeth Comings Collins, Miss Lily Busch Magnus, Miss Jane Burns, Miss Mary Lees Kennard, Miss Elizabeth Garrison Morfit, Miss Mariella Cartwright, Miss Christine Jones, Miss Hope Pankman, Miss Pauline Lumaghi and Miss Janet Kauffman; Richard Dana, Shapleigh Boyd, Austin Leland, Charles Lumaghi, Oliver Garrison, Milton Lamb, Boyd Hill, Beno Clark, Edward Cluett and Howard O'Fallon Jr.

Miss Martha Frances Bright, Miss Aileen Blanke and Miss Virginia Emert; Joseph Trgg, William Doyle and Charles Marsh will be at one table and at another will be Miss Elizabeth Jamison, Miss Estelle Sanford, Miss Stella Switzer; Walter Pauley, Edward Haaverstick, Don Wagoner and Charles Keeshan. A table also has been reserved for Miss Rita Potter, Miss Elsie Nutting, Mr. and Mrs. Stockton Sommers Jr., Baxter Walker and Shelley Sanbury.

Miss Minorva Clawson Primm, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel S. Primm, 6015 Cabanne avenue, will be the guest of honor at a number of parties during the social season. Sunday night her uncle, Alex T. Primm, will give a buffet supper for her at the regular Sunday night party at the St. Louis Country Club. About 12 of the debutantes, with their escorts, have been invited to meet Miss Primm, who has been abroad for three years. On Oct. 16, her cousin, Mrs. Andrew Jackson Lindsay, 362 Walton avenue, will be hostess at a luncheon at her home, and later in season, Alex Primm will have a Saturday night party for her at the St. Louis Country Club.

Mrs. Edward A. Limberg, 2 Lenox place, returned last Sunday after a summer spent in European travel. She was accompanied on her trip by her sister, Miss May Foster, who has made her home in Paris for several years. Miss Foster returned to St. Louis with Mrs. Limberg and will spend the winter here, returning to Paris next spring. They spent the season traveling through England and France, and met a number of St. Louisans, including Mrs. Henry Elliot, 11 Kingsbury place, and her daughter, Miss Georgia; Mrs. William A. Stickney and her daughter, Mrs. Orion Willis; Dr. and Mrs. Walter Fischel, and Mrs. George W. Niedringhaus, 10 Westmoreland place, and her son, George Jr. All of the group have returned home with the exception of Mrs. Elliot and her daughter, who will sail for New York within a few days.

ST. LOUIS CREDIT MEN RAISE $21,160 FOR CAMPAIGN FUND

National Association Seeks $1,750,000 for Five-Year Fight on Frauds.

The St. Louis Association of Credit Men has collected $21,160 since the campaign started last Monday for the second national credit protection fund, according to a report made yesterday at a luncheon at the Mark Twain Hotel.

The goal for the national fund is $1,750,000, and it will be used for the next five years to carry on the association's fight against credit crime. Walter E. Tarlton, director of the national organization, spoke at the meeting.

CHURCH COUNCIL URGES INQUIRY BY THE LEGION

It Welcomes Lobbying Investigation Sought by Veterans, Secretary Wires.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Dr. Charles S. MacFarland, general secretary of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, telegraphed the commander of the American Legion yesterday welcoming an investigation of the church body and suggesting that it be conducted by the Legion itself.

At its convention at Louisville, Ky., the Legion passed a resolution asking that the United States Senate investigate the alleged lobbying activities of the Federal Council and nine other national organizations reputed in the resolution to be urging a policy "resulting in national weakness."

"I note with pleasure," Dr. MacFarland wired the Legion commander, "that the American Legion requests an investigation of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America. Inasmuch as the Senate Committee may possibly find itself fully occupied with investigations in other directions I take pleasure in making the following request of the American Legion."

"The Legion is hereby invited to appoint a committee of investigation to make as complete an inquiry as it may desire into all actions and procedures of the Federal Council whether in the interest of international peace or any other interest whatever, in order that this inquiry may be as complete and sympathetic as possible I shall recommend to our administrative committee that a committee be appointed to co-operate with the committee of the American Legion and shall suggest that the Federal Council Committee include several members officially related to the council who are members of the American Legion and others who at the present time hold commissions in the army.

"A similar request for investigation recently conveyed to the United States Naval Institute was declined to our deep regret. Will you please present this request officially to the convention. It is earnestly hoped that it will be complied with in the same spirit of good will with which it is offered."

Also Issues Statement.

Dr. MacFarland, in explaining the position of the Federal Council, said in a statement:

"The Federal Council will no longer tolerate the unwarranted and false charges that are being made by various uninformed organizations and especially by under-cover propagandists of interested agencies and so-called patriotic societies. The recent revelations of the activitis of William B. Shearer, who has been an adviser of such societies and who sent an open letter to the Federal Council charging it with numerous acts of disloyalty, is typical of many similar propagandists.

"The Federal Council has nothing to conceal, and it is insistent that its work shall be fully investigated by responsible bodies, and it will offer every facility in its power to those making such an investigation.

Wickersham and Brent.

"Attention migh be called to the fact that during the past six or seven years, the activities of the Commission on International Justice and Goodwill of the Federal Council have been under the direction of responsible men such as the Honorable George W. Wickersham, chairman, and the Right Rev. Charles H. Brent, who was the vice chairman until his death.

"The Federal Council program for international peace has been to support such constructive measures as President Hoover's proposal for a conference for a reduction of naval armaments, the adherence of the United States to the World Court, under appropriate conditions, and similar constructive measures, including especially the cultivation of the spirit of goodwill with the peoples of other nations."

Officers of the League for Industrial Democracy, another of the organizations named in the Legion resolution, issued a statement in which amusement was expressed at being included in a list which, "with beautiful impartiality, embraces the Federal Council of Churches and the Atheists." The statement said the organization maintained no ——

FASHIONS

WHICH ARE SPONSORED BY

Joan Bradley

Stylist for Sears, Roebuck and Co.

If the new mode can be described by a single word, that word is "Individuality." There are so many delightful new developments in the fall's fashion that everyone can look a little bit different without spending a great deal of money. Skirt lengths are varied. Graceful lines, and soft draping fabrics predominate.

Frocks— Tailored frocks are usually in the one piece style, with fitted bodice and high belted waist-lines. Skirts are longer, and flares are low placed. Lightweight woolens, novelty jerseys, Canton crepes and print silks are used.

Afternoon models feature high-waisted belt, moulded front and bloused back. Princess models are very smart. Necklines come in many forms; scarf collars and lace yokes are very good. Canton crepe, velvet and faille weaves are all in fashion. In colors, black leads, dahlia purple is very new, and dark blues, red and green are used to a certain extent.

Coats— Sports and tailored coats show moderately fitted lines, sometimes slightly flared. The fabrics are tweeds, nubbed and flecked mixtures. Favored furs are caracul, beaver, manchurian wolf and raccoon. Brown is the preferred shade, followed by greens, and combinations of colors.

Afternoon and formal coats show fitted lines, and low placed flares. Straightline silhouettes, are very important, with interesting seamings. Long haired furs are used in huge collars, and spiral cuffs. Broadcloth is the favored fabric, while black, dark green, dark red and deep blue are the important hues.

Suits— Ensemble suits are approved by Paris, and may be found in many charming effects. Sports suits come in tweeds, covert cloth and jersey, while crepe satin is in vogue for more formal wear.

Accessories— The ensemble idea is carried out completely, with hose, shoes, millinery and jewelry. To be really smart this season your entire outfit must carry out some definite color scheme.

The newest Autumn fashions . . . as sponsored by Miss Bradley will be displayed in our windows starting Saturday. You will be pleasantly surprised at how moderately you can be smartly outfitted.

FINDS HIS FIRST WIFE IS ALIVE SEEKS ANNULMENT FROM NO. 2

Kansan Says He Loves Second but Feels His Duty Is to One He Thought to Be Dead.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Oct. 4.—Albert F. Rudesheim, 38 years old, has filed annulment proceedings against his second wife because he learned his first mate still was alive. Rudesheim, an insurance salesman, says he loves his second wife, but then there is the law, the church and his duty. His duty, he believes, is to his first wife, whom he though to be dead in a New York asylum, and his two children by that marriage, Madaline, now 13 years old, and Frederick, 10.

The story as told in his petition for annulment, filed yesterday, states that he married Miss Julia Mocska in Schenectady, N. Y., in 1915. They were happy, but after the birth of their second child Mrs. Rudesheim became mentally deranged and was committed to an asylum at Utica, N. Y. Broken in health, Rudesheim went to Denver and there learned from a brother that his wife had died. A newspaper clipping apparently substantiated the report.

In 1924 he married again, this time Miss Marie Delores Herzog, a nurse. They have a boy 4 years old.

But a year ago Rudesheim's mother in a death-bed letter told him his first wife was alive. Shortly afterward he left his second wife, and yesterday decided to take steps to clear his status. Sixty days must elapse before he can obtain a hearing on his petition.

CLIMATE IN ST. LOUIS SAID TO FAVOR TRADE

Industrial Club Declares Weather Conditions Are Better Than in Other Cities.

St. Louis weather in all its varying forms is described and statistically defended in a new booklet, "The Climate of St. Louis," prepared by the Industrial Club for distribution to out-of-town industries in line with its purpose of bringing new industries to this city.

Statistics on temperature, humidity, rain and snowfall and the number of clear and cloudy days are included in the booklet, with the argument that St. Louis climate is conducive of more industrial activity than is possible in other cities, with few interruptions because of inclement weather.

"The climatic conditions of the St. Louis district find practical expression in its everyday life, and constitute a distinct asset," the booklet relates. "Because of its unusual year-round livability, the climate makes for continuous and sustained activity, regardless of the season.

"As a general rule, outdoor work is carried on efficiently during at least nine months of the year. Building operations are started here and brought along to completion during every month, few checks or delays being experienced on account of inclement weather.

Little Snow Reported.

"Ordinarily, St. Louis winters bring but little snow. Occasional light snowfalls usually disappear within a day or two. There are no blizzards, long-continued cold waves, or instances of costly traffic paralysis caused by deep snow or heavy sleet storms, such as are common to the winter climate of more northern, eastern and western cities.

"Workmen and factory operatives seldom encounter any difficulty in reaching their places of employment, nor are factory shipments delayed and congested thrrough transportation breakdowns. The high percentage of crisp, cheerful, sunlit days, even throughout the winter, offers a striking contrast to the long periods of dismal, gloomy weather so depressing to mind and body in many other sections of the country.

"Such conditions are reflected in greater-than-average working efficiency. Employers of factory and other labor who have had experience here and elsewhere on the same manufacturing tasks under the same condition,s frankly say that St. Louis labor is more than ordinarily efficient and satisfactory."

Average Yearly Temperature.

Statistics in the booklet show the average year-round temperature to be 56.3 degrees; the winter average, 34 degrees, and the summer average 77.3 degrees; annual rainfall, 39.53 inches. Average annual sunshine is 62 per cent of the possible maximum, according to the booklet, with one month less than 50 per cent and four months more than 70 per cent. Clear days average 38 per cent of the year, partcloudy 34 per cent and cloudy 28 per cent.

Comparison of Weather.

"Spring in St. Louis," the booklet declares, "is usually about a month further advanced than in the northern lake cities, as can be observed by comparisons of temperatures and of vegetation. The heat periods of July and August here are made bearable by the low relative humidity. Even on the hottest days, it is seldom that a case of sunstroke is heard of in the St. Louis region. Here, too, the autumn seasons, like the spring, are ideal in temperature, and they continue later than in most industrial communities.

"All these conditions are facts, not theories. That they contribute to the health and well-being of St. Louis residents must be apparent when the splendid showing of public health conditions is investigated. That they definitely increase the working efficiency of St. Louis' labor is evident from the actual experience of St. Louis employers."

FRANCE UNEASY OVER MACDONALD'S VISIT TO AMERICA

Premier's visit to the United States. It will afford an opportunity for the discussion not only of the naval question but of the whole wide field of Anglo-American relations. It may smooth the way to a naval accord. Indeed, it is hard to see how it can do otherwise, for in the tentative proposals which have been made by the two countries in the current negotiations there appears to be remaining for settlement only the question of whether the United States should have 18 or 21 large cruisers. It is fair to assume that the British Prime Minister would not be here if an agreement on this last point were not in sight.

The importance of the visit is too obvious to need emphasis and official Washington will treat it with the stately ceremonial befitting the high rank and the high personal attainments of the visitor.

The point that the administration wishes to make, in answer to apprehensions abroad and possible misunderstandings in this country, is simply that the meeting of the Premier and Mr. Hoover will not be a plenary conference, but an informal expression of mutual good will.

GIVEN AWAY AT BIRTH; NOW HEIR TO $325,000

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 4.—Somewhere in the United States is a man, 33 years old, now the heir to $325,000, for whom the courts are ordering a search.

Born in a private hospital in Washington to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Francis Georger, Flemington, N. J., the child was given away by his father with instructions that his identity never be disclosed while both parents carefully kept the secret of his birth.

Vice Chancellor Malcolm E. Buchanan yesterday signed an order authorizing the Bankers' Trust Co. of Newark to search for him, because he is next in line for the estate of his grandfather, William E. Emery, wealthy Flemington farmer, who died in 1912 without knowing of the boy's existence.

In Emery's will, he created a $650,000 trust fund to be shared by his two daughters, Mrs. Georger and Mrs. May E. Cornelius of England. Mrs. Georger, who subsequently remarried, died last year, and it is her share of the trust that the courts would give to her lost son. Should he not be found, his cousin, the daughter of Mrs. Cornelius, will receive the entire estate.

According to the court petition, George B. Case, one of the trustees of the grandfather's estate, has searched records in Washington, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Germany without finding a trace of the child of whom he first learned in 1926.

The petition says that Floresce Emery, under the name of Florence Baker, was secretly married to Frederick Georger under the name of Frederick Gray, July 15, 1895, in Brooklyn. Two months later they were remarried under the right name at her father's home in Flemington.

Five months later, in February, 1896, Mrs. Georger gave birth to a son in a private hospital in Washington, where she was listed as Mrs. Gray. In order to keep the child's birth a secret from Mrs. Georger's family, the father turned the infant over to Sophie Landgraf, making the provision that its identity should never be known. Neither of the Georgers ever saw the child again.

When Case started the search, no trace of Sophie Landgraf could be found nor of the birth certificate. The bank says that, if alive, the man is now heir to the fortune, but that in answer to advertisements for him in Philadelphia, Baltimore and New York papers, but one person responded. This was a man signing himself as James E. Nicholson, Baltimore, who thought he might be the missing heir, but whose claim was never established.

HOW MISSISSIPPI LOST 'BOTTLENECK' ON WAY TO CAIRO

In Four Years, 1200 Men, $10,000,000 and an Idea Solved Channel Problem Below St. Louis.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., Oct. 4.—On board the Steamer Tuscumbia. "Mark twain" and "No Bottom" were the steady chant of deckhands throwing the lead yesterday in the one time "bottleneck" of the Mississippi River Channel between St. Louis and Cairo.

Five years ago, stretches of channel where the lead today is sounding "no bottom," would have been absolutely unnavigable at Wilkinson Island, 90 miles below St. Louis. An eight-foot channel was barely held in 1924 on a 20-foot river stage.

Yesterday on a two-foot stage, lowest in any navigation season for years, the Tuscumbia sounded "Mark Twain" or 12 feet at the upper end of the island and nine feet at the lower.

Four years, 1200 men, a little less than $10,000,000 and an idea have transformed the river, as Maj. J. C. Gotwals is demonstrating on this inspection on the Tuscumbia. The idea was demonstrated so convincingly to his superior officers two years ago that $125,000,000 of the $325,000,000 for flood control is to be spent in applying it to the river below Cairo.

Eads' Theory in Sixties.

The idea is surprisingly simple to have accomplished such remarkable results. It is only that of giving the river a channel of easy normally sweeping bends. Along in the 1860's James Eads first propounded that theory but it underwent many curious involutions before it was untangled once more as gospel for the Mississippi channel half a decade ago.

One interpretation of it seems to have been the exact contrary of what Eads meant. It was held for a time that a crooked channel would be a deep channel. Dikes were placed at odd points, to deflect the current and keep it "bouncing" from bank to bank.

"We have to quit torturing this river," said Maj. Gotwals. "It must have its easy natural curves."

A crooked river cannot be navigated by the enormous tows of modern river transportation. So the army engineers for four years have been smoothing out the bends. No attempt was made to straighten them. The river still has its normal length and normal bends but they are no longer tortuous.

Earlier attempts to bulldoze old Man River have been abandoned. Led thus gently the river has come along like a little lamb. It has been guided back into its own most natural channed.

It has been "pegged down" with permeable pile dikes wherever it showed a wayward tendency. At Wilkinson Island, it has been moved two miles westward for a six-mile stretch where it has gone into an unnatural and illogical channel. And, since man had learned to work with the natural forces of the river instead of against it, the river has stayed put.

The results are that in the worst low water season the Federal Barge Line has ever encountered its channel difficulties were all below Cairo. The notorious St. Louis-Cairo "bottleneck" is a bottle neck no longer.

ARTIST, SENATOR, EXPELLED BY MEXICAN COMMUNISTS

They and Third Member Had Been Accused of Co-Operating With Government.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 4.—The Communist party of Mexico today expelled from its membership Diego Rivera, internationally known artist; Louis Monzon, Communist member of the Senate, and Reyes Perez. All were members of the Communist central committee.

The three leaders had been accused of attempting to co-operate in the political field with certain elements in the Mexican Government, and of failing to oppose energetically the recent arrest and deportation of Communists in Mexico.

The Government recently took steps against the spread of the Communist movement, deporting some of the party members, closing Communist headquarters in Mexico City, and ordering immigration authorities to prevent Communists from entering Mexico.

LIKELY TO DISMISS STATE CHARGE AGAINST FERGUSON

Court Probably Will Uphold Defense, as There Have Been Eight Continuances Without Consent.

The case of the State of Missouri vs. Forrest Ferguson, charged with obtaining money by a false financial statement, is likely to be dismissed, on motion of the defense, whenever Ferguson is called to answer to it in a State court. The State has slept on its rights pending disposition of mail fraud charges against Ferguson in Federal Court.

Ferguson, president of the bankrupt Ferguson-McKinney Manufacturing Co., has been tried three times in Federal Court on the charge of using the mails to defraud, in preparing and sending out statements by which the failing concern obtained $3,350,000 from St. Louis and Eastern banks in 1925. The third and latest jury disagreement occurred last Monday. District Attorney Breuer will consult the Attorney-General before he announces whether he will bring the case to trial a fourth time, as he has the power to do. Unless he does so, the prosecution of Ferguson appears to be practically at an end.

The reason for this appears from examination of the record of the State case, pending in the Circuit Court, Criminal Division. Eight consecutive continuances, covering the five terms of court in 1928 and the three terms thus far in 1929, have been granted on application of the State, without application or consent of the defense. Under the law (Sec. 4041, R. S. Mo., 1919), a defendant is entitled to discharge if his case is continued, without his consent, for three terms. Court decisions have stretched this, in some cases, to four terms.

Foristel to Press Point.

Edward W. Foristel, chief counsel for Ferguson, said today that he would press this point, and every other technical point which can be raised in Ferguson's favor, whenever the case is called in the State courts.

"Mr. Ferguson has never stood on technicalities hitherto," Foristel said. "He has been tried four times, once in the State and three times in the Federal courts. I cannot recall any other person who has been tried four times. These trials have been on the merits of the case, and though Mr. Ferguson is still game and desirous of fully establishing his innocence, I feel that he has stood enough.

"Hereafter, in either the State or the Federal Court, I shall press every technical point that can be raised in this case. The record of continuances appears to be sufficient to insure dismissal. If anything more were necessary, the indictment presents many vulnerable points."

The trial in the State courts, to which Foristel referred, was on an embezzlement charge, and was in April, 1926. After the State had presented its evidence, Judge Mix upheld a motion of the defense for a discharge, on the ground that no case had been made under the statute. Circuit Attorney Sidener thereupon dismissed the remaining indictments, which charged obtaining money by a false financial statement. He said that as the strongest case had failed, it was useless to prosecute weaker cases. In his estimate of the respective strength of the cases, Sidener was at variance with William O. Reeder, who was employed by banks as special prosecutor, but who withdrew from the case before the hearing, when his suggestions were not accepted.

In July, 1926, when Sidener's office was under investigation by Attorney-General Gentry, the Attorney-General obtained a new indictment against Ferguson, charging the making of a false financial statement. In the meantime, the Federal grand jury had indicted Ferguson and Alfred Baggot, secretary of Ferguson-McKinney, on mail fraud charges. The State's case was held in abeyance while the Federal Government made its three successive attempts to convict Ferguson, trying Baggot with him twice, and trying Ferguson alone the third time, last week.

Continuances of the State case in 1927 were with the consent of Ferguson's counsel, but those in 1928 were on the State's motion alone. Last December, just before Sidener went out of the Circuit Attorney's office, the question of a dismissal of the Ferguson indictment arose.

Sidener at first said he would nolle pros the case, then said he would not, as it was not instituted by him, but by Gentry. "It's not my baby," was Sidener's expression. He said, however, that if Attorney Foristel wished to move for dismissal, on account of the record of five continuances at the State's instance, he, Sidener, would confess the validity of such a motion.

Foristel, who was in court, said in reply to this:

"My client doesn't wish to take advantage of a technicality. He wishes to be tried on this charge. Attorney-General Gentry obtained this indictment, and if Mr. Gentry will come here and prosecute the case, I will waive my claim to dismiss because of these continuances."

The case was then continued on the State's motion until the January term of 1929. Wayne Ely, who represented the Attorney-General's office in the case, previously had withdrawn. Foristel said today that, in view of the recent re-trial of the case in Federal Court, he would not make any future waiver of technical rights. He said his statement of last December would not have any legal effect on the record of continuances, to which three have been added under Circuit Attorney Miller.

Circuit Attorney Miller, when asked about the record of continuances and other phases of the State's case, repeated his previous declaration that he would have nothing to say about the Ferguson case until the Government makes known what it will do with the mail fraud case.

If the State's case were to go to trial, the requirements of evidence would be largely the same as those in the Federal case, except that the use of the mails would not be a factor. The State indictment charges that Ferguson and the late Murray Carleton, treasurer and financial backer of Ferguson-McKinney, "intending to cheat and defraud the State National Bank of St. Louis, caused the Ferguson-McKinney Manufacturing Co. to submit a signed copy" of a false balance sheet to the bank's president. In this and other allegations, and in the language of the statute (Sec. 3367, R. S. Mo. 1919), the element of fraudulent intent is about the same that it was in the Federal case. There, it appears to have been the chief stumbling block of the juries. The facts as to Ferguson's acts were unquestioned, but he pleaded that he acted on Carleton's direction, having full confidence in Carleton's ability to pull the business through.

The penalty fixed by state law for obtaining money or credit by a false financial statement is two to five years' imprisonment, or a jail term up to one year, or fine up to $1000, or both fine and imprisonment. For the offense of obtaining money under false pretenses, charged in another count of the Ferguson indictment, the penalty is two to five years in the penitentiary, with no option of jail term or fine.

cannot be said to assist him in it The whole force, moral and physical, that went to the production of the crime, as such, was the seller."

Criticises Prosecution.

Judge Thomson who wrote the opinion, criticised the Federal authorities in the prosecution of Norris because, he said, they had been unable to reach a liquor buyer directly under the prohibition law and had adopted the "indirect means of trying to get at him," through a charge of conspiracy.

"Such a situation is scarcely conceivable," Judge Thomson observed, "and yet that is the position of the Government.

"It is conceded that under the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act, passed to carry it into effect, the purchase of liquor is not made an offense. It follows that the purchase as such does not subject the buyer to punishment. While the seller of liquor, who delivers it to the purchaser, is liable under the law, both for the sale and transportation, the purchaser to whom the goods are delivered is chargeable with neither the purchase nor the transportation."

JUROR FIGHTS PASTOR IN COURT; FOUR HURT

Combat Occurs as Result of Radio Remarks About Mrs. Pantages' Trial.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 4.—Four men today bore marks of a physical encounter in the courtroom where two Los Angeles ministers are being tried for contempt as a result of remarks they made about the recent trial of Mrs. Alexander Pantages, wife of the theatrical magnate.

Those involved in the clash and the injuries suffered are the Rev. Robert T. ("Fighting Bob") Shuler, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, South, a black eye; the Rev. G. A. Briegleb, pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, scratches and bruises; Deputy District Attorney James Costello, bruised right cheek, and Ira F. Gay, juror in the trial of Mrs. Pantages, bruised knuckles, scratched fact.

Gay, alleged to have been the subject of recent radio remarks by Shuler, in which the minister charged that "the Lois Pantages jury was hung before taking of testimony was begun, and I can name the man who will hang it," accosted the pastor at adjournment of the latter's hearing yesterday on the contempt charges.

"Take off your glasses," Gay demanded of Shuler before the bench, upon which three Superior Court judges sat en banc.

"Why should I?" the minister asked.

"Because you have treated me unjustly. You have asked me questions which have placed me in a bad light, and you have given me no opportunity to clear myself. So take 'em off."

Shuler attempted to pacify Gay. The latter, however, shot out his right fist and blackened Shuler's eye. Shuler missed a return blow and caught Costello on the cheek, nearly flooring him. Briegleb, codefendant with Shuler in the contempt charges, whose case was taken under advisement, stepped between the antagonists and was jostled and bruised. Gay's face was scratched in the encounter before he was led into Superior Judge Carlos Hardy's chambers, where he was placed under arrest. He later was released.

Newspapers today quoted Shuler as having apologized to Gay and as accepting an apology from Gay for the blow. He was quoted as saying he would not bring charges against the juror.

Arguments in Shuler's case were heard today. He is acting as his own attorney.

FARM VALUES INCREASING, SAYS LAND BANK EXECUTIVE

Wood Netherland of St. Louis Declares Sales This Year Are 60 Per Cent Greater Than Last.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4. — Wood Netherland, president of the Federal Land Bank of St. Louis, said at a meeting yesterday of Federal Land Bank presidents and the Federal Farm Loan Board that "no agency which is in close touch with agriculture can fail to note that farm values have reached the bottom and are slowly but surely on the upgrade."

"This statement," Netherland added, "is based upon cold facts and statistics which demonstrate an unmistakable trend for the better. This improvement has been noticeable since last April."

"The demand for real estate is much firmer than a year ago. Sales for 1929, up to August 31, are practically 60 per cent more than they were a year ago. Sales during July, August and September have been particularly gratifying as they have been from five to seven times as great as in the same period in 1928.

ize the tariff commission to convert all percentage duties in the bill into rates calculated on domestic value and report the rates to Congress for action by Jan. 1, 1932.

The second action restored a House provision to authorize the President to order an investigation by some Government agency of the feasibility of adopting some form of domestic value and report to Congress on the formula most practicable. This provision was eliminated by the Finance Committee in the belief that the tariff commission conversion amendment was sufficient, but Chairman Smoot agreed to its restoration after Senator Norris (Rep.), Nebraska, suggested it would be better to have two agencies study the question.

Norris for Plan.

While Senators King, Utah; Harrison, Mississippi; and George of Georgia, Democrats, assailed the Reed amendment as a disguised move to obtain higher protection for industry, Senator Norris, one of the Republican Independents who joined the Democrats in their successful attempt to write their own flexible tariff plan into the bill, was in accord with the Republican regulars.

The Nebraskan agreed there were many defects in the present system of assessing percentage duties and said he preferred to have the second investigation conducted by an agency other than the Tariff Commission.

If the two agencies agreed on the method to be followed, he said, this would add weight to the proposal to be recommended to Congress. Should they disagree, then Congress could thrash out the difference.

Smoot and Reed said the domestic value method would so reduce the duties as to produce the same amount of customs receipts. Assuming the method is "honestly governer," Norris agreed there would be no difference in the amount of duty collected.

Reed contended it would bring a slight increase in revenue only in cases where "dishonest importers" now undervalue imports.

Assails 'Grundy Group.'

Senator King saw behind the new method a "scheme of American manufacturers to obtain a monopoly of domestic markets and to cut off all importations." He charged the "grundy crowd" in Pennsylvania with being interested in the plan.

Harrison described the plan as the most "boxnoxious" part of the bill aside from the Republican flexible provision, and, looking up at Joseph R. Grundy, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturer's Association, who was in the gallery, said adoption of the measure would be "most pleasing to some of those in the galleries now—a choice morsel in the feast they are counting on here."

NAVAL STUDENT FLYER KILLED

PENSACOLA, Fla., Oct. 4.—Ensign Henry G'Sell, naval student aviator, was killed at the naval air station here today when apparently he lost control of his Curtiss Hawk airplane in maneuvers 2500 feet above the landing field. He crashed.

G'Sell's home was in Kansas City, Mo.

G'Sell had been performing the maneuvers as a part of his flying course, which would have been completed in about a month. As he passed over the landing field at the 2500-foot altitude, the plane suddenly swerved and plunged to the ground. G'Sell was apparently unable to extricate himself for a parachute jump, it was said. Naval officials said that this was the fourth crash that G'Sell had been in. Two were of minor nature and he made a parachute jump to save his life in the third.

To the children's eyes comes the sparkle of joy

COULD children's laughter be a little merrier . . . or their eyes sparkle more joyously . . . or their shouts of approval be more whole-hearted . . . it comes when you give them "Canada Dry."

Absolutely pure ingredients make "Canada Dry" safe for children. Jamaica ginger of the highest quality gives it a wonderfully subtle, appetizing taste. Expert skill in making and scrupulous conditions of purity and testing recommend "Canada Dry" to parents. And the children like its delicate and uniform carbonation.

This fine old ginger ale is served in leading hospitals throughout this country and Canada. Many physicians recommend it. Here is a purer, finer, better ginger ale.

DANNEMORA (N. Y.) CONVICT SLAIN TRYING TO ESCAPE

By the Associated Press.

DANNEMORA, N. Y., Oct. 4.—A 21-year-old convict at Clinton State prison was shot and killed yesterday in an attempt to escape. The youth, Nick Mastro, Schenectady, was serving three terms totaling 22 years for robbery and assault.

He climbed an electric light pole to the top of the prison wall. Jeremiah Callahan, a guard, rushed to meet him, armed only with his guard stick. Heedless of the blows rained on him by the guard, Mastro grappled with Callahan and the two struggled atop the wall. Another guard, Thomas Brannigan, ran from the principal keeper's office and shot the convict in the hip.

Mastro fell on the top of the wall and Callahan stepped back into the guard house for his gun. As he stepped out, Mastro again attacked him and Callahan pressed the trigger of the sub-machine gun.

Caulfield to Cape Girardeau.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 4.—Gov. Caulfield and E. H. Winter, Lieutenant-Governor, left early today by automobile for Cape Girardeau where tonight they will be honored guests at a banquet celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Southeast-Misso daily newspaper of Cape Girar The Governor will speak.

A chance to hear the world's finest RADIOS

HERE they are, the finest radios in the world, the Balanced-Unit Philcos, the radios that have revolutionized radio tone, doubled the sharpness of radio selectivity, and widened by thousands of miles the circle of stations from which the radio owner may choose.

Seven handsome Philco models await your selection. When you hear the startling clearness with which they reproduce every program, no matter how intricate, no matter whether instrumental or vocal—when you tune interfering programs into stillness by just a hairbreadth turn of the Philco dial—when you bring in station after station from far out across the continent—then you will understand why Philco sales this year have shown a percentage increase nine times as great as the average for the whole industry.

Not only will Philco's extraordinary performance greatly increase your radio enjoyment, but Philco's cabinets are tinged with beauty that recalls the work of the fine old cabinet-makers of England.

And yet, in spite of these many valuable features, Philco prices are remarkably low—the result of exceptional manufacturing facilities. Do you know any sounder radio investment? Nobody does!

NEXT SUNDAY AT 4:30 P. M. Leopold Stokowski and the Philadelphia Orchestra go on the air for the first time. Don't miss this, the most important and most enjoyable radio event of the year. But—if you want to hear the music of this great orchestra exactly mirrored in sound, be sure to tune in a Balanced-Unit Philco.

RACE FOR TALLEST BUILDING IN NEW YORK NEVER ENDS

Final Plans for Empire State Held Up Until the Last Minute.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The race for the tallest building and most elaborate apartment honors is becoming almost as unstable as aviation endurance records.

The effort to create superlative size and grandeur has extended beyond the rearing of more magnificent movie cathedrals, which lately have served as symbols of he Bigger and Better age. At this writing the Manhattan building is intended to be the highest in New York. Its 68 stories will extend 880 feet above Wall street. But the projectors of the Empire State building on the site of the old Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, headed by Alfred E. Smith, hope to make their office pile the tallest in the world.

Recognizing a tendency to sketch additional floors and peaks on building plans, the architects are holding up the final design for the Empire State until the last moment. Although the building probably will have 80 stories and a height of more than 900 feet, these dimensions will depend upon whatever announcements are made by other landlords within the next few months. Then the former Governor and his associates hope to establish a landmark that will stand as such at least for the time it takes to put up a loftier mass.

Incidentally, it begins to look as though the Woolworth Tower is doomed to the obscurity that long has made the once-famous Flatiron building an almost forgotten architectural curio.

UNIVERSITY CITY-CREVE COEUR BUS EXTENSION TO BE TRIED

Bus service on the University City to Creve Coeur line of the Creve Coeur Drayage and Motorbus Co. will be extended next Wednesday for a month's trial, to be continued if patronage justifies. The line runs from the Delmar street car loop over Kingsland avenue and Olive Street road to Creve Coeur. On the present schedule busses run every hour except for a 30-minute schedule during rush hours.

"S. S. Florida in distress!"

CHARLES E. MAASS

The story of Charles E. Maass, wireless operator of the S. S. America which rescued the crew of the ill-fated "Florida" in a howling storm!

"It happened 700 miles out at sea—with the waves rising mountain high! . . . I can never forget that day!—twenty hours at the key flashing messages of hope—reporting to Capt. Fried—finally, the thrilling rescue by Chief Officer Manning! You know all about that.

"But did you know that in 1920 when I installed the first broadcast station west of Chicago, I used Brandes headphones exclusively? I knew they were the best. And today, I am just as enthusiastic about the new Brandes Radio! It's a Brandes—with a world of experience behind it—it just had to be good!"

Noise from Volume Control.

Poor contact will cause noise from the volume control. In this device there are two sliding contacts, one on the shaft and the other where the slider runs over the contact wires. The control can be taken apart and the shaft and sliding contacts wiped with a clean cloth. Rub them until they are polished.

For the Notebook.

The cost of A. C. receiver operation is less than the former cost of charging the storage battery and buying new "B" batteries.

BOHEMIAN CLUB OWNER FREED OF LIQUOR CHARGES

Liquor charges against Clifford E. Green of 1736 Waverly place, owner of the Bohemian Club at Market and Commercial streets, were dismissed by Judge Butler of the Court of Criminal Correction yesterday on Green's statement that liquor found on a broken table in his cafe belonged to customers.

Green was arrested Aug. 29, following a free-for-all fight in his establishment, in which chairs, tables, glasses and most of the furnishings were broken. When police entered, they testified, Green stood near the remains of a table on which were two containers of gin, one of which, by chemical analysis, disclosed, had 6.6 per cent alcohol, and the other 33 per cent.

BANKERS DEMAND FEDERAL INQUIRY OF BROKER LOANS

American Association Calls on Reserve System to Investigate Increase in Depository Advances.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 4.—Describing the nation's credit situation as sound but presenting many new problems and calling upon the Federal Reserve System to conduct a scientific investigation into the increase of brokers loans, the American Bankers' Association completed the work of its annual convention here yesterday.

The convention, by unanimous resolution, took a firm stand against any change in the present method of taxing national banks, saying changes proposed by Congress would weaken such banks. National banks as agencies of the Federal Government may be taxed by states the same as other property, and some states have sought a change whereby a special class tax on national banks would be created. The resolution set forth that such a levy would tax national banks out of existence.

The Federal Reserve System was urged in another resolution to co-operate with the authorities of the New York Stock Exchange to promote such changes as may relieve the national credit situation. While it was stated that credit in the United States is fundamentally sound, it was pointed out that hand-to-mouth buying, reduced inventories, increased production, higher earnings, smaller capital requirements and installment buying had tended to bring about a fundamental change.

Financing Industries.

Financing industries through securities, especially stocks, has reduced commercial bank loans, but increased the growth of loans against securities. Security prices have risen, wider margins have been demanded, and the bankers in a resolution, expressed solicitude over the resulting situation, which is manifest in brokers' loan figures and fluctuations in the market as well as in the price of credit.

Other resolutions included indorsement of the Federal Farm Board, instructions to the economic policy commission to continue investigation of the country's economic evolution and expressions of gratitude to the retiring president, Craig B. Hazlewood of Chicago.

Preceding the adoption of resolutions and presentation of an elaborate silver service to Hazlewood, papers by George W. Davison of New York and Col. Max B. Nahm of Bowling Green, Ky., championed the present banking system of the United States—the National and State Banks and the Federal Reserve System—as the best in the world, not needing any radical changes, but well suited to the commercial needs of the country.

Davison advocated perfecting the organization of the correspondent bank system. He said the city bank should co-operate with the country bank in transacting business rather than absorb the country units.

Nahm's message warned of the danger of drifting into financial feudalism, "where we are economic vassals either of the Federal Government or of a few big city corporations who do not know us and whom we may never see.

Unexpected sharpness was given to criticism of group anking when Davison digressed from his prepared speech to say:

"I have been surprised since reaching San Francisco to learn how great a part the price of bank stocks is playing among the group and chain people. Time was and will be again, I am confident, when it was not considered becoming of a banker to be concerned in the selling price of his bank stock, much less to be active in the market for it.

"On my arrival a man came to me and asked if I remembered his offering me control of the bank within a year. I did and he told me he had sold it for 2½ times the price he had offered it to a very prominent group.

Another Oversold.

"Another man came along and reported at once the difficulty a group had had in maintaining the price of their stock, and how much they had to take in to do so. Within five minutes another man reported the sale of a bank for twice its previous value.

"Have we here some explanation of the purpose of group and chain activities? Immediate market appreciation and little, if any regard for intrinsic values, earning capacity, and the customers of the bank on whom its future must depend in everything?"

John W. Barkon, newly elected president of the National Bank Commission, announced the following special committee on National Bank Research: George H. Hamilton, Wichita, Kan., chairman; A. W. Anderson, Los Angeles; Robert V. Fleming, Washington, D. C., and Edmund S. Wolfe, Bridgeport, Conn.

The creation of this special committee is an outgrowth of the conditions of the national banking system resulting from defections and consequent lessening of national banking and Federal Reserve resources.

CONTRACT FOR WEBSTER SEWER PROPOSAL FILED IN COURT

A copy of a contract between the supervisors of the Webster Groves Sewer District and two law firms was filed in Circuit Judge Nolte's court at Clayton yesterday with a request that he approve the amount and terms of the contract.

Judge Nolte placed the petition on his docket, but declined to say what action he would take. The Ralph sewer law, under which the district is organized leaves the contracts with attorneys solely in the hands of the supervisors, but the question of a proper legal fee has caused so much discussion in Webster Groves that the approval of the Court was requested.

The proposed contract stipulates that the firms of Roessel and Minton, and Carter, Jones & Turney receive $250 a month each from Dec. 1, 1928, to the time of completion of the sewer. However, a maximum of $30,000 and a minimum of $17,500, for attorney fees is provided.

George Barnett, an attorney residing in Webster Groves, resigned as a supervisor when he learned of a proposed contract providing for a $70,000 attorney fee and because he objected to including a minimum fee in a subsequent proposed contract similar to the one now under consideration. John R. Turney has announced that his firm would not accept any compensation since he originally promised to serve without pay.

W. C. T. U. CONDEMNS NAMING SCHOOL BUSCH

Declares That Manufacturer of Beer Is Not Proper One for Honor.

The action of the Board of Education in naming of a public school in honor of the late Adolphus Busch was condemned by the St. Louis Federation of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union at its forty-fifth annual convention today in the Y. W. C. A. Building, 1411 Locust street.

Selection of Busch's name for a St. Louis school, the meeting of 100 women decided, was highly improper in that he was a manufacturer of beer, while Missouri statutes provide for the teaching in public schools of the effects of drinking alcoholic beverages on the human system and for the observance of Frances Willard day on Sept. 28, especially for such instruction. The resolution was presented by Mrs. Ellen A. P. Hayes.

High points in the year's work as reported by Miss Fannie D. Robb, corresponding secretary, included the organization's protest against the proposed Missouri tax on brew malt, which it was felt would make the state a party to brewing beer, and objection voiced to President Hoover against appointment of Nathan Frank, "wet St. Louisan," to the Law Enforcement Commission. Exception was also taken to the name of Nat Goldstein, "who was urged for some public office by our wet politicians."

Mrs. J. W. Shankland, for the past three years president of the organization, was re-elected. In her address which described her trip abroad in the interests of liquor traffic abolition she said the revolt of youth is very much an actuality, but a different kind than most persons suspect. "It is a revolt against the restrictions and traditions of the past, including the drinking habits of their fathers."

FUNERAL OF BOY WHO KILLED SELF IN SHOOTING GALLERY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

IRONTON, Mo., Oct. 4.—Ernest Young, who decided he was a failure and killed himself with a rented pistol in a St. Louis shooting gallery after quitting his job as a Hotel Chase busboy, was buried today in the country churchyard at Minimum, Iron County, near the youth's former home.

From his father, Richard Young, owner of a 180-acre farm in this Ozark region 13 miles from Ironton, it was learned that Ernest was 19 years old, not 22 as had been thought in St. Louis, and was the youngest of three boys in a family of eight children.

Ernest left home about 18 months ago, the father said, intending to earn enough money to complete the remaining two years of his high-school course. Last week he wrote his mother that he had "got mad and quit his job," explaining that she would not hear from him for a long time, because he planned to travel. He wrote a letter to his sweetheart, Miss Edith Black, an Ironton High School student, telling her to forget about him.

LAKE MICHIGAN DIVERSION REFERRED BACK TO HUGHES

Two Factions Complete Testimony on Carrying Out Supreme Court Decree.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The Lake Michigan diversion controversy was referred back to Charles Evans Hughes as special master today on conclusion of testimony from the two opposing factions relative to the manner in which the Supreme Court decree should be carried out.

The six complainant states, Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania, submitted a tentative form of the decree they requested Hughes to make, looking to complete cessation of the diversion. "From five to six years," they said, "is a reasonable and in fact liberal period of time for the design, construction and placing in operation of all of the structures and facilities involved in the completion, or construction and placing in operation, of the sewage disposal plants which are required in a practical program for the disposal of the sewage of the sanitary district by means other than lake diversion."

PETITION IN BANKRUPTCY AGAINST UNIQUE DRESS CO.

A petition in bankruptcy was filed in the Federal Court yesterday against the Unique Dress Co., 1301 Washington avenue, manufacturers and wholesalers, on behalf of a group of New York creditors.

Although the petition merely sets out that the dress company owed in excess of $1000 to each of several New York wholesalers, attorney for the plaintiffs said the liabilities were about $50,000 and the assets about $16,000. Irving M. Novack is president of the company.

Kansas City Wharf Authorized.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Secretary of War Good today approved a permit authorizing Kansas City (Mo.) authorities to construct a wharf on the Missouri River 391.8 miles above its mouth and immediately east the state line between Kansas and Missouri.

WHEAT CLOSES FIRM ON CHICAGO MARKET

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Despite profit-taking on advances in price, the wheat market here maintained an undertone of strength most of the time today. Firmness of the Winnipeg wheat market attracted unusual attention here. Export demand today for North American wheat, however, was not brisk.

Wheat closed firm, ½c to 1⅛c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed ¾c to 1⅜c advance, oats unchanged to ¼c up; and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12c.

Notice was taken of Washington reported denials that the Farm Relief Board would not be in position to do anything for farmers on this year's crop. Opening unchanged to ⅝ off, Chicago wheat underwent some setback all around, and then scored gains. Corn displayed an independent upward trend, starting unchanged to ⅝ higher and subsequently going near the initial figures. Oats were firm. Provisions pointed higher.

With the Liverpool wheat market giving evidence of some relative strength, and with indications that concerted measures were taken to relieve congestion of grain storage facilities at Liverpool, wheat prices in Chicago developed considerable firmness at times today.

A Liverpool cable received here today said there were few sellers of wheat on declines in prices, and that on the contrary rather more demand at Liverpool was apparent. The fact was also noted that tenders of wheat on Liverpool October contracts so far had been taken up by merchants and others against sales of December and later months. The tenders reached aggregate 512 vessel loads.

WIDE LOWER RANGES ON CURB EXCHANGE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The curb market was swamped with a mighty wave of liquidation today, which swept a wide assortment of leading issues down 5 to more than 25 points, several to new lows for the year or longer. The ticker was lost in the deluge, falling more than an hour behind the market. The new increase in brokers' loans proved another shock to speculative confidence, and curb stocks were dumped overboard in huge volume to meet margin calls on "big board" holdings.

The market rallied briefly in the early afternoon, but again turned sharply downward toward the close, and late prices were around the lowest of the day.

STEAMED APPLE PUDDING IS A SEASONABLE DAINTY

This Wholesome Fruit Is Now Seasonable and at Its Best.

Select six good-sized apples, peel them, quarter and core. Cut two of them in thin slices and chop the rest coarsely.

Butter a three-pint pudding mold and fill the bottom with the sliced apples mixed with one-half cup brown sugar and one-half teaspoon cinnamon. Mix and sift two cups of flour with one-half cup sugar, three teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt and the grated rind of half a lemon. Rub in one-third cup of shortenings. When well blended add one well beaten egg and one cup of milk. Stir in the chopped apples last. The mixture should be a thick batter.

Pour into the mold on top of the sliced apples, cover closely and steam for two and one-half hours. Turn out and serve warm with hard sauce.

Savory Baked Ham.

Rub a paste of equal parts of dry mustard and water into both sides of a slice of ham, an inch or more in thickness. Place ham in a baking dish slightly larger, add milk almost to cover, and bake in moderate oven until milk is absorbed and top of ham is nicely browned.

POPCORN A FAVORED ARTICLE OF FOOD

While Children Have Always Loved It, Grownups Now Enjoy It, Too.

Pop corn has been rediscovered as a favorite food for any occasion—for people of all ages.

Everyone recognizes the fact that home popping has become a favorite evening's diversion the past few years.

There's real pleasure in popping corn that always pops out into large, white, fluffy kernels, and even more pleasure in eating big bowls full of pop corn that's free from tough hulls and hard, unpopped kernels.

The process of sealing the corn hermetically in packages has been responsible for the recent revival in the popularity of pop corn.

It wasn't so very many years ago that pop corn was sold only in bulk. Many of us remember the time when grocers scooped the corn from dusty bins underneath the counters and sold it in paper sacks. Whether it was shelled or on the ear, it was exposed to the air for weeks or months at a time, much of it spoiled and frequently the remainder refused to pop.

The uncertainty has been taken out of pop corn. Grocers now sell it with the assurance that it is unconditionally guaranteed to pop.

Then, there's more pleasure in eating pop corn, because it's as nourishing and healthful a food as you can eat. Mothers especially find it the ideal food to give youngsters to eat between meals

In many homes it is a delightful custom to serve pop corn at bridge parties and to have a bowlful nearby when listening in on the radio.

Frizzle chipped beef in butter and serve on toast spread with prepared mustard.

Put odds and ends of cold meat (roast meat, dried beef, bologna—any left-overs you may have), through food chopper. Moisten with prepared mustard. Heat in a bit of bacon fat in a frying pan and spread on hot buttered toast.

Toast brown bread and spread with baked beans heated with a dash of prepared mustard.

PLANNING MENUS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Appetizing Variations in Food Combinations Add Interest to Daily Meals.

This month marks the return of oysters to our national bill-of-fare. Most sea foods, and oysters especially, are rich in iodine, and as they are also easily digested and an almost general favorite, they have a well earned place on our food list. Try including them at least once a week in order to insure a supply of food iodine.

The advantage in working from a weekly meal plan lies in the fact that you can make better use of leftovers.

For instance, this week canned or stewed fresh peaches are used for the cream Sunday night and for the salad for Monday's luncheon. The entirely different methods of serving prevent any feeling of sameness, while meal planning is made simpler by being able to plan more than one meal at a time.

The same principle applies to the use of the chicken as a creamed mixture and in soup.

A few of the kidney beans, the outside stalks of celery together with shredded green pepper, a bit of onion and some shredded cabbage make possible the vegetable salad.

It doesn't take long to get into the habit of thinking for two or three meals rather than one at a time, as it is surprising how much easier the question of 'what shall we eat' becomes once this habit is acquired.

Steamed puddings and some of the other heartier desserts may be planned now that the weather in most sections shows signs of cooler days.

Apples make many good varieties of these heartier desserts, and their use is recommended for baked and steamed dumplings, pies, Dutch apple cake, brown betty, steamed apple pudding, as well as for custards, whips and gelatine dishes. The flavor is one that we seldom tire of and most of us welcome the appearance of the apple season.

Escalloped corn and tomatoes make an excellent vegetable combination and one that will be new to many of you. If fresh corn and tomatoes are available, use them; if not a can of each may be used, selecting one of solid tomatoes in No. 2 size.

Put the two vegetables together in a buttered baking dish, mixing lightly and add salt and pepper to season and one teaspoon sugar. Dot with two tablespoons butter, sprinkle with three-fourths cup soft breadcrumbs and bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven.

The Versatile Lemon.

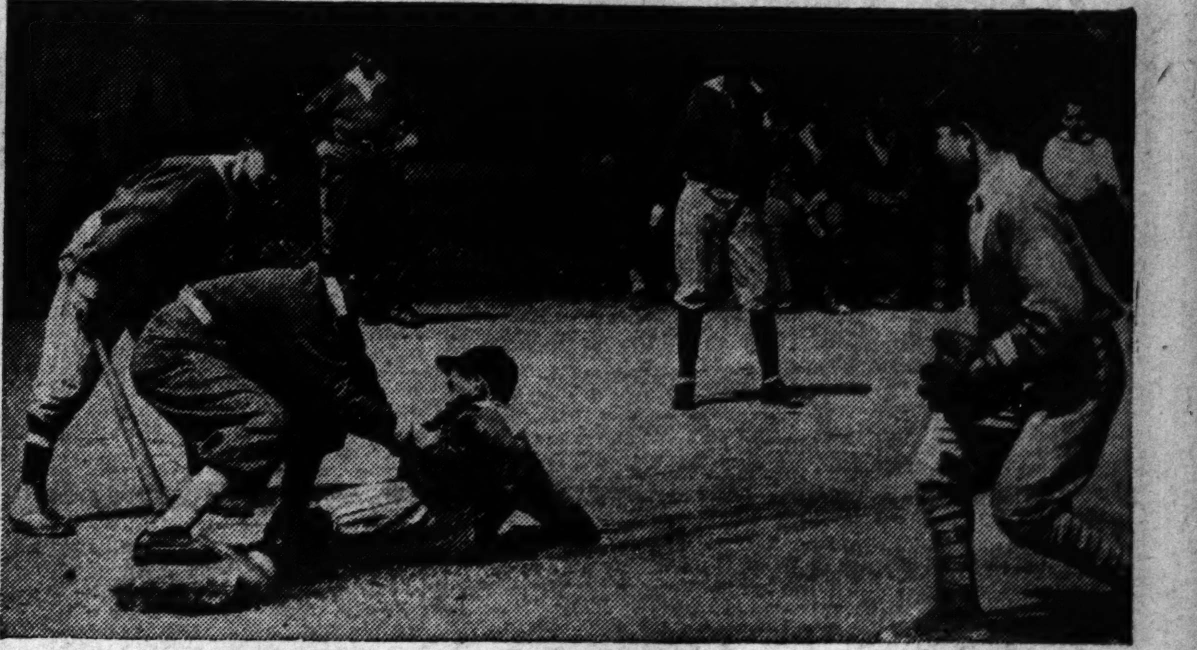
Hard Play Burns Up Energy...Wise Mothers Find a Way to Replace It



We're Building Sturdy Children, Mother

With this Remarkable New-Day Bread

The Flavor Delights Them So!

It combines high dietetic value and matchless flavor at absolutely no extra cost to you. Sold by leading grocers everywhere

BY ALICE ADAMS PROCTOR

WE bake it for your children to make balanced diet easy. If you haven't tried it, you should do so right away.

It's a new-day bread, utterly different, as you shall see, from any bread ever offered before. It represents two years' research and the expenditure of $6,000,000.

When we first introduced it, thousands of women tried it. They told tens of thousands of others. And in two years they made it the largest-selling bread in America.

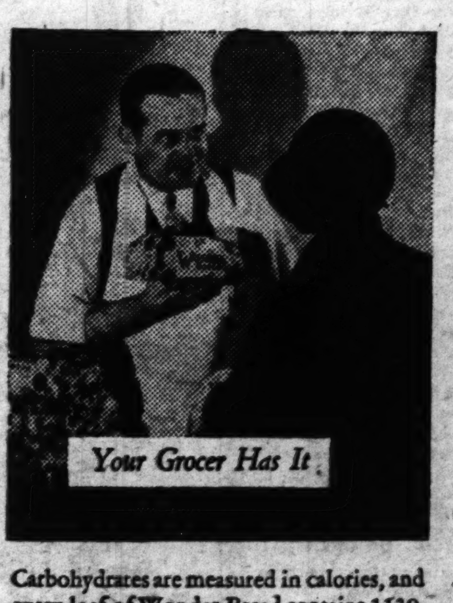
What Dietitians Say

First of all, it represents the most economical known way of giving carbohydrates.



Carbohydrates are measured in calories, and every loaf of Wonder Bread contains 1139.

Hence, by serving it three times daily you largely avoid "carbohydrate starvation."

Which simply means failure to replace with proper foods the tissue burned up at work or play.

Its Famous Flavor

Other foods may or may not offer you these benefits.

But in Wonder Bread you know you get them. They come to you in bread considered by nationally known experts the most delicious ever baked. And at absolutely no extra cost.

Women the country over will tell you this. Children, the sternest critics of food flavor in the world, have preferred it from the start.

As you see, we make strong claims. But every claim we make has been proved again and again. In domestic science kitchens. Also in more than ten million homes.

How We Make It

To make Wonder Bread we employ a staff of matchless chefs. They work in model kitchens. We never hurry them.

We use a specially milled "short patent" flour. Only the heart of the wheat berry is used. We use double the usual amount of milk. And we pasteurize every drop.

These ingredients are extremely costly, but they do give a vastly better bread. And so we benefit through tremendous extra sales.

We also employ a unique baking method. Wonder Bread is "slo-baked." This means, as the term suggests, slower baking and more careful baking. It brings you greater digestibility. More delicate flavor. Longer-lasting freshness.

Please Try At Once

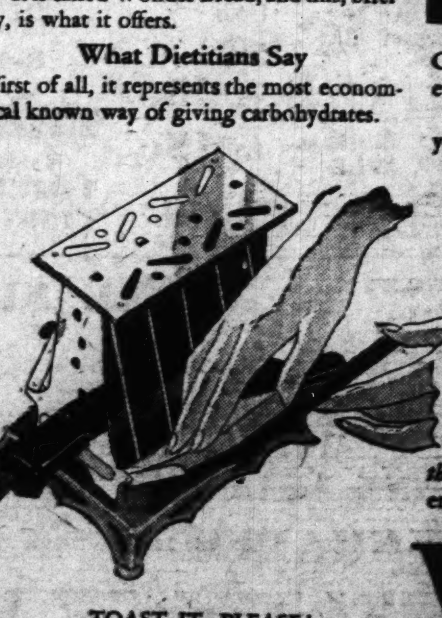
So do, please, as the country's wisest women are doing and give this new-day bread an immediate trial.

Only remember to say "Wonder Bread" and say it distinctly. It costs you no more to get it. Ordinary breads in spite of their claims cannot give Wonder Bread advantages.

OVER THE RADIO

At 7:30 every Wednesday evening the Happy Wonder Bakers present the Wonder Period over KSD and 27 associated stations of the National Broadcasting Company.

Tune in and hear the famous Happy Wonder Bakers Trio. And their orchestra conducted by Frank Black. It's an air sensation.



TOAST IT, PLEASE!

Many women skeptical of what we claim have been won by toasting Wonder Bread in direct comparison with other breads. Won't you try it?

INTRIGUING CABBAGE SALAD

Made With Cabbage, Cottage Cheese and Sour Cream Dressing.

Wash and crisp one firm head of cabbage or sufficient to allow one cup of chopped cabbage for each serving.

Chop the cabbage in a chopping bowl or shred the cabbage in fine ribbons. Then crisp the cabbage again. For each salad, use one-fourth cup of dry cottage cheese. Then dress with a sour cream dressing.

To arrange the salad, place the cabbage on the plate, rather well distributed. Break the cheese into fine particles with a fork. Then sprinkle part of the cheese over the cabbage. Add the sour cream dressing lightly over the whole serving, and sprinkle some more flakes of cheese for a garnish. Add a last touch of paprika.

RECIPES FOR DISHES IN WEEK'S MENUS

If a good sized chicken is used, say one of about five pounds, there should be enough left over to make chicken a la king for one meal, and the bones used for sorp for a luncheon next day. A well flavored stuffing adds much to a roast chicken, and I suggest that this week you use one made from three cups of soft breadcrumbs, one tablespoon minced onion, one tablespoon minced parsley, one teaspoon poultry seasoning, the grated rind of one lemon, one teaspoon salt, one-fourth cup melted fat, pepper to season and enough boiling water to just moisten

When mixed, add three tablespoons chopped walnut meats and stuff into the chicken. Allow room for the stuffing to swell, and be careful not to have it too moist—a good stuffing is never pasty or soggy.

Use the giblets—heart, liver and gizzard—to make the gravy. Boil them slowly in salted water for 40 to 50 minutes then run through the meat grinder and add to the gravy just before serving. Use the water the giblets are cooked in as part of the liquid for the gravy.

Frozen Chocolate Pudding.

Melt four squares of unsweetened chocolate over hot water. Scald three cups of milk. Beat three eggs with one cup of sugar and then gradually add the scalded milk and the chocolate. Cook, stirring constantly, until slightly thickened. Add one tablespoon of vanilla and one tablespoon gelatine that has soaked in one-fourth cup cold water for five minutes.

Cool, add one cup undiluted evaporated milk and when thoroughly cold fold in one cup cream whipped stiff.

Freeze in the refrigerator for three to four hours or pack the mold in equal parts of finely cracked ice and ice cream salt and let freeze for four or five hours.

Baked Date Pudding.

Mix together one cup each of white and whole wheat flour, three teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt, one cup sugar. Beat two eggs and add one cup of milk, one fourth cup melted butter and one-half cup molasses. Stir this into the dry mixture and add one and one-half cup finely cut dates and one-half cup chopped nuts. Pour into a shallow well greased pan and bake in a moderate oven for 50 minutes. Serve warm or cold with hard sauce or whipped cream.

Apple Pie.

Three apples, one cup sugar, one-half cup butter, one and one-half cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one cup milk, two eggs. Season to taste. Cover deep baking dish with sliced apples, season with sugar, cinnamon and add tablepoon of boiling water. Cover tightly and bake for 15 minutes in moderate oven. Make a batter of above ingredients and spread over the cooked apples. Bake till brown. Then invert on pie dish and cover with meringue made from the whites of the eggs. Set back in the oven to brown.

Breakfast Sausage.

Sausage may be oven cooked, laying them on a rack over a pan in the oven and baking; they may be placed on a broiler and turned frequently, or they my be pan fried on the top of the stove. The latter is a little easier. Do not fry too fast and rrain off excess fat as the sausages cook.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES ADD COLOR TO A SALAD

Each Succeeding Day Brings New Ideas for Salad Combinations and Blends.

Fruits and vegetables of every kind have a place in salads and each adds its own color note along with its special flavor.

The deep purple of the plum, the brilliant yellow of the carrot, the snowy whiteness of the potato, the deep rich red of the beet and the delicate tones of pineapple and parsnips all can be used to make distinctive, artistic and most delicious salads.

Various kinds of meat and fish have their own colors dependent in some measure on how they have been prepared for use.

Cheese offers as great a variety of color as it does of flavor. It can always be depended upon to add substance and nutriment to a salad whose only other virtue may be color and flavor.

SMOTHERED CHICKEN

A Very Easy and Attractive Way of Preparing Fowl.

Clean and cut up the chicken. Remove the neck and cook with the giblets. Simmer until the stock on the giblets is reduced to one cup.

Dip the pieces of chicken in milk and then flour well. Season with salt and pepper and brown nicely in hot fat. Remove to a baking dish.

To the fat remaining in the skillet add one cup of milk and one cup of stock. Season and strain over the chicken. Cover the baking dish and bake one hour. Arrange on a platter and garnish.

Thicken the gravy in the baking dish, adding a little more milk if necessary. This is an excellent way to cook a chicken which has passed the frying stage. The time required for baking depends upon the size and age of the chicken.

Clever Substitutions.

Cabbage will take the place of cauliflower as a cooked vegetable, or shredded it may be used as a salad in place of the more expensive lettuce.

MODERN HOMEMAKERS ARE CLEVER PEOPLE

Budgets, work plans, short cuts—these are the lifesavers in the complex life of today, when there are more demands than ever on our time and when the dollar still buys considerably less than it used to!

However much overworked you may feel the term "budget" has become, nevertheless it has more than proved its value when intelligently planned and used. And keep in mind the fact that more than money can be budgeted. Budget your time as well as your income and make use of all the short cuts and aids you can consistently include in the plan you have worked out for yourself.

You are not keeping up with the times if your household equipment is of the sort that hinders and holds you back, no matter how many clubs you may belong to!

In this matter of household equipment, for instance, consider whether you are spending unnecessary energy, nerve force and time by the use of poor tools—battered pans that are difficult to clean, dull knives that refuse to take or keep an edge, mixing bowls that are clumsy, cracked or too heavy to handle conveniently, old-fashioned equipment that your grandmother used and that you still consider "too good to throw away."

Perhaps it is, but why not keep it as a curio collection, if you must keep it, and replace it for use with modern time and labor saving devices? A friend has never "gotten around" to buying a modern meat grinder and was using an old one she had started housekeeping with many years before and which mangled and "mushed" the food because the knives were dull and worn down.

Take advantage of the short cuts in cookery offered by leading home economists in the newspapers and by many of the food manufacturers, and nearly all of the gas and electric light companies.

Few of us find in advantageous to bake bread at home today, but when we do it behooves us to know that the bread mixer and the short time process of bread making produces just as good a product as the old time long method, and mixing and kneading by hand.

Such a knowledge is not difficult to acquire, nor is it expensive if you do not wish it to be.

AMERICANS ARE CREDITED WITH LIKING PRUNES

Have you ever tried rolling a strip of bacon about well soaked prunes and then broiling until bacon is crisp? This makes a tasty dish when served with crisp toast.

Rice With Prunes.

Wash the rice and cook it in boiling salted water, using five times as much water as rice. Slowly cook the prunes and sweeten to taste. Remove pits from prunes and combine the prunes with the rice. Add butter and a little of the prune juice. With a bowl of vegetable soup, this dish makes a well balanced luncheon for child or adult. Left-over rice and prunes may be combined in this manner.

Prune Salad.

Stuff well soaked prunes, after they are drained and dried, with shredded almonds and sharp cheese. Arrange in nests of lettuce and serve with a whipped cream dressing, made by adding lemon juice to the whipped cream.

PEACH MARSHMALLOW CREAM

Try Out This Recipe Before the Peach Season Passes.

Dissolve a package of orange-flavored gelatine product in one cup of boiling water and set aside to cool. This may be hastened by placing it in a pan of ice water or cracked ice; if this is done, stir the gelatine frequently while cooling in order to keep it smooth.

When the gelatine is beginning to thicken, fold in the whipped cream, marshmallows and peaches. Continue folding the mixture over and over until stiff enough to hold its shape. Put at once into sherbet cups or into a fancy mold and set aside to harden. Serve very cold with a garnish of maraschino cherries or chopped pistachio nuts.

Soft Molasses Cake

Dissolve one teaspoonful baking soda in two tablespoonfuls warm water. Add one cupful New Orleans molasses, one-fourth pound melted butter, one cupful boiling water, one tablespoonful ground ginger. Add three cupfuls pastry flour; beat until smooth. Bake about 30 minutes in shallow pan on upper rack in a medium oven.

Apple Ginger.

Wash, quarter, pare, core and chop sour apples. To five cups apples add five cups sugar, grated rind of one lemon and an inch of ginger root. Bring gradually to boiling point and cook gently until apples are transparent. Stir frequently to prevent burning. Seal in hot sterilized jars.

New Grapefruit Salad.

MODE DEMANDS COLOR IN THE KITCHEN

There is no doubt that we have as a country, become conscious of the value and importance of color in our daily lives. No longer are we surrounded by drab walls and inconspicuous hangings.

There is a happy medium in color and there is a psychological effect with which color acts on people. Some of us react unfavorably to high and contrasting colors while to others, they bring a great deal of delight.

After color went from the front of the house and finally arrived at the kitchen, we became very much aware of the fact that in many instances it had been wrongly used. Many women spend a great part of each day in the kitchen and the background for their work should be harmonious. Soft colors on the walls are easier to live with day in any day out than the more intense colors. They are easier also than the glare which one gets from an all-white background.

After the color for the background has been selected, then it is well to consider the equipment.

Many of our pieces of equipment in the kitchen are not replaced often enough to allow us to select those colors which will soon grow tiresome.

If bright colors are desired in the kitchen, it is very easy to select gay pots and pans, attractive colored mixing bowls, pitchers and bright handled utensils and to bring out desirable color combinations in the painted furniture.

Curtains are also features of the kitchen which can be used to work in design or color and help to unite the general scheme into one harmonious whole.

CLEVER HOUSEWIVES LEARN TO MARKET

Knowledge of Food Values, Standard Brands and Quantities Helpful.

In marketing for the family food supply cost and food value must both be considered, just as in the purchase of clothing we have to weigh wearing quality and style against price. Knowledge of foods somehow seems more difficult for the average housekeeper to acquire than knowledge of clothing values, or it may be that she is less acutely interested in it, and gives less time to planning of meals and marketing than to the planning of her wardrobe. Yet it is important to keep the inner man as well dressed as the outer!

Starting off in the right way means a lot, and the young housekeeper will find the following suggestions of value in marketing in an economical way and in increasing her knowledge of foods and how to buy them.

Personal shopping, buying standard advertised products, and knowing quantities and qualities in foods are the chief requisites for economical marketing.

By shopping in person for your supplies, you can keep in closer touch with market conditions and are bound to develop a greater interest in, and knowledge of, the local food supplies.

The advantages of buying standard advertised brands of foods are many. In the first place you are assured of the same quality and of uniformity of flavor and of appearance. Packaged products are packed under careful supervision and are generally as wholesome as modern methods of packing and sanitation can make them.

Manufacturers and packers keep in touch with the research and experimental laboratories—in fact some maintain their own—and are ever on the lookout for methods of improving quality, nutritive value and packaging of their products.

The modern manufacturer is coming more and more to enlist the services of food chemists, bacteriologists, nutrition experts and home economists in order to get and keep the best quality for his product.

It is true that every brand of food products, or nearly every brand, is put out in several different grades, but these are not difficult to distinguish if one takes time to read labels, for each has to be marked.

When you find the grade and brand that suits your taste and your pocketbook, it does not take a great deal of energy to see that you get it.

Some knowledge of food values is essential if you are to shop economically. Price alone is no criterion of food value, for the lowest in cost may easily be the highest in nutritive value.

Know the relation of one food to another, so that you will know when to substitute a cheaper one for one that is too expensive at the time.

Take time to study your food supply, take advantage of the agencies that extend helping hands to you in the way of giving reliable help in the preparation of foods, and you will be able to save money by shopping sensibly and economically.

For a Different Flavor.

If you are preparing spinach, buttered beets, carrots or peas, add a bit of prepared mustard to the melted butter before pouring it over the vegetables. It will give a different and unique flavor.

Green Pepper Sandwich.

Chop one green pepper fine. Chop half cup of nuts fine, then combine the two. Spread the bread with mayonnaise and then a layer of the pepper and nut mixture. Garnish with chopped parsley.

OPEN-FACE EGG SANDWICH IS A FASCINATING TIDBIT

Both Economical and Dainty to Serve at an Informal Luncheon.

Grate the yolks and the whites through small coarse tea strainers. By this method you will save effort and time.

POT ROAST OF BEEF WITH THE FIXINGS

These Consist of Yorkshire Pudding and Rich Brown Gravy.

A meal in which a pot roast is the main dish with a Yorkshire pudding as the "piece de resistance" will make an irresistible appeal.

The next time you want a meal which is prepared all in one dish and at one time try this recipe:

For a three-pound piece of rump beef take eight or 10 carrots, eight or 10 large onions, six large potatoes, one bunch celery, four white turnips, three cloves, two cups boiling water, two teaspoons salt and one-eighth teaspoon pepper.

Meanwhile, prepare the vegetables by washing and paring. They may be left whole or cut into halves or quarters as desired. This usually depends on the size of the vegetables. Cut the celery in small pieces and add all of the vegetables and other ingredients in the recipe to the meat.

Cover, turn the oven heat regulator to 275 degrees and bake for three hours. If a longer time is desired between the time when the meal is placed in the oven and when it is to be served, set the regulator at 250 degrees and let bake for 4 or 5 hours.

At the end of the baking period remove the meat to a warm platter and arrange the vegetables around it.

Thicken the liquid which is left in the pan with two tablespoons of flour mixed with two tablespoons of cold water and let this boil until it forms a slightly thickened gravy.

Yorkshire pudding can be made to be served with the roast if desired. It is especially good with the gravy which is made from the juices of the meat.

Yorkshire pudding is made with one cup milk, one cup flour, two eggs, one-half teaspoon salt, one tablespoon melted fat, one-half teaspoon baking powder.

Grease a large skillet with some meat drippings if they are at hand or with some vegetable fat. Mix by adding the milk to the beaten eggs and pour this slowly into the sifted flour, salt and baking powder, beating until there are no lumps. Then add the melted fat. Pour this mixture into the heated skillet and bake for 25 or 30 minutes at 450 degrees.

A salad and a very simple dessert such as some canned fruit with or without cookies or cake will finish off this meal very acceptably. If the salad is a fruit salad no other dessert will be necessary.

STUFFED EGGPLANT MAKES A VERY TEMPTING DISH

Everyone Likes This Vegetable When It Is Prepared This Way.

Cut the eggplant in half lengthwise and scoop out the center pulp, leaving the rind about one-half inch thick so that the shape may be firm. Cover the shells with cold water.

Chop the pulp fine, season it with salt and pepper, add butter or any other savory fat and cook in a frying pan for 10 minutes, stirring well, then add water and one cup of bread crumbs.

Drain, sprinkle the interior of each with salt and pepper and fill them with the mixture.

Spread one cup of crumbs on the surface of the mixture, place the two pieces of plant in a baking dish, pour enough hot water into the pan to come one-third up the side of the pan. Bake one hour and serve hot.

IDEAS FOR MEAL PLANNING

Housewives Should Give Thought to This Subject.

Successful meal planning depends on variety in food, of course, but it also features variety in the texture of the food served, in the colors and flavors.

No meal is as appetizing as it should be if it is made up entirely of soft foods; if it has no outstanding flavor characteristic, or if it lacks color. For instance, in serving creamed foods, care should always be taken to add something crisp in the way of raw celery, shredded raw cabbage, or a crisp green.

Seek for contrasts in color and flavor, but remember that color and flavors must blend. Cultivate the use of a number of flavoring extracts and condiments as they are useful in making inexpensive foods appetizing.

Modern Way With Biscuits.

Biscuit dough may be prepared at night and baked the next day if kept in a cold plate in the icebox.

It must be cold enough to prevent the action of the baking powder from taking place. It is only the temperature of the icebox that prevents the unbaked, cut biscuits from rising.

Beef a la Mode

Sear meat very brown on all sides in oven. Do not add water. Place over a low flame and cook one and one-half hours for a three-pound roast. When ready to serve place meat on platter, surround with cooked vegetables and cover all with meat gravy.

DANISH PASTRIES ARE INTRIGUING

It is easier to tell what Danish pastries are not, than to describe exactly what they are. They are not a real puff paste, nor are they a bread. They are just delectable morsels of dough made not quite rich enough to be a puff paste and have egg and milk added rather than water. This dough when rolled out is then enlivened by fillings made of "goodies."

This recipe makes a nice Danish pastry. Two cups flour, one teaspoon salt, one-half cup shortening, one egg, six tablespoons milk.

Sift the flour and then measure. Add the salt and sift again. Cut in the fat with knives or a fork. Any fresh fat may be used.

Add the milk to the beaten egg, then mix this with the dry ingredients. A little more milk may be needed or it may not be necessary to use quite all of this liquid. Enough should be used to make a stiff dough, the consistency of pie crust.

Roll the dough out into a thin sheet. Cut into squares of about four inches each. Spread each square with softened butter and fill with one of the fillings given below.

These pastries may be rolled like little individual jelly rolls or the corners of the squares may be folded over the filling and pinched together. Squares may be baked separately without a filling and rolled in jelly or jam while hot, then coated with ground nuts or shredded cocoanut.

The pastries may be cut into fancy shapes instead of squares, if desired.

Fillings.

One cup seeded raisins, chopped, one-half cup walnut meats, broken in small pieces or one cup almonds blanched and cut fine or ground fine, one cup sugar, one egg well beaten or one cup dates pitted and cut fine and one-half cup walnut or pecan meats broken in small pieces.

The tops may be coated with the egg and milk mixture if any is left when making the dough, or with milk alone, then sprinkled with sugar or spread with a syrup made by boiling a few tablespoons of sugar and water together in equal amounts. These coatings will make the tops of the pastries glazed and brown, and add to their appetizing appearance. Brown sugar may be used instead of white for another change in flavor.

FISH IS A WHOLESOME FOOD FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

American Housewives Are Learning to Serve It Often at Home Meals.

Another rather readily digested form of protein is found in fish. This is a food that is usually plentiful in the winter months.

Both fresh and salt water fish are valuable, though the salt water fish has the added advantage of containing iodine which makes it useful in the prevention of goitre.

A study of the prevalence of goitre shows that it exists to a markedly less degree along the seaboard where salt water fish are available than in inland points.

However, improvements in the matter of refrigeration transportation make it possible now to ship fresh fish many miles inland in perfect condition.

A Word About Liver.

All liver should first be washed in water, then scalded. Then you may prepare it by pan frying or baking. Green peppers stuffed with liver and baked make a healthful and good luncheon dish.

Added Flavor for Meats.

Prepared mustard may be used very effectively to touch up plain steaks and lamb chops. Spread the meat generously with the mustard and allow to stand in a cold place for an hour or so before broiling. It will give the meat an added flavor.

DAINTY DRINKS FOR FALL ENTERTAINING

Fruit Juices Combine in Making Intriguing Beverages to Serve Guests.

Every good hostess will realize the value of being able to provide the chance caller as well as the expected guest with a frosty, refreshing drink, and the wisest hostess is the one who keeps on hand a supply of "makings" for a variety of these favorites. Contrary to a somewhat general belief, this need not be an expensive process as fresh fruit juices, home-made syrups and the sweetened juices of the canned fruits may all be used with plain or carbonated water. Strong tea makes a good base for many kinds of fruit punch, and plain or malted milk combines with many flavors to make delicious and popular drinks.

Because of their refreshing qualities fruit beverages are deservedly the most popular, and the minerals and vitamins they supply give them value from the nutritive standpoint. The sugar used for sweetening adds fuel value, but care must taken to avoid making drinks too sweet: a tart fruit flavor will quench thirst but a sweet syrupy drink is really heating for it has a high fuel value.

Keep Makings On Hand.

These include a jar of sugar syrup for sweetening, a supply of ice, lemons and one or two kinds of fruit syrup or juice. Limes and oranges are valuable too. Just now small but juick oranges may be bought very inexpensively and it is well worth while to keep a supply handy. Ginger ale combines well with most fruit flavors and adds zest to many a drink, therefore it, too, should have a place on the emergency shelf. If you are the possessor of a mechanical refrigerator you will want to sometimes use colored ice cubes, or cubes of frozen fruit juices.

There are almost endless combinations of flavors that may be used and it is rather interesting to experiment with various combinations for unusual and individual results. So long as you keep the drink rather tart, attractive in color and cold, you cannot go far astray.

Sugar or Syrup.

Sugar syrup is made by boiling together for five minutes two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water. This should be cooled, poured into a jar and kept in the refrigerator to use as required. It is better than sugar to sweeten drinks as it blends at once and produces a smoother flavor. The amount to be used depends on the acidity of the fruit—a little experimenting is nearly always necessary.

There are few fruit flavors more refreshing than that of fresh limes and a lime cooler always hits the spot. To make it mix the juice of four large limes with one-fourth cup of orange juice and one-half cup of sugar syrup. Dilute with two cups of plain or charged water and serve in tall glasses one-third full of finely cracked ice. Garnish with a sprig of mint and a half slice of orange. Makes four large glasses.

FALL VEGETABLE PLATE IS A SAVORY COMBINATION

Add a Slice of Baked Ham and You Will Have a Real Feast.

Now a word about the fall vegetable plate. Of course, it need not be elaborate, but there are a few rules to keep in mind.

First of all have all the hot vegetables very hot, and cold ones thoroughly chilled. Make sure the combination is one which will give a well-balanced meal and look attractive and appetizing when served.

For instance, this combination: One slice of broiled ham, one tomato quartered, one baked potato, two sweet pickles sliced, fan shape; two radishes, one boiled onion, few stalks celery, few stalks asparagus, parsley. Arrange vegetables about meat.

DAINTY OATMEAL COOKIES

These Cakes Are Especially Appropriate for School Lunch Box.

Combine one cup of whole wheat flour, one cup of white flour, and two cups of rolled oats (uncooked), one teaspoon of salt, two teaspoons of baking powder, and one teaspoon of soda, one-half cup of nut kernels, and one-half cup of small seeded raisins.

Stir these together well and add one-half cup of milk mixed with two well-beaten eggs. Then add a half to two-thirds of a cup of honey and one-half cup of melted butter.

Drop onto a buttered baking sheet and bake in a moderate oven for 15 minutes or until the cooky is firm to the touch. The size of the cooky determines the length of time necessary in the oven.

A DIFFERENT CONSERVE

An Interesting Way of Using Small and Late Peaches

Peel five pounds of ripe peaches, and cut fine. Put in a large kettle with three pounds of sugar and the juice from a small bottle of maraschino cherries.

Heat very slowly to the boiling point, stirring frequently. Boil until the peaches are very soft and the mixture as thick as thick apple sauce.

Frozen Fruit Desserts.

Fruit does not lose any of its good qualities when frozen, so when not used to excess this method may be a pleasing way to serve fruit.

Tapioca Apple Pudding.

The tapioca and apples may be cooked together, but the tapioca should be cooked at least 20 minutes before the apples are added. When the tapioca is clear and the apples tender add sugar enough to make the pudding appetizing. The tartness of the apples will have to determine the amount of sugar necessary.

Home from School and Eager for Their "HAN-DEE" Lunch

Easily digestible proteins, carbohydrate fats, and essential vitamins are needed for those lively hours of play in which children develop stamina and acquire robust growth.

Of such is HAN-DEE BREAD—sliced ready to serve—scientifically baked so that every particle counts in the upbuilding of these young bodies. With its nourishing properties is also a fascinating natural wheat flavor which children greatly enjoy.

HAN-DEE BREAD slices are evenly cut, and cut all at once at the rate of a thousand loaves an hour. It is then wrapped in waxed paper and so to your neighborhood grocer.

HAN-DEE BREAD stays fresh. This is because slicing distributes the moisture content throughout the loaf and the wrapping retards the evaporation.

The number of slices required for sandwiches may be removed from the wrapper, suitably filled and then restored to the wrapper, all ready to give the youngsters on their return from school. Should mother be away such a lunch may safely be left for the children to help themselves.

More than a hundred thousand loaves are enjoyed every week in the homes of St. Louis. HAN-DEE BREAD—sliced ready to serve—is convenient, economical, safe, and, above all, healthful.

TRY THIS PIE CRUST WITH BOILING WATER

This Modern Method Makes as Delicious a Pastry as the Old Way.

This method will always produce a tender and somewhat flaky crust. It will not result in a texture exactly like that from the method which is ordinarily used, but it will be just as rich and equally delicious. It contains all the ingredients of the other kind of pastry, but they are just put together differently and so easily.

Take one and one-half cups soft wheat flour, one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon baking powder, one-half cup hard shortening and one-fourth cup boiling water.

Put the fat into a mixing bowl and pour the boiling water on it. Stir this until the fat is melted and it is entirely blended with the water and begins to become smooth. Have the cup and a half of flour which has been measured after sifting once, ready with the baking powder and salt in it. Sift these dry materials into the now liquid fat. Work this together until it is a smooth and thick paste which will form one solid ball. Then put it aside until it has a chance to become cold.

All recipes for pastry do not call for baking powder, but some do. It makes this kind of paste a little more flaky in appearance when baked.

When this paste has stood a few minutes, it will be ready to roll out. Put a very little flour on a clean table or rolling board. Make one-half the dough into a round ball. With a rolling pin, roll this out, keeping it as round as possible. When rolled until it is a thin sheet about one-eighth inch thick, carefully pick up the dough and line a pie dish with it.

If the pie is to have a filling, prick a few holes in the dough with a fork and fill the pie with the fruit, custard mixture or whatever kind of filling is desired.

If it is to be a two-crust pie, and the one and one-half cups of flour will make enough for two crusts, roll out the top crust and carefully place it over the filling in the pie.

Then trim off the edges and press both crusts together, prick this top crust with a fork to allow for the escape of steam, sometimes, beside pricking, it is cut with a sharp knife into short slashes near the center of the crust.

In making a pie crust which is to be filled after the crust has been baked, it is better to put the crust over the bottom of the dish rather than in it. When this has been done, place the crust to be baked in the oven at 475 degrees F. and bake for 15 minutes.

THESE BAKED GREEN PEPPERS ARE STUFFED WITH LIVER

They Provide an Excellent Way for Disguising the Taste of the Meat.

Wash and scald enough to make one cup of chopped liver. Cook the liver first in a hot oven until it is thoroughly seared and then lower the temperature and cook until it is tender. Chop, removing any of the less tender membrane.

Combine the liver with dried bread crumbs, one-half cup of crumbs to one cup of liver, and then add one-half teaspoon of salt, one-fourth teaspoon of pepper and one tablespoon of butter.

Remove the tops and seed of uniform green peppers. Scald and cool. Stuff with the liver and bread mixture.

Place in a baking dish so the peppers stand erect. Add a small amount of water and cover and cook until the peppers are tender, and the liver and bread dressing is seasoned with the pepper flavor.

This dish is pleasing to many because it does not have that liver flavor which they dislike.

THE BISHOP MURDER CASE

A PHILO VANCE DETECTIVE STORY

By S. S. VAN DINE

The Story Thus Far: A man known as Cock Robin is shot through the heart with an arrow. The body is found on the archery range beside the home of Prof. Dillard, where Robin was well known. The crime seems to be the intentional dramatization of the old nursery rhyme, "Who Killed Cock Robin?" District Attorney Markham is puzzled by the apparently senseless circumstances attending it and asks the aid of Philo Vance, wealthy young bachelor who dabbles in the solving of unusual mysteries. The police get on the trail of Sperling, the last man known to have been with Robin. Vance, in questioning Prof. Dillard and his niece, Belle Dillard, learns that both Robin and Sperling were in love with the girl and had been arguing over her just before Robin's death. While Vance is questioning her, Sigurd Arnesson, a protege of Prof. Dillard's and also a professor of mathematics, comes in.

CHAPTER V.

SIGURD ARNESSON, Prof Dillard's protege and adopted son, was a man of striking appearance—over 6 feet tall, wiry and erect, with a head which, at first view, appeared too large for his body. His almost yellow hair was unkempt, like a schoolboy's; his nose was aquiline; and his jowls were lean and muscular. Though he could not have been over 40, there was a network of lines in his face. His expression was sardonically puckish;; but the intense intellectual passion that lighted his blue-gray eyes belied any superficiality of nature. My initial reaction to his personality was one of liking and respect. There were depths in the man—powerful potentialities and high capabilities.

As he entered the room that afternoon, his searching eyes took us all in with a swift, inquisitive glance. He nodded jerkily to Miss Dillard, and then fixed the old professor with a look of dry amusement.

"What, pray, has happened in this three-dimensional house? Wagons and populace without: a guardian at the portals . . . and when I finally overcame the Cerberus and was admitted by Pyne, two plain-clothes men hustled me up here without ceremony or explanation. Very amusing, but disconcerting. . . . . Ah! I seem to recognize the District Attorney. Good morning—or rather, afternoon, Mr. Markham."

Before Markham could return this belated greeting Belle Dillard spoke.

"Sigurd, please be serious. Mr. Robin has been killed."

"'Cock Robin,' you mean. Well, well! With such a name what could the beggar expect?" He appeared wholly unmoved by the news. "Who, or what, returned him to the elements?"

"As to who it was, we don't know." It was Markham who answered, in a tone of reproach for the other's levity. "But Mr. Robin was killed with an arrow through the heart."

"Most fitting." Arnesson sat down on the arm of a chair and extended his long legs. "What could be more appropriate than that Cock Robin should die from an arrow shot from the bow of"——

"Sigurd!" Belle Dillard cut him short. "Haven't you joked enough about that? You know that Raymond didn't do it."

"Of course, sis." The man looked at her somewhat wistfully. "I was thinking of Mr. Robin's ornithological progenitor." He turned slowly to Markham. "So it's a real murder mystery, is it—with a corpse, and clews, and all the trappings? May I be entrusted with the tale?"

Markham gave him a brief outline of the situation, to which he listened with rapt interest. When the account was ended he asked:

"Was there no bow found on the range?"

"Ah!" Vance, for the first time since the man's arrival, roused himself from seeming lethargy, and answered for Markham. "A most pertinent question, Mr. Arnesson. Yes, a bow was found just outside of the basement window, barely 10 feet from the body."

"That, of course, simplifies matters," said Arnesson, with a note of disappointment. "It's only a question now of taking the finger-prints."

"Unfortunately the bow has been handled," explained Markham. "Prof. Dillard picked it up and brought it into the house."

Arnesson turned to the older man curiously.

"What impulse, sir, directed you to do that?"

"Impulse? My dear Sigurd, I didn't analyse my emotions. But it struck me that the bow was a vital piece of evidence and I placed it in the basement as a precautionary measure until the police arrived."

"That sounds like what our psychoanalytic friends would call a suppression-censor explanation. I wonder what submerged idea was actually in your mind. . . ."

"I shan't bother you people any more just at present. There's considerable preliminary routine work to be done. But I must ask you to remain upstairs for the time being. I'll see you again before I go."

• • •

DOREMUS was teetering impatiently on his toes when we joined him in the drawing-room. "Nothing complicated about it," he began, before Markham had a chance to speak. "Our sporty friend was killed by an arrow with a mighty sharp point entering his heart through the fourth intercostal space. Lot of force behind it. Plenty of hemorrhage inside and out. He's been dead about two hours, I should say, making the time of his death around half past eleven. That's only guesswork, however. No signs of a struggle—no marks on his clothes or abrasions on his hand. Death supervened most likely without his knowing what it was all about. He got a nasty bump, though, where his head hit the rough cement when he fell.

"Now, that's very interestin'," Vance's drawling voice cut in on the Medical Examiner's staccato report. "How serious a 'bump' was it, doctor?"

"Bad enough to fracture the skull. I couldn't feel it, of course; but there was a large haematoma over the occipital region, dried blood in the nostrils and the ears, and unequal pupils, indicating a fracture of the vault. I'll know more about it after the autopsy." He turned back to the District Attorney. "Anything else?"

"I think not, doctor. Only let us have your post-mortem report as soon as possible."

"You'll have it tonight. The Sergeant's already phoned for the wagon." And shaking hands with all of us, he hurried away.

Heath had stood glowering in the background.

"Don't be downhearted, Sergeant," Vance chided him. "That blow on the back of the head is worthy of your profoundest consideration. I'm of the opinion it wasn't entirely due to the fall don't y' know."

The Sergeant was unimpressed by this observation.

"What's more, Mr. Markham," he went on, "there wasn't any finger-prints on either the bow or the arrow. Dubois says they looked as though they'd both been wiped clean. There were a few smears on the end of the bow where the old gentleman picked it up: but not another sign of a print."

Markham smoked a while in gloomy silence.

"What about the handle on the gate leading to the street? And the knob on the door to the alley between the apartment houses?"

"Nothing!" Heath snorted his disgust. "Both of rough, rusty iron that wouldn't take a print."

"I say, Markham," observed Vance: "You're going at this thing the wrong way. Naturally there'd be no fingerprints. Really, y' know, one doesn't carefully produce a playlet and then leave all the stage props in full view of the audience. What we've got to learn is why this particular impresario decided to indulge in silly theatricals."

"It ain't as easy as all that, Mr. Vance," submitted Heath bitterly.

"Did I intimate it was easy? No, Sergeant; it's deucedly difficult. And it's worse than difficult: it's subtle and obscure and . . . fiendish."

Heath stepped into the hall and gave an order to one of his men. A few moments later a tall, somber, disjointed man entered and stood at respectful attention.

• • •

MARKHAM studied the man appraisingly. He was perhaps 60 years old. His features were markedly acromegalic; and this distortion extended to his entire figure. His hands were large, and his feet broad and misshapen. His clothes, though neatly pressed, fitted him badly; and his high clerical collar was several times too large for him. His eyes, beneath gray, bushy eyebrows, were pale and watery, and his mouth was a mere slit in an unhealthily puffy face. Despite his utter lack of physical prepossession, however, he gave one the impression of shrewd competency.

"So you are the Dillard butler," mused Markham. "How long have you been with the family, Pyne?"

"Going on 10 years, sir."

"You came, then, just after Prof. Dillard resigned his chair at the university?"

"I believe so, sir." The man's voice was deep and rumbling.

"What do you know of the tragedy that occurred here this morning?" Though Markham put the question suddenly, in the hope, I imagine, of surprising some admission, Pyne received it with the utmost stoicism.

"Nothing whatever, sir. I was unaware that anything had happened until Professor Dillard called to me from the library and asked me to look for Mr. Sperling."

"He told you of the tragedy then?"

"He said: 'Mr. Robin has been murdered, and I wish you'd find Mr. Sperling for me.' That was all, sir."

"You're sure he said 'murdered,' Pyne?" interjected Vance.

"Yes, sir—I'm sure he did. 'Murdered' is what he said.

"And did you see the body of Mr. Robin when you pushed your search?" pursued Vance, his eyes idly tracing a design on the wall.

Again there was a brief hesitation.

"Yes, sir. I opened the basement door to look out on the archery range, and there I saw the poor young gentleman. . . ."

"A great shock it must have given you, Pyne," Vance observed drily. "Did you, by any hap, touch the poor young gentleman's body?—or the arrow, perhaps?—or the bow?"

"No—of course not, sir. . . . Why should I, sir?"

"Why, indeed?" Vance sighed wearily. "But you saw the bow?"

The man squinted, as if for purposes of mental visualization.

Vance seemed to lose all interest in him; and Markham resumed the interrogation.

"I understand, Pyne, that Mr. Drukker called here this morning about half past nine. Did you see him?"

"Yes, sir. He always uses the basement door; and he said good morning to me as he passed the butler's pantry at the head of the steps."

"He returned the same way he came?"

"I suppose so, sir—though I was upstairs when he went. He lives in the house at the rear—"

"I know," Markham leaned forward. "I presume it was you who admitted Mr. Robin and Mr. Sperling this morning?"

"Yes, sir. At about 10 o'clock.

"Did you see them again, or overhear any of their remarks while they waited here in the drawing-room?"

"No, sir. I was busy in Mr. Arnesson's quarters most of the morning."

"Ah!" Vance turned his eyes on the man. "That would be on the second floor rear, wouldn't it?—the room with the balcony?"

"Yes, sir."

"Most interestin' . . . And it was from that balcony that Prof. Dillard first saw Mr. Robin's body. How could he have entered the room without your knowing it? You said, I believe, that your first intimation of the tragedy was when the professor called you from the library and told you to seek Mr. Sperling."

The butler's face turned a pasty white, and I noticed that his fingers twitched nervously.

"I might have stepped out of Mr. Arnesson's room for a moment," he explained, with effort. "Yes—it's quite likely. In fact, sir, I recall going to the linen closet. . . ."

"Oh, to be sure." Vance lapsed into lethargy.

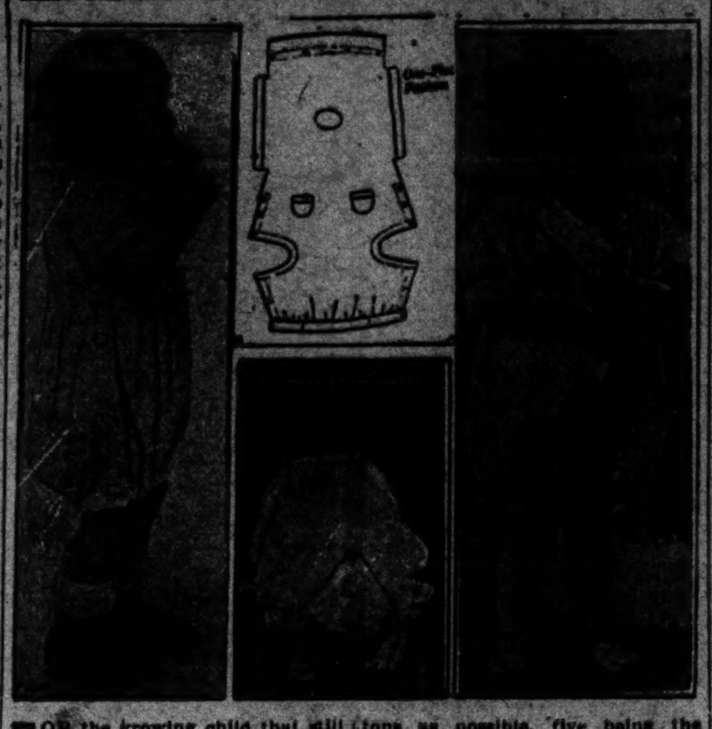
ROMPERS FOR THE CHILDREN



FOR the growing child that still wears diapers, rompers cut in one piece (note diagram) are very practical. The one-piece romper is easy to sew and launder. However, there is an advantage in making the rompers in two pieces, as in the illustration to the left. Several separate lower pieces of the same material, each attached with buttons down the side could be removed when soiled and alternated with a clean lower portion, leaving the body of the romper intact for a longer time.

The envelope romper, shown in rear view (centre below), is primarily for the youngster wearing diapers. The romper has a triangular flap sewed to the front and lapped over the back. This is more satisfactory than the old type of envelope romper which, buttons through the crotch. To relieve the strain there should be as few buttons as possible, five being the maximum number, so that the buttonholes will not pull out as in the crotch-opening romper. Fastenings arranged in the manner shown are easier to reach and more handy to open when the garment is soiled.

In a romper of the style illustrated to the right the little lady can soon learn to care for herself. Three large buttons are the fastening down the front and the drop seat in the back has four large buttons. The four buttons are arranged two on each side, so the child can reach them easily and thereby considerably simplify the early training of the child to dress herself. The crotch is shaped to make the romper fit neatly, and the legs are merely edged in the same material as the romper. The neckline is gathered to give fullness over the chest.

Pickled Red Cabbage

Remove outer leaves from a firm head of cabbage. Wash and slice it as finely as possible in cross slices. Place in a dish, sprinkle with salt and let stand for 24 hours. They squeeze the purple juice from the cabbage by placing it in a cloth and wringing it. Put the cabbage in pickle jars, strew between every handful one-half teaspoon black pepper or peppercorns and one-half ounce of bruised ginger. Fill the jars with vinegar that has been boiled and allowed to become cold, and cork securely. It is then read for use.

Have The Charm of Beautiful Skin

Mercolized wax keeps the skin soft and smooth and the face youthful looking by peeling off the outer layer of aged or blemished skin. The surface skin is absorbed in tiny particles a little each day until blemishes such as freckles, moth patches, blackheads, or dry, flaky skin are completely removed. The under skin is then revealed, smooth, soft and radiantly youthful. Mercolized wax brings out the hidden beauty. Daily Story FOR CHILDREN

THE CRICKETS DECIDE

"I'M ready," said the little black clock, as John and Peggy stole quietly to the back hall where the clock was sitting, waiting for them.

He got down from the desk, managing his rather small legs perfectly.

"We're ready, too," John said. "But where are you going to take us tonight?"

"I made an engagement," said the little black clock to visit some crickets. And I've turned the time back when the crickets first decided something.

So the little black clock took hold of one of Peggy's hands, and with his other hand he took hold of one of John's.

"It's so much better," said the little black clock, "to use my hands to guide you away to adventures than merely to tell the correct time, which any ordinary clock can do."

"That's what we think," John said.

"There they are!" said the little black clock. "They're having their big meeting now."

The children found themselves in a big field. It was getting a little dark, but they could see a great many crickets sitting around. One cricket, on a tiny platform made out of a piece of bark from a tree, was talking to the others.

"Well, has it been decided?"

The crickets all agreed it had.

"To be perfectly fair we'd better vote upon it."

So one cricket went around to all the others and took up their votes. If they used a piece of grass it meant they were voting one way, and if they used a piece of weed it meant they were voting the other way.

"But what have they decided?" John asked.

"The leader cricket is about to announce that now. Shall we stay and listen?"

"Yes, please," Peggy urged.

Cleaning Kid Gloves

One woman has discovered that the easiest and most satisfactory method for cleaning the kid gloves that have embroidered cuffs and light underfacings is to rub them briskly with art gum. She says even though the gloves may be washable the art gum is superior to suds because it does not destroy the natural softness of the gloves.

New Inventions

A novel device coats the inside of an ice cream cone with syrup before the ice cream is introduced to convert the latter into a sundae.

• • •

A reservoir to carry a supplemental ink supply is inclosed in the cap of a fountain pen that two New Jersey inventors have patented.

• • •

Resembling a suitcase when closed an English inventor's luncheon equipment for tourists unfolds and becomes a four-legged table.

An Englishman has invented a waterproof flap for outboard motorboats to prevent surf or spray from reaching the motors.

Electrically operated, a machine has been invented to cut knots out of lumber and fill the holes with threaded plugs.

Good for the Family.

Unless you are entertaining, plan to have fresh fruit for dessert when it is in season. It will prove more healthful than heavy rich pastries and will also prove much easier on the pocketbook as well as the digestion.

In a Soap Shaker

The soap shaker is an ideal article when using a soap dye to tint clothing. The soap can be put in the shaker and shaken in the warm water until the correct shade is obtained. This also keeps the hands away from the soap dye.

Vitamines.

Raw cabbage is splendid for the system on account of its supply of vitamines. When having cooked cabbage for dinner, first cut a wedge-shaped piece and save it for salads. Then cook the rest. Cold slaw is also a popular dish employing raw cabbage and should be served frequently.

MOLLYCODDLE MANHOOD

For he would find that, while certain men teachers interpret manhood in terms of "hard-boiled" language,

Which would serve to make their minds and hearts richer and fuller—
While these men teachers labor under the mistaken notion that detail is weak and feminine,
And that only with broad, rough strokes can culture be applied—
They omit that application to detail, that insistence upon the mastery of fundamentals
Which, as far as education can do it, equips the child for what he is to combat in life.
The women teachers are trying to carry out the precept

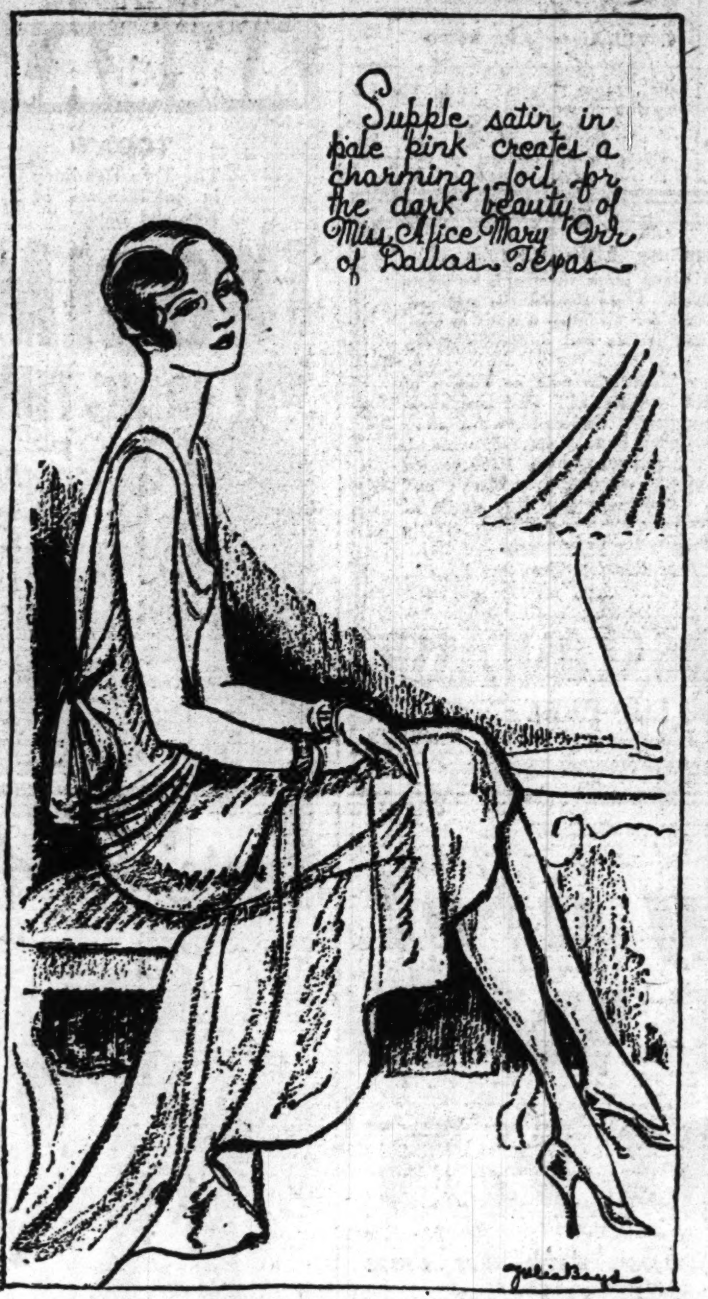
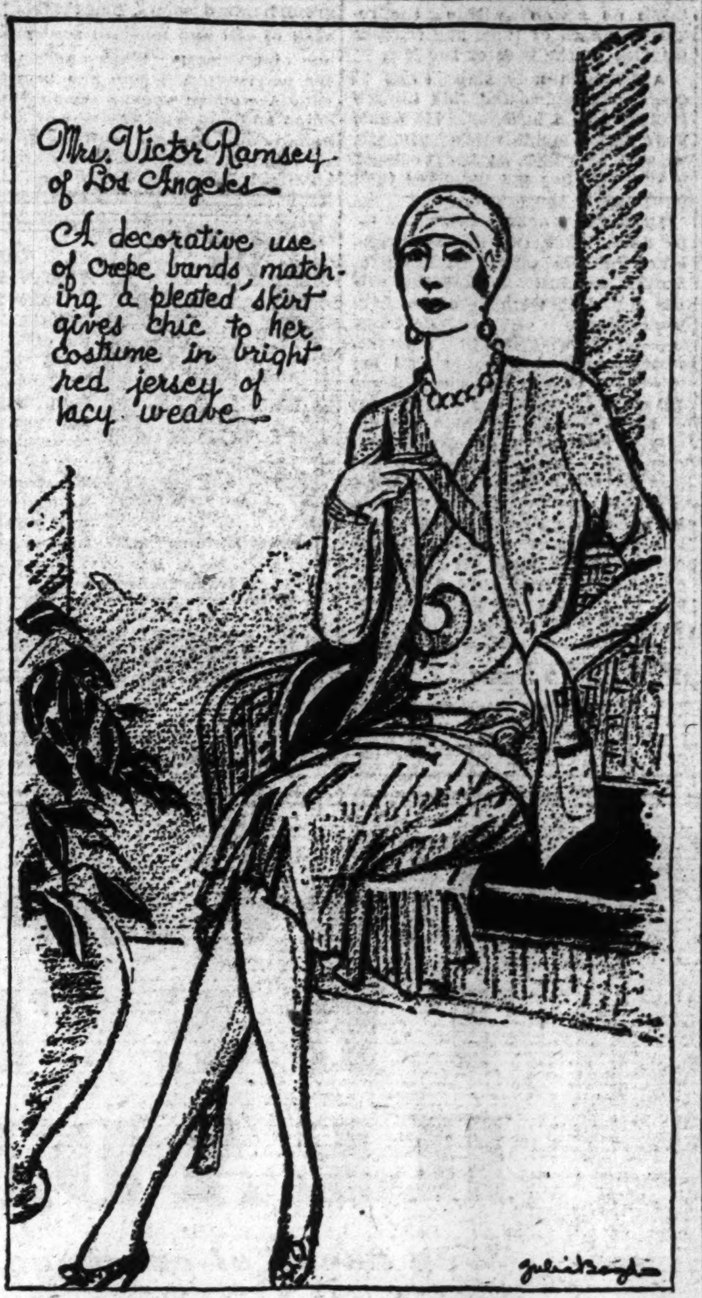
A costume that expresses the spirit of youth is worn by Miss Esther B. Orr of Tulsa, Oklahoma. The jacket suit of cobalt blue covert cloth has a crepe blouse with gay design and is topped by a matching felt hat of unusual design.



Supple satin in pale pink creates a charming foil for the dark beauty of Miss Alice Mary Orr of Dallas, Texas



Mrs. Victor Ramsey of Los Angeles. A decorative use of crepe bands matching a pleated skirt gives chic to her costume in bright red jersey of lacy weave.

ETIQUETTE

By Kathrine de Peyster

AN UNTIDY PROCESS

A SAYS when eating olives, if a separate dish is not provided for the pits, the pits should be placed on the same plate you are eating from.

2. When eating stewed prunes, should the pits be taken from the mouth with the fingers or dessert spoon? MRS. C. S.

1. As is correct. It would be an untidy process indeed to place the olive pits on the tablecloth.

Usually there is a bread and butter plate at the left of the plate for just such items as olive pits, pieces of celery, radishes and so forth. And it is just this question and just this use that has made the hostess realize that, except perhaps for the most formal of dinners (and these are in the minority, of course, it is convenient and wise to have bread and butter plates placed.

2. Neither is correct. The pits should not be put into the mouth. With stewed prunes should be placed the dessert spoon and the dessert fork. When we eat the prunes we use the spoon in the right hand, of course, and, with the fork in the left we lift the fruit from the pit and eat the fruit without taking the pit from the plate.

And it is well to remember that this double silver service is becoming more and more popular. The up-to-date and wise hostess places the double dessert service of silver—the dessert fork and the dessert spoon, for such dishes as stewed prunes, stewed fruits of all other kinds, meringue glace, many kinds of puddings, pineapple rings, fruit compote and all other desserts of substance.

THE GARDEN IN THE AUTUMN

(National Garden Bureau.)

MAKING THE MOST OF COLD FRAMES

THE convenience and necessity of a cold frame for an early start in the spring is well known to all gardeners but its use in the fall and early winter is often neglected. In addition to its value in wintering plants not quite hardy or which are sensitive to winter wet, it is an excellent place to start bulbs for winter bloom in the house. The method is to pot up the bulbs, hyacinths, daffodils, the smaller bulbs such as scillas, crocuses and grape hyacinths and lilies of the valley, bury them in the cold frame to make roots and then, when desired in the house, dig them out of the frame and take them indoors.

This is a more convenient method than storing them in dark closets or basements as usually recommended because there is less danger of forgetting to see that the pots are watered when they need it. The moisture in the soil will be sufficient to avoid any such danger in the cold frame. They make the roots necessary for top growth under more natural conditions and come quickly into growth when taken into warmth in the house.

Plants which are not quite hardy in the open ground such as pentstemons, buddleias, and snapdragons may be wintered in a cold frame and moved to their permanent quarters in the spring. Favorite colors in the annual pinks may be wintered in the same manner. With the protection of the glass they will come into early growth and give much quicker results in the garden.

The handsome poppy anemones and the Mariposa tulips of California may be grown successfully in a cold frame. The anemones will then come into bloom next April and provide beautiful material for cutting and continue blooming for a month. The St. Brigid strain, stocked by nearly all seed houses, is a fine type of anemone. The beautiful ranunculus may be grown in the same manner. This plant is a novelty to most gardeners although in cultivation for many years. It is an excellent plant to try as an experiment in the frame. It is a curious root somewhat resembling a miniature dahlia. Plant the claws down about an inch below the soil.

The anemones should be down about two inches. Both these plants like rich soil and the prohibition against manure which should be enforced strictly against the Dutch bulbs does not apply to these plants. The anemone in particular luxuriates in rich fare.

Peach Sponge

Peel and stone 2 pounds peaches and stew them until pulpy with 4 ounces of sugar. Pass through a sieve. Stir in 1 tablespoon gelatine previously soaked in a little cold water and stir until the gelatine is dissolved over a very slow fire. Let cool, and when almost cold beat in the stiffly whipped whites of 2 eggs. Pour into a wet mold and let stand in a cold place until desired. A lovely light dessert following a big dinner.

Cedar and the Moth

A DISHEARTENED housewife writes: "I have just discovered that moths have just about ruined the contents of my cedar chest that was new last fall. I was always under the impression cedar is a reliable preventive against moths. Can you tell me what causes the trouble?"

The damage done is not the fault of the cedar chest. No cedar chest will destroy adult moths nor will it prevent eggs from hatching. It does, however, kill the young larvae if the grown moths have been removed from the garments.

Before anything is stored even in the best cedar chest or cedar closet the older moths must be removed by brushing and sunning. In case of furs or expensive garments it is advisable to fumigate or dry clean these before storing them. Flannels and many other summer garments may be washed before being packed away for the winter.

Do this hereafter and you will find that a cedar chest is a reliable protection against moths.

Meat and Rice Pie

Three cups boiled rice, 1 onion, 2 cups tomatoes, ½ teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon melted butter, 1 pound raw meat or leftover meat cut up small. Cook the chopped onion in the melted butter, and if raw meat is used, add and stir until nicely browned. Add the tomato and seasoning and heat through. Grease a baking dish, put in a layer of rice, add the meat and gravy and cover with rice, dotted with butter. Bake for half an hour in a moderate oven.

Seals Are Saved for Coats

SEAL skin coats, long a symbol of feminine luxury, are guaranteed a continuous lead in the fashion parade, thanks to Uncle Sam's strict policy of conservation.

Under the guidance of the bureau of fisheries, the seal herd on the Pribilof Islands, once near destruction because of indiscriminate slaughtering, has grown until it comprises nearly 90 per cent of all existing fur seals.

With the completion of the regular sealing season in July, W. T. Bower, chief of Alaskan investigations, reports that 39,253 skins have been taken. Between 700 and 1000 skins will be taken in the fall to increase the total more than 6000 beyond the take in 1928.

"It is necessary to go back 40 years," he said, "to find a year in which there were as many skins taken at the Pribilofs as in the current season. In the intervening period the take has been so small that in 1913, it amounted to a mere 2406 skins."

The seal industry is strictly a Government venture, based on international agreement with Japan, Russia and Great Britain to stem the wholesale destruction of the once plentiful animals.

When Alaska was purchased from Russia in 1867, the herd is estimated to have numbered several million animals. Pelagic sealing, the taking of seals at sea, was particularly destructive because no discrimination was made in the slaughter and the herd faced extinction.

In 1911, the four nations outlawed pelagic sealing and the United States was charged with building up the herd. No killing of seals is allowed, except by Government agents and native Indians who depend upon the animals for sustenance.

Seals are killed for their skins by Government employes, who select primarily three-year-old bachelors but guard the future of the herd by sparing females, young pups, and old males.

The taking of skins, even by the Indians, is rigidly supervised. The enterprise is governmental from the very beginning until the pelts have been tanned, dyed and made ready for market. Then they are auctioned off, and the proceeds turned over to the United States Treasury. Fifteen per cent of the money goes to Canada and a like amount to Japan for the relinquishment of pelagic sealing rights.

The Pribilof Islands, located in the Bering Sea, are the breeding grounds and mark the only spot to which the Alaska herd comes to shore.

A Little Turpentine

After thoroughly cleaning the clothes closet, pour a little turpentine on a clean cloth and wipe out the floor of your closet with it. It will serve as a warning to moths and change the atmosphere of the closet. Let dry thoroughly before returning the clothes so they do not take up any of the odor.

Do not allow refuse to collect in the cellar. Inspect it frequently and keep it weeded out.

They need help NOW in building their bones and teeth

"THE time to help your baby build good bones and teeth is during the first months and years of life," physicians are telling mothers.

"He must have special protection—even though he is breastfed he needs it. Otherwise he may not have the finely-shaped head you want him to have, the full chest, straight legs, and sound, uncrowded teeth that will not decay easily."

Direct sunshine would keep your baby safe, if he could get enough of it on his bare body. But this is not possible on account of clothing, clouds, fog and smoke. Even ordinary window glass filters out the rays that protect.

The country's leading specialists advise the use of Squibb's Cod-Liver Oil. They prefer it because they know they can depend on its high vitamin content.

Squibb's Cod-Liver Oil is very rich in Vitamin D, the "sunshine vitamin" which helps to build good bones and teeth, and also in Vitamin A which promotes normal growth and increases resistance to infections.

When you choose Squibb's Cod-Liver Oil, you are using a vitamin-tested, vitamin-protected oil. Be sure to insist on Squibb's. At all reliable drug stores. Plain and Mint-flavored.

THE "ENOCH ARDEN" LAW

By Dorothy Frooks

THIS law provides for a dissolution of marriage. There are two ways in which a valid marriage may terminate. First, we have the case in which a person is sentenced to life imprisonment. As long as there is the possibility of the life sentence remaining in effect, the marriage automatically ends. The second class of case is where the parties must do something to end the marriage. It is in this class that we have the Enoch Arden Law. A woman had been deserted by her husband. Nine years later she remarried. Five years after her second marriage her first husband reappeared. He brought her up on a charge of bigamy.

The law specifically states that there may be a dissolution of marriage after the spouse remains away for five years or more. It is essential, however, that a lawyer draw up the necessary papers for litigation in court. Proof must be presented to the Court. This proof consists of a verified petition, publication and presentation to the Court. No one can take the law for granted. Either the man or the woman may have a dissolution of marriage under the Enoch Arden Law, and no one may remarry unless he or she complies with that law. The number of years in which the husband remains away from a wife does not matter. If the wife takes no action within the required length of time, she remains married in the eyes of the law.

A husband may stay away 20 years and return and find himself protected as a husband. He would have rights in his wife's property as well as rights as her husband, if the wife has not dissolved their marriage in the interim.

Many cases of this sort come into court after the husband's absence of five years. It must be proved conclusively that the wife has no information as to the whereabouts of her deserting spouse. Her affidavit must set forth facts which would lead her to believe that the husband is not alive. Desertion and knowledge of his whereabouts would not entitle a wife to a dissolution of marriage under the Enoch Arden Law in the State of New York. Likewise, the husband who knows of his wife's disappearance and knows that she is alive although he has not seen her for five years or more may not have a dissolution of marriage within the meaning of this law.

Elderberry Chutney.

Two pounds elderberries, one large onion, one teaspoon ground ginger, two tablespoons sugar, one fourth teaspoon each cayenne and ground mixed spices, one teaspoon each of salt and mustard seed and one pint vinegar. Wash and stalk the berries, put in pan and bruise with a wooden spoon. Chop the onion and add with the rest of the ingredients. Simmer until the mixture is thickened, stirring frequently. Pack in sterilized jars. A very mysteriously and equally pleasing chutney.

Chicken Livers on Toast.

A delightful delicacy. Melt one tablespoon butter in a saucepan and add one teaspoon onion juice, one teaspon lemon juice, one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper. Cut three chicken livers into pieces, dust with flour and saute in the sauce until done. Add to the sauce one cup of hot chicken stock that has been thickened with flour and butter rubbed to a paste. Stir until smooth and serve on hot buttered toast.

Protects the Varnish.

A piece of oilcloth of the same size as the silence cloth is a wonderful protection to the dining room table. Put the oilcloth on first, then the silence cloth and finally the table cover. The table will never be marred by hot dishes or spilled liquids.

Lingerie Style Changes

It once was possible to make a chemise from very little material. But with underthings following closely on the heels of the princess silhouette, it is necessary for the woman who delights in making her lingerie to purchase considerably more yardage and cut her garments skillfully. Shaped sections aid in curving the garment at the waistline with a flaring section below the hips.

Tailored models remain simple at the bust, but the rest of the garment is fairly intricate in comparison with its predecessors. Much lace goes into the making and shaping of dainty one-piece models for evening wear. Some of the more expensive are all of lace and beautifully designed to mold the figure by a fitted uplift and a snug portion between bust and hips.

To the Point.

A whisk broom is splendid when cleaning stairways. It will get into all corners of both carpet and woodwork and prevent dust accumulating.

SPEAK TO ME WITH THINE EYES.
DID YOU HEAR THE PROFESSOR'S LAST SONG? I'D LIKE TO HEAR HIM SING IN OLD KEN-TUCKY.
I HOPE I'VE HEARD HIS LAST SONG. BUT IF HE MUST SING LET'S HAVE HIM SING IN THE GRAND CANYON.
WHY-HE HAS A WONDERFUL VOICE.
HE REMINDS ME OF MATT BRUSH.
WHY HE IS A BUSINESS MAN-HE CAN'T SING.
